Inflation forecast: cloudy, little change...

Abner Mikva

Mikva: oust Butz, prevent excess profits

by STEVE BROWN

Remember the 62 cents you paid for a dozen eggs in June? A year from now, you may be paying that much for just five eggs.

A graphic demonstration by congressional candidate Abner J. Mikva shows how high food prices are headed.

Mikva Friday reported on the results of first three months of his survey of grocery prices in the 10th Congressional District, where he is seeking to unseat U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

He noted that prices are continuing to soar and laid out a variety of food items to show how much could be purchased in June versus what inflation will mean in 1975. He predicted food prices will increase 33 per cent in the next year.

BESIDES EGGS, comparisons were made for bacon, chuck steak, Jell-O, pork chops, shortening and crackers.

In most cases the amounts decreased

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young

between what could have been purchased in June and what a shopper will be able to buy in June 1975.

Mikva proposed a series of government moves which he believes should at least slow the rise of food costs.

Young: move to cut spending by government

U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, believes reduced government spending could help bring inflation to an acceptable rate, but only after another one or two years.

Young said pressures on the economy brought about by excessive government spending are "a major factor" in inflation and said a balanced federal budget is vital to cooling inflation.

"In the last 10 years, the government has spent $100 billion more than it has taken in," Young said Friday. He estimated that Congress this year will produce a budget of about $300 billion, $5 billion in excess of expected revenues.

The freshman congressman, now engaged in an effort to gain his second term in an election contest with Democrat Abner J. Mikva, whom he narrowly defeated in 1972, also advocated reductions in military spending, realignment (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

U.S. Rep. Philip Crane

Crane: cut spending

If you earn $15,173 this year — the average income in the 12th Congressional District — you will need to earn $30,346 by 1981 just to stay even, said U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

In a position paper on inflation, Crane pointed out that a (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

Threat of lawsuit looms

Plan board refuses to OK Swan Lake development

by JOE FRANZ

The Wheeling Plan Commission has refused to approve the Swan Lake development despite the threat of a law suit by the owner of the property.

The commission Thursday night voted 4 to 4 on the project and it will be forwarded to the village board with no recommendation. Chairman Herbert Lortz and Commissioners Jack Metzger, Elliot Tobias and Raymond Waymel oppose the project and commissioners Gilbert Monson, Wilfred Sommer, Charles Kohlstedt and Anthony Allieri favor it.

The developer, Ralph Stoetzel, Inc., has a contract to buy 40 acres on the east side of Wheeling Road, south of Palatine Road, and has proposed building 540 apartments.

IN A RECENT letter to members of the plan commission and village board, Leo McLennon, an attorney representing the present owners of the property, said the developer has "a vested right" to build the development under the present zoning and "it is illegal and wrong" for the village to interfere with that right.

The Swan Lake project was proposed in July 1973 but the plan commission refused to review it then because the zoning on the property had expired. The developers were forced to have the zoning reenacted by the village board.

Last July, the plan commission told the developer the apartment project faced almost certain rejection unless the density was reduced substantially. As a result, the developer Thursday night presented a revised development plan with 64 fewer units than proposed originally.

Although the commission as a whole was in favor of the reduced density, several commissioners said they are opposed to apartment projects. The property was zoned for apartments in 1971.

"I'm always glad to see less density," said Metzger. "But I think we have more than enough apartments in Wheeling."

SEVERAL MEMBERS of the plan commission also were irritated by McLennon's letter which threatened the law suit.

A spokesman for Ralph Stoetzel Inc. emphasized that the firm has a contract to buy the land, and that the letter was (Continued on Page 5)

Dundee Rd. savings may be used to landscape medians

An estimated $10,000 to $11,000 that will be saved by the installation of landscaped medians along Dundee Road in Buffalo Grove may be used to help finance the landscaping.

Officials are to decide this week whether the funds may be used for landscaping, said a spokesman for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

The Federal Highway Administration that has committed $1.5 million to the widening of Dundee Road must consent to Buffalo Grove using the funds for planting as well as the state, he said.

Officials say the saving will come mostly from spreading topsoil over the area to be landscaped rather than asphalt.

According to a compromise worked out recently among village officials and community business leaders, 1.4 miles of the median will be suitable for planting. The remaining portion of the two-mile stretch will be blacktopped to allow access to stores and shops in Buffalo Grove's business section.

AGREEMENT ON the median plan closed out months of debate between the two sides. Buffalo Grove businessmen were fearful landscaped dividers would hamper access to their stores while vil-

Those falling leaves—a yearly burning issue

Leaf burners beware. Most Northwest suburbs prohibit open burning of leaves.

But, for persons who find delight in the autumn smell, a few local municipalities allow leaf destruction.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board is banned from regulating leaf burning and relies on local communities for prohibition of the anti-environmental burning.

Local regulations include:

• Mount Prospect: Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said that he is "unaware" of an ordinance banning burning.

• Elk Grove Village: Village Mgr. Charles Willis said that open burning is banned, but leaves can burn in containers.

• Buffalo Grove: Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said that leaf burning is prohibited.

• Wheeling: Village Clerk Evelyn Diens said that the ordinance banning burning is "vague." The law prohibits fires on public grounds or near buildings where a fire hazard may result. Fire officials said the department does not stop burning of leaves.

• Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg: Burning is prohibited.

• Rolling Meadows: Burning is prohibited.

• Arlington Heights: Officials said that an ordinance prohibits burning.

Des Plaines: A 1965 ordinance prohibits burning of "standing hay or grass or any leaves gathered on streets, curbside, alleyways, parkways or park property."

• Palatine: Village Pres. Wendell Jones said that burning is banned. "If people in Palatine want to go back to the system (of burning leaves), they can petition the village board to consider it."

Most officials encourage homeowners to use leaf or garbage bags for disposal.

Illinois prohibited leaf burning for three years "when it was the environmental thing to do," Jones said. In October 1973, Gov. Daniel Walker signed a law that prohibits state regulation of leaf burning.

The IPCB can restrict burning in any area if medical and biological evidence shows that "contaminants" could cause injury to "human, plant or animal life."

Des Plaines loses sewage plant fight

The City of Des Plaines has lost again before the Illinois Supreme Court in its battle to keep a sewage treatment plant out of the city's west side. The court ruled Friday that the city does not have the authority to make the Metropolitan Sanitary District conform to local zoning regulations, despite the city's new home-rule powers. The "next line of defense" will be a recently passed city ordinance setting strict environmental standards for sewage plant construction, Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, said Sunday.

Cop-killing case figure slain

A Hoffman Estates man believed to have been involved in the unraveling of the 1972 murder of Hillside Patrolman Anthony Raymond was found shot to death on a farm near Dwight, Ill., over the weekend. The victim, Robert Harder, 39, of 581 Caldwell Ln., had supplied information leading to two arrests in the Raymond abduction and murder. Police have not come up with a motive for the shooting.

Drop junior college district

Buffalo Grove residents were instrumental Saturday in defeating a referendum which would have kept High School Dist. 125 in the College of Lake County Junior College District. The referendum was initiated by residents of the Lake County portion of Buffalo Grove, who wanted Dist. 125 placed in the Harper College District. Dist. 125 has been assigned to the Lake County junior college district by the Illinois Community College Board. However, while state law permits high school districts to reject the ICCB assignment, it makes no provision for them to be annexed to another junior college district. As long as Dist. 125 remains outside the limits of any junior college district, the district must subsidize the difference between in-district and out-of-district tuition for local students in any junior college.

Young clerk shot in holdup

A Mount Prospect youth is in the intensive care unit of Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines after he was shot during a holdup of Williams Liquors, Des Plaines, where he is a stockboy. David Turner, 18, of 819 We-Go Tr., was shot in the right shoulder with a sawed-off shotgun. Police said the attack was unprovoked. Three men and a woman are being sought.

Mount Prospect may drop CAP

Mount Prospect's Community Action Plan (CAP) may disband because of lack of interest and poor attendance at meetings. The semiannual board of directors meeting attracted only five of 30 members last week. The lack of interest could be caused by an "over-organized" community, said CAP Pres. Richard Bachhuber. "There's too many organizations trying to do too many things," he said.

Track housing hearing tonight

Dozens of homeowners, school and park district officials and representatives of Arlington Park Race Track will converge tonight at a public hearing in Arlington Heights. At issue is the extension of an expiring annexation agreement that gives race track owners wider-than-normal leeway in developing their huge property.

Alert cop foils burglary

An alert policeman broke up a burglary early Friday at an Arlington Heights pharmacy, resulting in the arrests of four Des Plaines men. Lt. LeRoy Weith, who was checking businesses about 1 a.m., looked into the pharmacy and saw drawers ransacked and a pile of rubble on the floor. Two men were arrested at the scene, another was found in a car across the street and the fourth was nabbed five hours later.

Ex-mayor to be paroled

Edward F. Pinger, former Hoffman Estates village president, will be paroled Wednesday from federal prison on McNeil Island, Wash., after serving more than eight months for bribery and income tax evasion. Pinger, the village's first mayor and later served as a zoning board member, is the fourth of six officials imprisoned in a zoning payoff scandal to be released after terms in federal penitentiaries.

Milk prices going up again —by up to 4 cents a gallon

by LEA TONKIN

Shoppers will likely find a 3 to 4-cent-a-gallon boost in retail milk prices this week. It's a reflection of higher prices paid to dairy farmers by bottled milk processors, starting today.

George Hansen, a supervisor for the Central Milk Producers Cooperative in Chicago, said that cows produce less milk in the fall and winter months of the year. That means less supply and higher prices.

He "wouldn't be surprised" to see additional price increases for bottled milk prices, as the seasonal decline sets in. The price of other dairy products also is affected by the current price hikes.

As of this morning, the price paid to farmers for Class I milk (bottled) rose 30 cents a hundredweight to $8.64. The price for Class II supplies (used in the production of cottage cheese, yogurt and other products) will increase 60 cents a hundredweight to $7.05. The previous price level was $6.45 a hundredweight.

HANSEN COMPARED the price levels to those earlier this year. Class I prices were $9.69 a hundredweight in May. "Today's price does not pay the price of producing milk, according to people in the industry," he continued. "They're hoping it will get better. If it continues at today's level we'll see people dropping out of the business."

Central Milk Producers Cooperative is a federation of 17 dairy industry cooperatives in Illinois and Wisconsin. Its 15,000 members supply the major share of the Chicago metropolitan area milk production.

A spokesman for the Jewel Food Stores said late last week that the higher cost for bottled milk will probably result in a boost in retail prices by approximately 3 cents a gallon this week. All other dairy prices may be affected by the increased costs, he said.

U. S. Agriculture Dept. officials recently announced a public hearing for Oct. 8 in Rosemont on a proposal that could boost minimum farm prices for bottled milk by 4 cents a gallon in October. The proposal, if approved, would set a new floor in the basic formula used to calculate minimum farm prices for bottling-grade milk.

Agriculture Sec. Earl Butz has said it is necessary to consider if farmers need higher prices to ensure adequate milk supplies for consumers in the fall and winter.

State public aid head coming to area

James L. Trainor, new head of the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid, will come to the Northwest suburbs in October to listen to complaints of local public aid recipients.

Trainor will meet with a representative of Families United Seeking Equal Services (FUSES), a group seeking better treatment for local welfare recipients; and supervisors and social workers or Maine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Palatine townships. Tentative date for the meeting is Oct. 15 at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights.

FUSES wrote Trainor asking for a meeting after unsuccessfully trying to get response from the Cook County Dept. of Public Aid. Major goal of the group is to get a local public aid office. Currently welfare recipients from the area must travel to Chicago to apply or when they have problems.

Former Republican impeachment counsel Albert Jenner yesterday strongly supported testimony that former White House aide Peter Flanigan, President Ford's nominee to be ambassador to Spain, was involved in selling an ambassadorship in 1972. Jenner, reached at his Kenilworth, Ill. home, told UPI he and others on the staff of the House Judiciary Committee believe Herbert Kalmbach's testimony about Flanigan's activities during Richard Nixon's reelection campaign.

Slate massive busing boycott Friday

Busing foes in Boston are planning a massive boycott of classes Friday to protest the court-ordered desegregation of public schools, despite admonitions from state officials that truancy laws will be enforced. Local busing leaders say they anticipate 25 per cent participation in the boycott, which they claim is part of a nationwide effort. Also threatening to boycott schools are busing opponents in Denver, Dallas, San Francisco and Memphis.

Including 10 cents on gasoline

New, heavy fuel taxes under study

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Proposals to tax gasoline 10 cents a gallon and to place a heavy tax on the excessive use of other fuels such as natural gas and oil will be discussed this week by President Ford's economic staff, sources confirmed Sunday.

A White House source said one of the proposals would be the addition of a special tax of 10 cents per gallon on top of present gasoline taxes.

The source stressed, however, that this was only one of several measures proposed to achieve the twin goal of diverting consumers' inflationary income from the economy and of controlling the use of energy.

Economic advisers will begin discussing concrete proposals to deal with the economy Monday and meetings could continue all week, the source said.

The gasoline increase plan met with immediate opposition from the American Automobile Association, which said that if Ford's advisers "think the American public can be made to believe that a substantial price increase in so basic a consumer product is anti-inflationary, then it is an insult to our intelligence."

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Sunday he doubted the gas tax could get through Congress. Two Democrats, Sens. Walter Mondale of Minnesota and Edmund Muskie of Maine, said they would vote against such a tax.

Sources told UPI that discussion of another tax on energy, which was first considered nearly a year ago, is being revived. It would place a heavy tax on the excess use of energy.

The plan would work this way:

Consumers and industry would be permitted to use the same amount of energy — natural gas, oil and electricity — that they used during some previous period, such as December of 1972, at the going rate. Any additional energy use would be heavily taxed at a rate yet to be decided. President Ford gave strong indications at the close of the economic summit conference Saturday that his tax program would go beyond breaks for the poor and include incentives to encourage industrial productivity and to make savings bank accounts more attractive to the average American.

Ford also hinted that he favors public employment programs to help those who lose their jobs for economic reasons.

Every possible solution was offered up to Ford. No matter which he chooses he can say he got the idea from the summit conference. He is expected to lay a broad program before the country during the second week of October.

Daylight time test is about over

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress hopes this week to put the nation back on standard time during the "dark" months of November through February, bringing an early end to the controversial year-round daylight savings time it ordered during the energy crisis.

And in twin moves directed at Richard M. Nixon, Congress is expected to take action denying the former President custody of his White House tapes and documents and sharply reducing funds requested for his return to private life.

The Senate came within one amendment last Thursday of accepting a House-passed standard time bill. Senate leaders planned to resume work on the measure Tuesday in an effort to get it to the White House before the end of this month.

The measure would return the country to standard time from Oct. 27, 1974 to Feb. 23, 1975, repealing a section of last January's "emergency" measure which ordered year-around daylight time lasting until April 27, 1975.

After Feb. 23, 1975, the nation would go back to daylight time until the end of April, when the "emergency" law expires. Then it would resume the old system requiring daylight time each year from the last Sunday of April until the last Sunday of October.

The emergency measure prompted a flood of complaints to congressmen last winter. Most of the controversy centered around concerns about the safety of children walking to school or waiting for school buses in the morning darkness.

House and Senate committees also noted, however, that the law was designed to save electricity but that the actual conservation of energy amounted to less than 1 per cent from January through April.

Before the end of the week, the Senate expects to adopt a bill to kill President Ford's agreement giving Nixon and the government joint custody of the presidential papers for five years with sole custody for Nixon thereafter.

At the same time, the Senate and House moved toward a sharply trimmed fund for Nixon's transition to private life.

The House Appropriations Committee has cut Ford's request from $850,000 to $398,000 and a Senate Appropriations subcommittee slashed it to $320,000.

Castro blasts U.S., dines with senators

HAVANA (UPI) — Two leading American senators — Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I. — dined Sunday night in Havana with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro to discuss whether Cuban-American relations can be improved. Only 24 hours earlier, Castro made his most blistering attack in months against the United States.

Saturday night, the senators watched on television as Castro lambasted President Ford for his defense of American intervention in Latin America. As Castro spoke, thousands of Cubans in the square below him shouted "Give it to them, Fidel! Give it to them!"

Both Javits and Pell discounted the words Sunday morning as Castro's usual anti-American speech and said it would not deflect their purpose in coming here to study whether relations between the two countries can begin to be improved.

The pair will leave Havana for home this morning.

In Washington, meanwhile, diplomatic sources said the Castro government has gone further than Washington is easing travel restrictions between Cuba and the U.S.

They said, however, a return to the old days of heavy two-way tourist travel apparently is still some distance in the future.

An official of the Czechoslovak Embassy in Washington — which represents Havana — said the Castro regime is allowing Cubans to visit relatives in the U.S., and exiled Cubans residing on the continent, whether U.S. or Cuban citizens, to visit the island.

THOUSANDS OF CUBANS in Havana cheer and wave flags as fire works explode in Revolution Square. The crowd heard Prime Minister Fidel Castro speak for 50 minutes. He lashed out at President Ford.

Mrs. Ford fine; new cancer findings

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — First Lady Betty Ford was reported rested and more comfortable Sunday, a day after removal of her cancerous right breast, and doctors said her condition "continues stable."

And the President, who arrived at the Bethesda Naval Medical Center at mid-afternoon, said the "prognosis is very favorable" for her recovery and survival.

Mrs. Ford's surgeons reported she had more rest and experienced less discomfort than Saturday. She sat up for 10 minutes during the day Sunday.

Meanwhile, the President indicated yesterday his wife's cancer surgery might affect his plans to run for a full term in 1976, but said "We haven't thought beyond next week."

Weighing heavily on his plans will be a pathology report Mrs. Ford's doctors will get this week, possibly today, on whether the cancer has spread to her lymph system.

The doctors said they expect the First Lady to begin eating Monday, although she will remain on intravenous feeding until then.

Meantime, dramatic new findings by a breast cancer task force indicate the traditional type of radical surgery undergone by Mrs. Ford offers no advantage over a less mutilating technique, the head of the National Cancer Institute said Sunday.

Dr. Frank Rauscher said the task force findings also contain evidence of at least equal importance that chemical therapy can "drastically" reduce the recurrence of breast cancer and that radiation therapy after surgery, with its bad side effects, is unnecessary.

The major "Report to the Profession" will be presented for the first time Monday in a day-long National Cancer Institute conference.

Calley waiting again for freedom today

• For former Army Lt. William Calley — on his way to freedom last week — today will be another long day. The 5th U.S. Circuit of Appeals in New Orleans is supposed to act on an order temporarily delaying the release of Calley pending an Army appeal. For Calley, ordered freed by a lower court last week, it could mean the end of the time he's served for the murder of at least 22 civilians at My Lai in 1968. But a Pentagon spokesman said there was no reason to assume Calley would be released immediately, and as far as the Army is concerned, it will move to keep him at his job as a clerk typist at Ft. Leavenworth.

• Former President Richard Nixon wrapped up his first week in a Long Beach hospital Sunday, resting and facing several more days — possibly a week — of tests and treatment for blood clots in his leg and lung. A medical bulletin was promised this afternoon, but Dr. John Lundgren indicated over the weekend that Nixon was responding well to anticoagulants and surgery was not indicated at this time on the dime-sized clot in his lung.

• Almost lost in the flurry of news Friday over the opening of the economic summit and Betty Ford's hospitalization was a quiet moment along the Potomac River where the LBJ Memorial Grove was dedicated to the late President Lyndon Johnson. President and Mrs. Ford were there, and assisted by Lady Bird Johnson and two of her granddaughters they planted the first of many white pines to mark the site, where — said Ford — part of the LBJ spirit would always rest, "shaded by tall trees to match his stature." Also part of the site: a 45-ton shaft of pink Texas granite, engraved with LBJ quotations.

Now all is forgiven. Khryl has a pardon and a job on a local collective farm.

Harper to offer two workshops

The Harper College Community Leadership Training Center will give two workshops in the next two weeks aimed at interested citizens and elected officials.

"How to Become a Participant Citizen; How to Become Involved," will be offered Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. in the board rooms at the college.

The seminar will be led by Forbes Shepard, a coordinator for William Singer's campaign for mayor of Chicago and a member of the Independent Voters of Illinois. Others on the program are Lou Walton, president of the board of Northwest Opportunity Center; Roger Bjorvik, an attorney who helped introduce legislation for bicycle paths, and Mary Carlson, president of the Illinois Assn. of University Women.

A seminar will be held Oct. 9 on "Communications and Small Group Dynamics" aimed at public officials and others interested in working with small groups.

The seminar leader will be Lorenz W. Aggens, public service director for the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. That seminar also is scheduled for 7 to 10 p.m.

Tuition is $10 for each seminar or $55 for a series of seven seminars. Further information is available from Joan Marsh, coordinator of the Leadership Training Center.

5 Sacred Heart students named to 'Merit' list

Five seniors at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows have been named Merit Program Commended Students by the National Merit Scholarship Corp.

Joan M. Grady, Anita M. Heinze, Margaret M. Klein, Joan E. Kosenhauer and Hilary M. Ward were among 38,000 students that received the recognition in the United States based on their performance on the 1973 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test and National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. The commended students are in the upper 2 per cent of those expected to graduate in June 1975.

Kathleen Gillogly of Mount Prospect, who also attends Sacred Heart, earlier received notification of being a semifinalist in this year's National Merit Scholarship competition.

by WANDALYN RICE
Kenneth Portnoy's credentials as a historian are impeccable.

He studied Tudor Constitutional History at Cambridge University. He has done research and, until last spring was head of the history department at Mundelein College.

Now the Boston-born Palatine resident says with pride, "I'm heard simultaneously on two radio stations on Sunday," and then he adds, "Radio and television is a very ego-gratifying work."

Portnoy, 30, isn't a historian anymore, even though he still discusses issues like a scholar. He is a full-time announcer for WEFM radio, works on radio programs for the Chicago City Colleges that are heard on WJJD-FM and now is producing a series on adolescent psychology that is heard on WBEZ-FM.

"This is the first fall in 25 years that I haven't gone back to school," he said recently, relaxing in the sparsely furnished apartment that he shares with his wife, a math teacher turned real estate broker. "I think of the people at Mundelein — right now they are holding faculty meetings and listening to the President speak."

PORTNOY'S CHANCE of career didn't happen overnight. He says he always was interested in broadcasting as well as history as a student but never followed up on the former ambition. "I went to college and did the usual collegiate things," he says. "Then I had the chance to do my Ph.D. in Cambridge and that was an opportunity I couldn't pass up."

After his years doing research in London and being impressed with the broadcasts of the British Broadcasting Corp., Portnoy came to his job at Mundelein College. After working there for awhile, he says, "I couldn't see myself correcting term papers until I was 95 years old. I said to myself that I had a degree and that if the only thing I could do was teach history that was really frightening."

Portnoy returned to school, this time at Columbia College in Chicago. He was trained in broadcasting and he says the classes "cleared up a lot of misconceptions I had. I thought broadcasting could be changed magically and I couldn't understand why it wasn't more like the BBC, but here it's different comparing American broadcasting to the BBC is comparing apples to oranges."

After studying part time at Columbia for a year and a half, a friend from the Chicago City Colleges offered him a job doing programming for them. Later, he heard about the opening at WEFM and soon he was in broadcasting full time.

"I'm getting experience here that I couldn't get anywhere else but in the No. 2 market in the country," he says.

THE FUTURE, Portnoy says, is open-ended. "I'm more fascinated with radio than with television," he says. "I've got two ideas for radio series which I think will work out and I'll try to market them. Also, I'm always keeping my eyes open for a news job somewhere. What really attracted me to broadcasting was news."

He says he's happy with his change. "I've been working for six months and I've never been bored once. The hours can be long sometimes, but it's never boring."

At the same time, however, he still has his love of history, and does not regret being an expert on the Tudor Constitutional period. "I don't regret my graduate training at all," he says. "I'm not saying that because I can read 16th-Century English handwriting that it will help me directly with my career — but I think it was important."

He also believes that in the future more and more people will find themselves changing careers in mid-life. "Not too long ago we were talking to my wife's father and he said that when he was young, someone got a job and never thought of doing something else. People who change jobs are always considered strange, but it's not so strange. We've got to learn to be flexible."

Referendum takes Dist. 125 from college district

Buffalo Grove residents were instrumental Saturday in the defeat of a referendum to keep High School Dist. 125 in the College of Lake County Junior College District.

Defeat of the referendum means the high school district is not in any junior college district.

Of the 536 ballots, 336 were against Dist. 125's inclusion in the Lake County Junior College District, 193 were in favor and seven were spoiled.

The referendum was initiated by residents of the Lake County portion of Buffalo Grove, who wanted Dist. 125 placed in the Harper Junior College District. Precinct 4, which includes Buffalo Grove, decided the referendum by recording 234 of 336 votes against Dist. 125's inclusion in the Lake County district.

DIST. 125 was assigned to the Lake County district last summer by the Illinois Community College Board. According to state law, high school districts assigned to a junior college district may decide to accept or reject the ICCB assignment by referendum. There are, however, no provisions for a high school district to be annexed to a different junior college district.

An ICCB official said that once a high school district votes itself out of a junior college district, it is in a state of limbo.

As long as Dist. 125 remains outside the boundaries of a junior college district, it must subsidize the difference between in-district and out-of-district tuition for local students in any junior college.

Last year, about $44,000 was paid by Dist. 125 for junior college fees. About $22,000 went to Harper College and about $19,000 was paid to the Lake County and other junior college districts.

DIST. 125 LEVIED its last tax for junior college rebates in September. The law permitting high school districts to levy for out-of-district reimbursements has expired. Edwin Ellis, Dist. 125 business manager, said the district has enough money from past junior college levies to pay for this year's and probably next year's reimbursements.

After that, he said, the rebate would have to be paid from the education fund. Voter turnout Saturday was low, according to Ellis. A normal turnout for a district referendum is 600 to 1,200 voters.

5 hurt in 3 weekend accidents

Five persons suffered minor injuries Saturday in three automobile accidents in Wheeling.

Gloria A. Osborne, 39, of 1101 Beechwood Dr., Buffalo Grove, was released after treatment at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. Wheeling police said she was stopped on Hintz Road, east of Elmhurst Road, to make a right turn when her vehicle was struck in the rear by a car driven by Robert J. Amodio, 19, of 300 S. We-GO Tr., Mount Prospect.

Police charged Amodio with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident in the 2:33 p.m. accident. He will appear Oct. 22 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Youth shot in liquor store robbery

A Mount Prospect youth is in the intensive care unit of Holy Family Hospital after he was shot Saturday by robbers during a holdup of a Des Plaines liquor store where he works as a stockboy.

David Turner, 16, of 819 We-GO Tr., was shot in the right shoulder with a sawed-off shotgun as he lay on the floor of Williams Liquors, 840 Elmhurst Rd. Des Plaines police said the attack was apparently unprovoked.

According to reports, three men and a woman, all in their early 20s, entered the store about 11:30 p.m. Saturday, brandished weapons and announced a holdup. The men, who covered their hair with multi-colored bandanas, carried automatic pistols and the shotgun.

The female accomplice was reportedly wearing blue slacks and a low-cut blouse. All the suspects are black, police said.

Turner, another stockboy and a woman clerk were forced to lie on the floor by the robbers. There were no customers in the store at the time of the robbery, police said.

Before the robbers fled, one shot Turner. The other two employees were not injured, police said.

An undetermined amount of cash was taken by the bandits, according to police. The suspects escaped on foot. Witnesses said they were last seen running between a doughnut shop and hamburger stand near the liquor store.

An areawide bulletin has been issued for the four.

A spokesman at Holy Family Hospital said Turner was in the intensive care unit. No other details or condition report was available Sunday.

Dundee Rd. savings may be used to landscape medians

Large officials were interested in beautifying the roadway.

The state was set to move ahead with plans to install a conventional median.

If the funds are not channeled into the landscaping, the village would have to plant and maintain the medians at its own expense.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said plans call for trees, shrubs and some type of ground-cover plants. Lawns would probably not be put in right away, he said, because of the high cost of maintenance and grasscutting.

The over-all Dundee Road project includes $3 million work between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53 through Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights. The road is being widened from two to four lanes.

State officials said last week the curb pouring work is just about complete. Installing the medians and blacktopping on the mountable sections should follow in about two to three weeks.

Keep on hikin'—6,000 miles

by JOE SWICKARD

There's Bud, his dog, Boy, and his pack pony, Maybelline, off on a walk to see America, talk to the people, learn something about it and them.

Northwest Highway is the high-speed artery of the Northwest suburbs. Car lots, real estate offices and fast-food franchises draw their nourishment from the people and cars that race past them daily.

Tethered to a fence at the Burger King on the highway in Palatine is something from another time. A pack pony, loaded with 145 pounds of gear, including a fishing spear and a set of snow shoes, draws children and causes cars to slow to a creep. A backpack, guarded by a dog, is leaned against the building.

BUD KENNY, having finished his Whopper, strides out of the Burger King ready to be on his way.

"I'm walking to Oregon, up through Montana. The Northern route. We started in Leola, Pa., and we're going to Oregon and then down to San Francisco and back across to Hot Springs, Ark.," said Bud.

It is planned as a year-long, 6,000-mile learning adventure for Bud Kenny, 25-year-old former Oklahoma City disc jockey. When he's through, hopefully about September, 1975, he plans to look over his notes, revisit some of the people he's met and then write a series of journals about it.

"I was a disk jockey in Oklahoma City, making a buck here and spending it there. I wanted to slow down, relax and get to know the country and the people," he said with a trace of the peculiar twanging drawl of Oklahoma.

BUD DECIDED to take his time about it. Maybelline, his pony, was pure practically to help carry his load as he walked.

Practical origins or not, Maybelline quickly became a device to meet people. Naturally, folks are going to want to talk to a man walking down

ON HIS WAY to meet America. Bud Kenny, his dog, Boy, and pony, Maybelline, hike along Northwest Highway. His final destination is Hot Springs, Ark., by way of Oregon. After the 6,000 mile trek, Kenny plans a series of journals.

the road leading a packpony with flowers in the bridle.

"People will stop me and get to chatting. It gives me the chance to find out about their lives, the history of the area and about the people who live there," Bud said.

Although he travels by country roads (Northwest Highway is the busiest road to date), he makes a point to go through the cities and towns along the route.

"I came into Chicago on 47th Street. They told me it was a ghetto, but after seeing Cleveland, it looked pretty nice. Kids come up to me and want to see who I am and pet the pony. A lot of them in the city never have that chance," he said.

Maybelline (named after the old Chuck Berry record) is well suited for the task. "Kids can pet her, stroke her nose or pull her tail. She doesn't mind a bit," he said.

TO PREPARE himself for his journey, Bud worked for a year with horses in Pennsylvania, reading what he could about early explorers and gathering or making his equipment.

"I'm poor financially. People I meet help me out. In the cities they give me a place to sleep. Of course, in the country, we have to sleep outdoors," he said, adding the trip will cost about $2,000.

Bud said he tries to eat the best he can as cheaply as he can. That means catfish and dandelions for greens, but so far no wild hickory nuts or the edible parts of the pine tree.

Odd jobs also help finance his way. In Indiana he helped a man split old telephone poles for a rail fence.

BUD EXPECTS the road ahead to be rough. The leaves are turning early this year and there has already been a foot and a half of snow in Denver. But he said he was "looking forward" to wintering on the western range.

"Adventures? I've had all kinds of adventures. Just coming into Ohio in Amish country and young girl was in a buggy and her horse saw Maybelline and bolted," he said. The runaway horse was stopped and the girl was uninjured.

"I found out that people are good — damned good. It's the people that are the greatest adventure" said Bud as he took Boy's leash and Maybelline's line and headed west on the road to meet America.

Body discovered in field near Dwight, Ill.

Man linked to killing found slain

A Hoffman Estates man, believed to have been involved in the unraveling of the 1972 murder of Hillside Patrolman Anthony Raymond, was found shot to death on a farm near Dwight, Ill., Saturday morning.

Livingston County authorities said an Illinois Bureau of Investigation agent identified the victim as Robert Harder, 39, of 581 Caldwell Ln., Hoffman Estates. It was believed that Harder along with other informants supplied information leading to two arrests in connection with the Raymond abduction and murder.

Silas C. Fletcher, Hanover Park, one of the two charged in the policeman's death, is scheduled to appear for trial today in Criminal Court. Robert C. Martinez is the other suspect. It was unknown if Harder was to have been a witness in Fletcher's trial.

A farmer discovered the body about 7:30 a.m. in a soybean field about 2½ miles west of Interstate 55 and one mile south of Dwight, said Livingston County Sheriff William Frye. Harder had been shot once in the face.

FRYE SAID county investigators, Illinois State Police and FBI agents investigating the death, had not come up with a motive for the incident. Authorities said Harder's pockets had been turned inside out, indicating he did not commit suicide.

The sheriff said although laboratory tests have not been completed, authorities estimate the time of death may have been about midnight Friday. Frye reported Harder was shot at close range, probably while at the field, and that there were no signs of rope marks or bruises that might have indicated abduction.

A small caliber bullet was extracted during the autopsy, and it is believed the bullet did not come from the .765 mm. pistol found under the body, authorities said. Harder's body was found near a car registered to his wife, Patricia.

IN CONNECTION with the Raymond case, Jesse Millard, Hoffman Estates, was under investigation until he was killed during a holdup of an Indiana coin shop. Fletcher was arrested after the attempted robbery July 25, 1973. Martinez was later arrested in Las Vegas, Nev.

Raymond's remains were found in August, 1973, in a shallow grave in a wooded area adjacent to a farm owned by Fletcher's sister in Rhinelander, Wis. The patrolman was abducted Oct. 1, 1972, while making a traffic stop on an entrance ramp to the Eisenhower Expressway. Police have theorized that Raymond may have stopped men who had just robbed a Hillside restaurant.

Harder had served time in jail for armed robbery. He had been indicted in connection with operation of an abortion ring, but the charges were dismissed after a state statute on abortion had been ruled illegal.

Ouch! Auto-insurance rates going up, too?

Auto insurance rates, which have gone down 3.4 per cent in the last three years, may be pushed upward by inflation and mounting losses, the president of the nation's largest insurance trade association said.

Vestal Lemmon, president of the Des Plaines-based National Assn. of Independent Insurers, told the annual meeting of the Iowa Mutual Insurance Co., Davenport, that "continuing, unabated inflation, a plummeting stock market and over-rising losses appear to be taking a heavy toll once again on our business."

He said property-casualty insurers had experienced an underwriting loss of almost $600 million in the first half of this year, compared to a $105 million gain during the same period last year. Furthermore, Lemmon said, the falling stock market has reduced policyholder surplus by more than $3 billion since January.

In the face of figures such as these," he said, "the need for more adequate rates would appear inescapable. But with the nation caught up as it is in one of the tightest inflationary squeezes of modern history, you can expect renewed public pressure to hold the line."

Lemmon cited figures from the Cost of Living Council showing that auto insurance rates had declined 3.4 per cent since 1971, despite an 8.6 per cent increase in doctor's fees; a 14.8 per cent boost in hospital charges; a 12.7 per cent increase in labor costs, and a 29 per cent hike in auto parts prices.

Builders join bid to help minorities to suburb homes

Chicago-area builders have joined the Fair Housing Center in Chicago in a campaign to encourage minorities, especially blacks, to move to the suburbs.

The campaign, started last week and initiated by the housing center, is designed to inform minorities living in Chicago that there are housing opportunities in the suburbs, said Paul Epstein, director of the center. The housing center is an offshoot of the Home Investments Fund, a privately funded not-for-profit corporation formed in 1968 to aid minorities moving to the suburbs.

Epstein said the first series of advertisements, run in local and metropolitan newspapers, represents 20,000 housing units at all price ranges throughout the Chicago area. He said the purpose of the ads are not to promote low and moderate-income housing but to advertise existing housing to those minorities who can afford it. He said that while the ads appeal to all minority groups the campaign is especially geared toward blacks.

THE ADVERTISEMENTS invite minorities to live in the "beautiful, spacious, green countryside" of the suburbs. Epstein said the ads are paid for by the builders and management firms who have agreed to participate in the campaign.

Business today

Included in these firms are the Littlestone Co. of Chicago, which built and manages Huntington Commons in Mount Prospect; M. Meyers & Associates, which built and manages Schaumburg Green in Schaumburg and is currently building a senior-citizen development in Elk Grove Village, and International Villages of Bolingbrook.

Tom Teel, general manager of International Villages, said the ad applies only to the development in Bolingbrook, not to the one in Schaumburg, although no builder can discriminate.

He said the Bolingbrook complex is partially financed by the Illinois Housing Development Authority under a program to provide housing for moderate-to-middle-income families. He said the ad is part of an IHDA "affirmative marketing" requirement.

Huntington Commons, Schaumburg Green and the senior citizens in Elk Grove Village are also partially funded by IHDA.

Epstein said the ads have already gotten responses from minorities who had been thinking about moving to the suburbs. He said the center now plans to convince suburban employers to help their employees find housing in the suburbs.

Harbinger honored

Harper College's student newspaper, The Harbinger, has won a first class certificate in the junior-community college division of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association merit awards competition at Columbia University, New York.

The Harbinger also received an honor rating of first class in the Associated Collegiate Press competition. The publication was noted for its distinction on content and coverage.

'Last-minute' vote signup set Oct. 8

All Cook County suburban polling places will open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Oct. 8 for "last-minute" registration to vote in the Nov. 5 general election.

Persons who have not registered to vote or voters who have changed address can register, a spokesman in the county clerk's office said.

Voters who have moved can request address transfer by mail, but the deadline is today. By returning a voting card and information on the card back about new voting address, voters can change records for the election.

New voters must be 18 years old by Nov. 5, must have 30 days residency by Nov. 5 and must be U. S. citizens, the spokesman said.

Lola, Stan spar verbally

Lola Flamm, Republican candidate for county clerk, claimed a "victory" for a change in absentee voter regulations and County Clerk Stanley Kusper answered that "she's all wet."

Mrs. Flamm has contended that persons who seek absentee ballots could not receive the ballots at home addresses in Cook County.

Kusper said Friday that "it's a snap" to receive an absentee ballot and that ballots will be mailed to home addresses. Persons seeking absentee ballots — election judges working in a precinct away from home, military personnel, the physically disabled or college students — can obtain applications to vote absentee by mail. The forms can be mailed to the clerk's office and a ballot will be mailed to the voter.

Kusper said the policy of mailing ballots to addresses within Cook County changed when he was appointed county clerk last year. "I think the ban was used because people worked in the city, but lived in the suburbs and wanted to avoid a trip to vote," Kusper said.

At least one state official, State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, has announced that ballot applications are available in the suburbs. Juckett's office is at 26 Maine St., Park Ridge.

5 win endorsements

Two Democrats and three Republicans have gained endorsement of Chicago-based independent precinct organizations.

The Independent Precinct Organization and Independent Voters of Illinois announced Friday plans to work in five Chicago legislative districts to elect a split ticket Nov. 5 that includes U. S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., and State Treasurer Alan Dixon, a Democrat, and Republicans Peter Bensinger, candidate for sheriff; Lola Flamm, candidate for county clerk, and Alice Ihrig, candidate for assessor.

"The two incumbents running state-wide have proven records that justify our confidence in their performances. The three GOP county-wide candidates are a breath of fresh air to combat the stench of corruption, favoritism and incompetence that are the hallmarks of machine politics here," Lee Epstein of the IVI said.

Other endorsements include:

- IVI backing of Vernon Frazee, GOP candidate for county schools superintendent.
- IPACE backing of State Rep. Richard Magallon, D-Palatine, and County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick, a Democrat. IPACE is the "political-action arm" of the Illinois Education Assn.
- Hispanic American Labor Council support of Sheriff Richard Elrod.

Tax-protest strategy near

The County Board of (Tax) Appeals will complete plans within two weeks for mail-in real estate tax protests.

Comr. Seymour Zaban said the office will accept written requests for tax protest forms. The requests will be placed in files by township and homeowners will receive complaint forms and a brochure explaining filing procedures when individual township tax rolls open.

"This way people can file by mail," Zaban said. Hearings at the board's Chicago office still will be required.

Property owners should include real estate index numbers and address of the property, he said. The information is printed on tax bills.

Zaban said starting date to protest assessments for next year's tax bills has not been set. More to come.

Ihrig, Anderson to appear

Republican candidates Alice Ihrig, assessor, and Wayne Anderson of Des Plaines, treasurer, will be guest at a reception from 5 to 7 p.m. tonight at Steven's on Wacker Restaurant, 111 E. Wacker, Chicago.

U. S. Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, and State Comptroller George Lindberg will be hosts at the $50-per-ticket fund raiser.

RTA moves toward wire, may select leader soon

Despite weeks of silence, the Regional Transportation Authority is moving toward selection of its chairman.

There have been indications that the four suburban board members have agreed on a candidate they prefer, to counter the city representatives' preference for CTA chairman Milton Ptkarsky. There is one return interview scheduled this week.

The eight-member board must select the chairman by a six-vote majority — a provision the Illinois General Assembly included in the RTA bill to assure that the chairman would be nonpartisan. Although there have been reports of several public transportation experts interviewing for the job, executives from other fields reportedly have also been considered.

THE SELECTION PROCESS has stretched through the summer and fall, although the board did cut off candidate entries Aug. 1. The board has met as often as three days a week to interview candidates from across the nation.

Several efforts by suburban members of the board to start the RTA wheels turning without the chairman were solidly defeated by the Chicago side of the table.

Some of the suburban members are still impatient because the board is receiving letter after letter from railroad and bus systems pleading for assistance. The letters have received routine answers with no commitments, regardless of the urgency of the requests.

A showdown may be in the works if the final stage of the chairman's selection is bogged down in politics. Suburban members, described as the weak link in the system compared to the solidity of the Chicago bloc, may renew attempts to get the RTA going and financially assist carriers.

The RTA has been allotted at least $17 million so far, but it remains untouched. The board members have not even applied for their $200-a-day salaries and expenses. A one-time state emergency operating fund that gave millions to the CTA and the suburban bus and rail carriers has been long-since exhausted, and the systems are further restricted by the General Assembly's recent amendments, which forbid carriers to raise fares in the coming fiscal year if they want RTA subsidies.

Left untreated, gallstones can lead to cirrhosis of the liver

Please tell me something about gallstones and their symptoms. Can they be flushed out like kidney stones? They surely require surgery. I hear they can be treated with a medicine.

It is a common problem. There must be at least 15 million Americans with gallstones and three-fourths of them are women. An old medical aphorism states that you should think of gallstones when your patient is fair, fat, forty and four, meaning simply a heavy middle-aged mother of four children. But, men also have them.

What about the symptoms? About half of them cause no symptoms at all — at least to begin with. They are called silent stones. We even found a few examples of this in the highly selected young men tested for the astronaut program. They were neither fair nor 40 and seldom even heavy.

Gallstones cause symptoms when they are associated with inflammation of the gall bladder. When that occurs you can have a lot of pain, usually in the upper right abdomen under the rib, sometimes radiating to the upper back, and even

The doctor says

into the right side of the neck. The stone can also lodge in the duct that drains bile from the liver. When this occurs, the bile builds up and the absorbed bile pigment causes jaundice. Of course, if the liver is affected you will have nausea, and this can progress to a fairly complex pattern of symptoms.

ONE DANGER of gallstones, if untreated, is that silent attacks can lead to further damage of the entire network of bile ducts in the liver. The resulting inflammation leads to scarring and damage known as cirrhosis of the liver. Part of the damage may be permanent. Incidentally, as you see, cirrhosis does occur from many other things besides alcohol.

The stones are generally of two types. The pigment in the bile can settle together and form a very hard black-green stone. These are usually small and are often the ones that get stuck in the bile duct and cause obstruction. These can usually be seen directly on an ordinary X ray of the abdomen. The other type is a lump of cholesterol. These stones are clear, and you have to fill the gall bladder with dye to see them. Then you can have a mixture of the two. The cholesterol stones are often quite large.

Do you have to have surgery? Believe me, you can have some hot arguments about that between doctors. It depends a lot on the nature of the stones and the health and age of the patient. Until this year for the vast number of gall bladder patients, the only way to remove stones was surgery — except for the few small ones that passed spontaneously. However, the Mayo Clinic did develop and test a bile substance that can be used to dissolve the cholesterol stones. It doesn't happen overnight.

This form of treatment is undergoing a national study this year to find out how successful it really is and to be sure it is not harmful in any way to the patients. If it is as successful as early tests indicate then those patients with stones mostly of cholesterol may be able to have them removed without surgery. And, that is medical progress. Hopefully an equally promising way to treat the pigment stones will be found also.

Herald opinion

Bicentennial planning should start right here

Right here in the Northwest suburbs — not in Springfield, not in Washington, D.C., but right here — is where we ought to plan for the United States' 200th birthday.

As reported last week by The Herald, local plans are already in progress, for Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Schaumburg have already been recognized as official bicentennial communities. Several other communities are also working towards such recognition.

Our local activity is encouraging for it had seemed for a time that the federal government was going to muscle in and take charge of the entire party. A ponderous national bicentennial commission has been in action for several years, debating such weighty topics as what Eastern city should be the site of the national celebration. When Gerald Ford became President, the apparently well-qualified commission chairman Richard Churman, was fired for no apparent reason. Petty politics, it is feared, is the culprit.

In its own inimitable way, the federal government's overall effort has become a disaster. Ripped by commercial profiteering, hounded by counter-groups and assaulted by political infighting, the federal effort's had little beneficial impact here in the Northwest suburbs.

That's as it should be. We believe that local residents are best equipped to determine how, if at all, to celebrate our nation's 200th birthday, coming up in 1976.

In fact, a community should have a right to reject a bicentennial birthday party, if it chooses. To each village or city, the celebration should be a highly individual matter, for each community has an identity of its own which has grown up during some of the past 200 years.

We think that Des Plaines Fire Capt. David Wolf had the right idea when he explained how his city is planning a grassroots bicentennial:

"These people represent different general interests and different ways of life. They all are dedicated to the principle that Des Plaines is a fine community and we want to develop a really meaningful bicentennial program. Our mandate is to make our citizens aware of the fact that America is one heck of a place to live."

If you want to have a bicentennial bash, Wolf's got the right idea. If you don't, however, that should be your inalienable right. After all, isn't that the American way?

Utility 'charity' unfair

Consumers got kicked in the pocketbook this month, and it happened in the name of charity. Gov. Daniel Walker's signature of HR 2864 overturns an October, 1973 ruling by the Illinois Supreme Court which prohibits Illinois utilities from using their operating expenses rather than profits to pay for charitable contributions.

The court did not rule out corporate generosity. Yet the prospect of shelling out millions of dollars in shareholder profits rather than customer service revenues caused an outcry for a return to the good old days by the utilities. The unhappy result is that consumers will be forced, once again, to pay the tab for charity donations by Commonwealth Edison, Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and other Illinois utilities.

Nobody is knocking the utilities' desire for a "good guy" image or the benefits of the charities they support. What we question is their willingness to spend our service payments rather than profits on image building. We encourage a court test of HB 2864. Let's bring an end to benevolence without representation.

55 m.p.h. alternate urged

I would like to propose an alternative to the uniform nationwide 55 m.p.h. speed limit under which all who travel now suffer. As one who speaks from experience by driving several thousand miles per year on our nation's highways I am convinced that an alternate plan must be established to insure the efficient and safe movement of traffic from point of origin to destination.

The problem now lies in the wide disparity in speeds at which traffic now moves. Those who prefer to obey the law and drive at 55 m.p.h. are constantly being overtaken and passed by other cars and trucks traveling in excess of 70 m.p.h. The sight of a small foreign car being overtaken by a large semi-trailer brings to mind the plight of Jonah being swallowed by the whale. At least at 70 m.p.h. the majority of vehicles traveled at a constant speed and traffic moved more uniformly.

Perhaps we can find a solution to this dilemma by restoring the 70 m.p.h. speed limit on our nation's Interstate highway system only. These modern, limited access highways were built with the intention of providing a safe, efficient avenue of travel for the modern, high speed automobile. I in no way condone speeding and feel that any speed limit should be enforced. The 55 m.p.h. limit, however, is not enforced 90 per cent of the time and this further encourages the many speed violators on our nation's highways to continue to break the law.

The cause of safety would surely be served by retaining the present 55 m.p.h. limit on all secondary roads and city expressways. Many of these older roads were not designed to handle the volume and speed of modern traffic.

This proposal is submitted with considerable awareness for the energy problem. It would not seem logical, though, to assume that a vehicle alternating speeds between 55 and 70 m.p.h. would get any better mileage than a vehicle traveling at a constant 70 m.p.h., not to mention the improved operating efficiency of large trucks at 70 m.p.h. as opposed to 55 m.p.h.

The 55 m.p.h. limit, therefore, has outlived its intended purpose, and I would respectfully ask our elected representatives to re-evaluate their decision to retain a law which the majority of the people oppose, imposed under a dubious crisis by a deposed administration and only randomly and occasionally enforced.

He supports U.N. 'withdrawal'

Since the day of its founding, the United Nations has been hailed as "mankind's last best hope for peace" — yet there has been no peace. Following its hypocritical double standards, the UN has steadfastly refused to condemn Communist aggression, while continually attacking any anti-Communist country that does protect itself.

For example, in December 1966, while Red Chinese troops were murdering families in Tibet, Vietcong guerrillas were liquidating whole villages in South Vietnam and communist border guards were shooting down anyone trying to escape across the Berlin Wall (our State Department has now established diplomatic relations with Communist East Germany) the United Nations declared that tiny Rhodesia was a "threat to international peace." A world-wide blockade was instituted against it. Yet Rhodesia had not attacked its neighbors, murdered none of its own citizens. Its only "crime" was to wish to be independent.

To the United Nations, "peace means absence of resistance to Communism," and for the last 28 years, the UN has worked to promote that "peace" throughout the world. This is just one of many compelling reasons to petition your Senators and Congressmen to "GET US OUT" of the UN.

'Bank service varies'

We would like to congratulate you on the make up and appearance of your new Business and Financial Section, and we look forward to enjoying many more issues of this caliber.

Our attention was drawn to an article headlined, "No Wonder You Wait In Line," which apparently was a publicity release distributed by the AMBI. We noted that they were continuing to compare the number of banking offices per 100,000 residents in Illinois with the number of banking offices per 100,000 residents in New York and California. This comparison has often been made in the past and while numerically correct it is quite misleading.

The writer has not recently made a visit to California to check the facts, but he does make frequent trips to New York City where he has relatives in business and makes specific arrangements to visit various bank facilities and observe them from the customer's point of view. The typical bank in New York is open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. five days a week, or 25 hours. Something of the same obtains in California. Compare this with First Arlington National Bank which is open nine hours a day five days a week and five hours for one day or a total of 50 hours. Obviously, if you are going to handle the same amount of transactions in 25 hours it will be necessary to have twice as many or twice as large facilities.

The more important consideration from the customer's standpoint, however, is the type of service available at the facilities. More than half of the facilities available in New York and California do not have the full range of service and officers available to render any but the most routine kind of transaction decisions. To get a decision on anything other than routine matters, it is necessary to wait several days or make a trip to the main office which may entail the loss of one business day in getting that decision.

From the consumer point of view, the two states referred to have always had higher interest rates than are generally available in Illinois banks. At the present time mortgage loans in California cost 3/4 of one per cent more than they do in Illinois. Consumer type loans in both the states of California and New York generally cost 1 per cent or 1 1/2 per cent annum more.

So, really, we are comparing apples and oranges, and when you know the facts they just aren't comparable.

Lauds research librarian

I think a special word of recognition is in order to the Mount Prospect Public Library, particularly to the research librarians.

I have been working on a research paper on a very rare, medical syndrome over the past summer. Even though the material was not available in the local library, the research librarians helped me find a lot of material through their library exchange programs, passes to medical libraries, etc., all at no expense to me.

A special mention should also be given to Ms. Mabel Laubenthal, who does an excellent job. Even now, while I am back at school (600 miles away), more information keeps coming in all the time.

These women do an excellent job and they should be applauded for it.

Tom Wellman's column

'Political' break-ins?

Chief Editorial Writer

Any man or woman who runs for political office knows that the random craziness of a few "voters" is to be expected.

One candidate recently told Herald reporters that her husband receives obscene phone calls directed at her during the campaign. The bemused husband is recording them; perhaps an album can be marketed to meet campaign expenses.

A year ago, a local candidate in Palatine had his car windows and the windows in his headquarters smashed. Whether that violence was political or merely run-of-the-mill suburban vandalism is an imponderable question.

Public visibility can be a physical hazard, for it brings out the loonies whose tactics include the 4 a.m. phone call, the pellet gun and other off-limits "political" tactics.

But if there were a pattern of logic to such violence, for example, in the present county election, it would be a serious matter, for it could be the result of an organized campaign. Such harassment would become a serious and well-discussed political issue.

There's a disturbing story in this week's Rolling Stone magazine about just such a hypothetical pattern of violence on the national scene. Although Rolling Stone, a political-youth-music magazine, can't always be taken too seriously, this article is disturbing enough to raise questions about the kinds of burglaries which have marked politics for the past few years.

We all, of course, recall the Watergate burglary and the Ellsberg break-in. The inference to be drawn from Robert Fink's article is that there's been much, much more in the way of break-ins, directed against political figures — and that it's all tied back to the Nixon Administration.

Fink, who served as the researcher for Bernstein-Woodward book on Watergate, "All the President's Men," reports that a series of persons and institutions suffered burglaries in the early 1970s. In most cases, it appears the burglars weren't after money, but were pursuing information.

Included on the list are five Chilean diplomats, the New York office of the NAACP Defense Fund, a Democrat-connected law firm and the home of Democrat Robert Strauss, newsmen Dan Rather, Marvin Kalb and Tad Szulc, and a variety of other institutions.

In numerous cases, valuables were overlooked but information — contributor's lists, files, etc. — was either examined or missing.

Fink also points to a "cluster" of burglaries, occurring within a very short period of time in a limited area. For example, he cites three burglaries in Washington, D.C., between July 20 and July 24, 1973 of prominent anti-Nixon organizations.

The inference about the source of the burglaries is obvious: Nixon's henchmen (the Liddys and the Hunts) could have been running wild, perhaps with the help of the CIA, to burglarize to obtain information.

At any rate, the idea should not be dismissed as the hair-brained scheme of a third-rate music magazine, for Fink's lists of victims is both impressive and disturbing.

Perhaps this tag-end to Watergate will only bore most of us, but it does seem as if it shouldn't be discarded out of hand. The departure of Richard Nixon doesn't remove the institutional problems which allowed Nixon and his men to get away with what they did.

What's needed is a thorough government study to determine if this is random craziness or whether a pattern exists, and, further, if criminal charges should be filed. Perhaps, too, we ought to consider the freedom which our governmental "security" organizations are allowed, if they are found at fault here.

Watergate, in this area, has produced some good. Fink's article, three years ago, would have been dismissed as the ravings of a deranged journalist. Today, his charges about political violence will be taken a bit more seriously.

WHY GO TO AN ALL-GIRL Catholic high school? The students at Sacred Heart of Mary in Rolling Meadows feel that their school has freedom, warmth and closeness. They are discussing the topic as part of a self-evaluation of the school. Administrators and faculty meet with students to get their feedback.

by DOROTHY OLIVER

"In public schools you have to get hall passes, tardy slips — you even have to get permission to go to the bathroom. It's like kindergarten," laughed a tall slender girl in torn jeans and holey gym shoes.

She sat in a circle with nine of her peers discussing her reasons for choosing to attend Sacred Heart of Mary, a Catholic girls' school in Rolling Meadows, instead of public high school.

Her classmates, who have sat in small circles with faculty members, dissecting the subject for several weeks, are participating in an evaluation of the high school.

THEIR FEEDBACK is telling the Sacred Heart administration whether the school is living up to its goals and philosophy, why the students are there, whether programs are working, and what may need change.

And with the exception of a few dissenting voices, the feedback is good.

The young women talked of the freedom at "Heart," their term for the school. They talked of the close relationships they have formed with teachers and classmates, the feeling of being "treated your age," and the warmth that exists in the Heart community.

Judy Wampach, associate principal/academics, who conducted discussion groups with juniors and seniors, wasn't surprised with the positive comments from the students.

"If kids really don't want to come, parents probably won't pay the $550 to send them here," she said. At the same time,

SACRED HEART OF MARY senior Nancy Kramer pauses to consider her reasons for choosing the all-girl parochial school instead of Rolling Meadows High School across the street.

have a sister there but I wanted to go here," she said. "Here the kids are so friendly and you're even on a first-name basis with the teacher. I love it."

Sacred Heart loses just a handful of dissatisfied students each year.

THE FREEDOM students talk about is the result of what administrators call "flexible scheduling" and a philosophy that students should take responsibility for their own education.

The day is divided into 20-minute sessions, or mods. Classes, which may run anywhere from one to three mods, are scheduled according to the convenience of student and teachers and generally do not meet every day. Most students have several sessions a day open and use their time as they choose.

"Here they say you're mature, you can make your own decisions, choose your own thing," said senior Mary Beth McCabe.

"I think Heart prepares you more for life," added classmate Colleen Johnson. "In public school people are always telling you what to do. Here you want to do it."

"I've talked to lots of kids at (High School Dist.) 211 and noticed they don't teach you anything about being on your own," said junior Ann Sylvester. "Once I leave Heart I'm going to have so much discipline."

"Kids in public schools are never left on their own," she continued. "Bells ring, you need passes for everything, you're always told what to do."

THE FREEDOM was one of the key things we heard the kids talk about," Miss Wampach said later. "They liked the physical structure of the schedule and that they were made to feel responsible for their own learning."

"There are students who misuse their freedom," she added. "Some kids said that as freshmen and sophomores they didn't use their free time. It's something you have to learn to do."

"We as faculty are coming to know how to use the schedule better. Teachers are planning courses, better utilizing and making more demands on students' free time," she added.

There are no more uniforms at Sacred Heart, the library is noisy, some students are allowed to smoke in the cafeteria with their parents' permission, and every 20 minutes students fill the hall.

"Because the school is smaller (575 students) and has teachers who care about the kids, it allows us to trust them more. We trust them because we know them," Miss Wampach said.

"SACRED HEART IS a people-oriented community," added Principal Gerald Giles. "When we interview teachers we look for people who are 'likable.'"

Many students, freshmen through seniors, commented that teachers are always available to talk about academic and personal problems.

"The faculty has a lot to do with the way this school is," said Miss Sylvester. "They are what makes the difference. Teachers are willing to give up their free time if you need them."

"I like the smallness of Heart. Everybody just works together and if you need help, teachers and kids will help you," said another junior, Kathy Lynch.

"It's really a joint venture," added Ann referring to the written philosophy of the school. "I can't imagine anyone

LIN JARVIS, a junior high school teacher from Winnetka, was one of several square dance callers.

'It's no work—it's relaxing'

The night the coyote caller came...

COUPLES PROMENADED two by two to the country-Western strains of square dance music last week at Woodfield Shopping Center. The Metropolitan Assn. of Square Dancers sponsored the weeklong festival in honor of National Square Dance Week. Area dance callers donated their time.

EVEN THE YOUNG got into the act. Two-year-old Luranar Sangiacomo didn't even need a partner.

by STIRLING MORITA

It's a long way from Sebring, Fla., to Schaumburg, but a couple of elderly "gypsies" were hoofing it with Chicago-land square dancers in front of intrigued shoppers at Woodfield Shopping Center.

The Bert Nydens, a pair of mobile, retired Floridians, every May pack their camper and square dance their way through the Midwest before heading for warmer climes in October.

Spectators, arms folded, slight grins plastered on their faces, watched the Nydens join members of the North Shore Squares of Wilmette in the mall section outside Marshall Field and Co.

IT WAS PART of the nightly, weeklong festivities to celebrate National Square Dance Week. The red-checked skirts were swirling, and the western-style ties flying in the dances sponsored by the Metropolitan Assn. of Square Dancers.

"It's no hard work," said the 75-year-old Nyden, wiping beads of perspiration from the bridge of his nose. "It's relaxing."

The Nydens had been visiting friends in Schaumburg when they heard about the free dances at the shopping center. When Mrs. Nyden walked through the crowded mall, in her bright-blue, full-skirted dress, a young girl pointed at her and said, "Well, Mom, there goes another one of them."

White crinoline slips rising with a turn of the waist, the quick shuffle, the arm-in-arm promenading and the rhythmic, mellow tones of the caller were presented to give the urbanite a semblance of what square dancing is about, said Bill Bublitz, a director for MASD.

"They can see people enjoying themselves just by looking," said Bublitz, 2203 Martin Ln., Rolling Meadows. "People just don't realize how big square dancing is. You've got to see it and try it before you can make up your mind."

BUBLITZ SAID September is the month when square dancing lessons begin and that information in leaflet form was available at a nearby table.

Mrs. Bublitz said square dancers come in all ages and that most people take it up for "good exercise" or a form of recreation. Square dancing is not "barn dancing" with the fiddles and the "Virginia reel," she emphasized.

"We have made so many wonderful friends from it (square dancing)," she added.

The Bublitzes, who have been square dancing for about four years, spend four evenings a week dancing. Mrs. Bublitz said they got started when she saw an ad for square dance lessons.

"She pestered me for two years, and I said I didn't want to square dance," Bublitz recalled. "Now, you can't get me away from it."

Bublitz said area callers were donating their services for the dances. He added that callers are of all nationalities. A Japanese caller worked last week, and he interchanged English with a few Japanese words, Bublitz said.

ANOTHER 45-R.P.M. plopped down on the turntable, and caller Lin Jarvis of Winnetka went into his smooth, Kentucky-drawl call.

Jarvis, a junior high school teacher on the North Shore, got his start about four years ago when a woman who taught the dance retired, and he decided he wanted to try it.

A caller has to have a good singing voice, a sense of rhythm, but importantly the smarties to be able to put together and remember different dance patterns and calls, he said. The only way to learn the art of calling is to be schooled by a veteran caller, and a beginner has to establish a reputation before getting a club.

Practice is essential, he said, adding he practices calling every night.

Jarvis slowed the tempo of "Bad, Bad LeRoy Brown" to his style, singing into a lightly grasped microphone — with a name tag on his shirt — "Chief Coyote Howler."

walking down the halls and not seeing that."

STUDENTS WERE specifically questioned about the religious teachings of the school. Miss Wampach explained the philosophy by saying, "We say we don't believe religious faith can be pressed on you, that it is your experience. Have you or your parents questioned that or not liked that?"

Many students pointed out the religious emphasis was not so much on being a "Catholic" as being a "Christian."

Several objected to seeing the word "Christian" used so much in the philosophy and goals statement. "It's not like we're always told to do Christian things," said one. "It's more like we do things that are good or bad."

"In grade school you just sat there and didn't believe what they were saying," said another. "Here you talk about what you believe about your own life."

THE SELF-EVALUATION of the school will continue throughout the year. A questionnaire is being prepared now on why students are there and if they'd like to stay or leave.

If the response to the discussion groups is indicative, students will overwhelmingly talk of staying.

"I feel sorry for someone who comes here and doesn't like it," said Miss Sylvester. "They must feel so alone. And they miss out on so much."

Linda Hayes champions their economic worth

by MONICA WILCH PERIN

Social Security for married women who work "only" as housewives and mothers — that's one of the recommendations made by an Arlington Heights woman to the American Association of University Women.

Linda Hayes, of 3216 N. Volz Dr., recently completed a year-long research project on the legal standing of non-working married women in Illinois. Mrs. Hayes conducted her study with a $750 grant from the American Association of University Women.

She was one of 12 AAUW women throughout the nation whose research proposals were selected to be funded by the grants. It was the first time grants had been awarded by AAUW for "non-academic" projects.

The Social Security proposal was one of two final recommendations Mrs. Hayes made to AAUW's education foundation in Washington, D.C., at the conclusion of her study.

Her second recommendation was for a tax credit for volunteer work.

The proposals were not presented in detailed form — Mrs. Hayes leaves it to the lawmakers in Congress to figure out specifically how such provisions might work. But, she says, "we have to recognize that a woman at home is making an economic contribution."

The soft-spoken mother of two is not anxious to see a dollar exchange. "I don't want my husband to come home and pay me for doing the housework," she says. Nevertheless, she observes, in our society we have little choice in evaluating and rewarding services except to assign a dollar value.

The tax break and Social Security participation — both contributing and benefitting as an individual — would help to recognize the work done by married women at home, Mrs. Hayes believes.

A 1958 GRADUATE of Butler University in Indianapolis, Mrs. Hayes majored in finance and worked in the auditing department of a finance company before her marriage to husband Jack. She has not worked professionally since then, although she has been active in PTA and other volunteer organizations.

Against the backdrop of her own life, Mrs. Hayes began wondering, as the women's lib movement grew, just how it all affected her and other women in her position.

Specifically, she wondered whether it was true that married women would lose legal protection under the Equal Rights Amendment. This was the question she submitted to the AAUW.

With the grant in hand, Mrs. Hayes began spending her days at the law library in the Chicago Civic Center, and at the Arlington Heights Public Library, researching the Illinois statutes.

One of the things she learned was that, contrary to losing protection, "women already have a legal responsibility toward the family." Mothers as well as fathers are legally responsible for their children, Mrs. Hayes found, and, while husbands are to a degree responsible for the support of their wives, "if the husband is in need, the wife is legally responsible for him."

"I found I had to go into common law," Mrs. Hayes continued, "because it prevails unless a statute gives you a right. And it was quite a shock to find out that under common law I didn't exist as a person!" Under common law, she explained, "a woman ceases to exist legally when she gets married."

However, in Illinois "women are in pretty good shape," Mrs. Hayes believes, since the new Illinois Constitution contains an equal rights clause prohibiting discrimination on any basis.

IN ADDITION, statutes already on the books in Illinois give women the right to sue and be sued, the right to own property, the right to contract, the right to invest, the right to control their own earnings — "what you normally would assume a person would have; inalienable rights," concludes Mrs. Hayes.

Now, as a staff member of the Illinois Commission on the status of Women, Mrs. Hayes is going through all the statutes again to find all those that refer to males or females in specific terms, and to change them to neuter wording.

Some of these changes have already been considered by the legislature, under the sponsorship of Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights. Some are simple matters, others get more complicated — and more controversial.

"We have to recognize that many of these statutes are quite old," points out Mrs. Hayes. "They were written when women didn't work, and in many cases the change amounts to extending protection to males." This is true, for example, in statutes providing certain benefits to "widows."

In the future, Mrs. Hayes would like to see studies like hers done on the statutes of all 50 states. She said she started to look at the laws in some other states, and quickly found that women's rights are "radically different" in each state.

GREATER APPRECIATION of older female Americans is the goal of Tish Sommers, coordinator of the National Organization for Women Task Force on Older Women.

She fights cause of older women

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

At some point in early adulthood human males and females try out expressions before the bathroom mirror.

They knit eyebrows and make a stern looking mouth. They try to look older.

Most everyone over 30 has been to that place. Most everyone under 30 will get to it sooner or later.

Tish Sommers of Oakland, Calif., would carry the drama before the bathroom mirror further. As she put it in an interview:

"I look forward to the time when we can merchandise a cosmetic line to make youth look older."

"A special crow's foot pencil, the silver bleaches, the stick to make those delicious brown spots on the hands."

"EYELINER UNDER the eye for that sexy mature look."

Mrs. Sommers only partly had her tongue-in-cheek. As coordinator of National Organization for Women Task Force on Older Women she aims to improve appreciation of and the image of older female Americans.

"Let's celebrate age rather than deny it," she said.

Petite, vivacious and moving like a college coed, Mrs. Sommers "came out on my 59th birthday."

"Telling your age," she said, "is very important."

For her 60th birthday this year Mrs. Sommers bought a three-wheel bike — the kind seen in pictures of retirement villages.

"I'm riding it up and down the hills in Berkeley."

SHE CAN RIDE a two-wheeler. She's using the "aging" symbol bike to poke fun at the persons and institutions in society who belittle aging Americans are best separated from the mainstream.

Mrs. Sommers describes herself as a retired housewife. She is the author of "Not So Helpless Female" (McKay) and a founder and chairman of the board of Women's Action Training Center in Oakland.

"The whole age question," she said, "is an older woman's problem. Basically the older poor are the older widows."

"At first most of us don't recognize age discrimination when it hits us," Mrs. Sommers said.

"There's this feminist poster of Golda Meir, with the caption — But Can She Type?"

"The ironic thing is that if she could type 100 words a minute, she'd still have a hard time getting a job. She's too old."

The Task Force on Older Women, at the NOW national convention, resolved to:

- Affirm the positive values that maturity brings and to combat ageism in its many forms.

- Support more equitable Social Security for women.

- Recognize and encourage as many choices for older women as for any others in housing, in lifestyle, in sex, in education, in recreation.

- Demand government-funded programs providing decent jobs for older women to replace women now exploited as volunteers.

- Work for a more humane health delivery system that will value a person's well-being at any age.

"The main problem of the aged lies not with ourselves but in a society that allocates persons in the prime to the junk heap. We must become angry enough to cry:

"I will not be scrapped. I have a third of my life to go!"

(United Press International)

Be lavish in your use of fragrance

One business little affected by the ups and downs of the national economy is the fragrance business. We can skip on clothes and entertainment because they are major expenditures, but pampering with fragrance won't wreck our bank balances and it sure gives a lift to the personality.

Frenchmen say American women fail to use enough fragrance. They stress that although it shouldn't be poured on, it should not be applied in the morning and then expected to last all day. Fragrance must be reapplied.

Also, it shouldn't be relegated to special occasions. Scent, according to the French, is a part of your wardrobe and personality.

No matter what the French say, caution is vogue for scent in the States. Everyone has known, at one time, a woman (or man) who smells so strongly of perfume, she/he may as well have taken a bath in it. That's not the effect anyone wants. A notice me, not my perfume reaction would fit the American woman better.

THERE ARE MORE than 300 distinct scents on the market today. Much research goes into new scents. After interviewing cross-sections of women, chemists go to work on formulas to meet the trends. Their formulas are as much a secret as a Swiss bank account.

Women in Chicago, according to a Women's Wear Daily survey, prefer, in order:

1. Youth Dew
2. Chanel No. 5
3. L'Air du Temps
4. Intimate
5. White Shoulders

Also making a big splash in the Windy City are Cachet, Norell, Shalimar and Emeraude.

A vigorous but not aggressive scent is what most women are after — a fragrance they can identify with, hence the move toward fruit fragrances and musk. After all, smelling good is associated with cleanliness and social success in America.

TRY PERFUME behind your knees and inside elbows as well as on neck and wrists. Apply after your bath when pores are open. When you go outside pores close, locking in the scent, and will re-open to wrap you in fragrance when you go indoors again.

Add a drop of your favorite perfume to your bathwater. Or, stash away a cotton ball scented with a drop of perfume under the shelf lining of your closet or bureau where you keep your lingerie or sweaters. Put it on a lightbulb or in an unscented candle — the heat slowly releases the scent, just as your skin does. It adds a bit of you to the room.

One good man all she needed

I thought I had just got home free. Today I planned to hook up our newly moved washer and dryer all by myself. Too many times I have called service men to do it only to find that one man couldn't do the whole job.

"Oh I can't do THAT, m'am" was always the reply to my request. "You'll have to call a (gas man), (plumber), (electrician)." And, of course, I would wind up having to call all three.

I could never understand it. To my way of thinking, anyone with a pliers, wrench and a screwdriver and a little bit of know-how ought to be able to do anything.

Well, this time, after watching all those service maneuvers during our past household moves, I decided to do it myself. I must admit, though, that this decision was only by default. My husband was out of town. Otherwise I would have told him how to do it.

THE WASHER was no problem once I found the tools packed away in a box marked "Bathroom Miscellaneous." (I don't blame the packers for this. The tools probably were left in the bathroom.)

I hooked up the hoses, took the immobilizing block from the tub, attached the grounding wire, leveled the machine and plugged it in. Having done all these I was quite proud of myself, especially since there was only one part left over. It was a hose clamp, and I can't imagine where it goes, but I presume that someday I'll find out.

One look at the dryer told me I needed a longer flexible pipe for gas and more flexible exhaust tube. I thought getting these would be no problem until I got to the hardware store.

Now, hardware store men come in two categories: those who are super polite and helpful and those for whom the term "male chauvinist pig" is much too kind. I drew the second.

WE GOT INTO an argument when he wanted to sell me four feet of exhaust tube when I wanted only two. I intended to hook the two feet onto the old tube I already had. He told me it wouldn't work.

Of course, it worked. However, I arrived home extremely annoyed. Here I was, doing this work myself to avoid the aggravation of dealing with service men when I had to deal with this character.

I was muttering these complaints to myself while standing on the washer and hooking up the dryer exhaust tube to the outside vent.

Then I saw it. Staring at me from a crack between the floor supports by my left hand was the biggest hairiest spider I have ever seen outside of captivity.

AS SOON AS THE service man came up from the basement, he handed me his bill shaking his head.

"I'm sorry I have to charge you for this, lady. That job was almost done. You could have finished it yourself. Want to see all there is to it?"

I politely declined and paid him. Then, as I watched him pull out of the driveway, I wondered if before he got away, I should ask him to throw in a load of wash.

New test for cancer now given at Portes Center

A new test for determining possible breast abnormalities in women is now being given at the George and Anna Portes Cancer Prevention Center, 33 W. Huron St., Chicago.

The center starts operation of its new thermographic unit tomorrow, according to Evelyn Weltman, president of the health screening facility.

The "hot spot" test will be routinely offered to all female examinees as part of the total health screening exam, she said.

Dr. Angelo P. Creticos, medical director, said thermography is painless, rapid and totally free of after effects. The technique measures the amount of heat emitted by a part of the body, in this case the breast, to detect abnormal growths, he explained.

While the thermoscope will pick up abnormal heat emissions, a positive thermogram does not necessarily mean the area is seriously involved, he emphasized. It is an aid in picking out those who need further study, and the Portes Cancer Center offers xeroradiography (x-ray of the breast) for women who need this additional testing, he added.

The center can process up to 100 persons a day. Its goal is to add evening and Saturday hours so it can serve a maximum of 30,000 persons a year. This year it expects to serve 22,000.

Foibles of the less familiar fibers

Knowing the special quirks of some of the fabrics you launder helps in giving them the correct treatment. Try to keep hangtags with laundering directions. Identify them by writing owner's name and type of garment on the tag as: Dad's red plaid shirt; Anne's pink dress, etc.

This chart from the New York State College of Human Ecology at Cornell will help fill you in on the foibles of some of the less familiar fibers.

FIBER CHARACTERISTICS AFFECTING LAUNDERING

Fiber facts
Wool: Agitation shrinks and felts hot, wet fibers. Alkali or chlorine bleach weakens fibers.

Washing care
Use cool water with some agitation or warm water without agitation. Use light-duty detergent or soap and no chlorine bleach.

Fiber facts
Perspiration and chlorine bleach weaken fibers.

Washing care

Fiber facts
Oily soils are difficult to remove. Harsh agitation causes pills and slippage. White nylon absorbs colors easily.

Washing care
Rub detergent on soiled places before washing. Use gentle agitation; turn garments inside out to minimize pilling during washing; and place delicate items in net bag.

Wash white garments with other whites only. Acetate, triacetate:

Fiber facts
Fibers are fairly weak when wet. Oily spots are difficult to remove. Alkali or heat may cause damage.

Washing care
Handle gently to avoid stretching or tearing. Pretreat soiled places with detergent or soap. Wash with a light-duty product. Dry at low temperature.

Look lively

Inattention is, perhaps, the greatest cause of accidents when driving in bumper-to-bumper traffic, say auto experts at Boron Oil Co. That's the time to avoid becoming involved in conversation or fiddling with the buttons on the dashboard.

Wrap glasses

Add a decorative touch to drinking glasses for party punch. Especially colorful for glasses: chenille pipe cleaners. Wrap around glasses from the bottom up to middle or top. The wrapping also insulates the drink a bit and keeps the glass from slipping due to moisture produced by condensation. Arts and crafts stores stock the pipe cleaner. So do FIESTA '74 decorations already abound for the 11th annual ball planned by Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. Festivities Saturday will include cocktails, dinner and dancing at Itasca Country Club.

Linda Simon in Wisconsin as bride

Linda Lee Simon of Arlington Heights and Bradley David Carlson, a former Mount Prospect resident, were married Sept. 7 in the First Presbyterian Church, Arlington.

The bridegroom and his family, the Roy M. Carlsons, now make their home in Reedsburg, Wis., where Bradley is associated with his father in the Carlson Pontiac-Cadillac Agency.

Linda is the daughter of the Howard A. Simons of 223 S. Kennicott. She is a '74 graduate of Arlington High School and has been working at Lytton's at Woodfield.

After a 10-day honeymoon in Miami Beach, the newlyweds are making their home in Reedsburg and Linda is attending the University of Wisconsin at Baraboo.

Bradley graduated from Forest View High School in 1971 and then from Northwood Institute, Midland, Mich.

TWO SISTERS OF the bride and two of the groom's were in the wedding party. Nancy Simon was maid of honor; Carol Simon, La Vinda Carlson and Shelly Rieder were bridesmaids, along with Linda's friend, Janice Till, Rolling Meadows.

Joseph Keyzer, Rolling Meadows, was Bradley's best man, with Michael Nelson, Michael Benek and Daniel Delise, all of Rolling Meadows, and Michael Rieder, New York City, as groomsmen.

For the candlelight nuptials the bride wore a white organza dress with a wide band of scalloped Chantilly lace dotted with sequins at the high neckline, on the long bishop sleeves and forming a double panel on the skirt front. Her full-length mantilla veil was also edged in lace.

Phalaenopsis orchids centered the bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath carried by the bride for the double ring rites.

TO COMPLETE THE picture, Linda carried a handkerchief from the groom's grandmother as "something old," a wrist watch from the groom as new, diamond earrings from a friend as borrowed, and a turquoise and diamond ring from her maternal grandmother as blue.

Her maid of honor's gown was in yellow polyester knit, halter styled with matching jacket. She wore a yellow ruffled picture hat and carried a nosegay of Abbey roses, white daisies and apricot baby's breath, all tied with apricot ribbons.

The four bridesmaids' gowns and hats were in apricot, styled exactly as the maid of honor's, and their bouquets were of Abbey roses, white daisies and yellow baby's breath.

The wedding reception was held at Rolling Green Country Club.

Best cook tomatoes but not green peppers for freezing

Dear Dorothy: We are going to have an abundance of tomatoes and green peppers and would like simple recipes for putting them up. Can tomatoes be made into juice and frozen? And if the peppers are frozen in strips, can they be used on sandwiches or in salads the same as when fresh? — Charles L. Bartmann

Yes to both questions. While some freeze tomatoes whole, it is not recommended by the experts (because they fall apart when thawed). You can stew them by removing the stem ends, peeling and quartering, then covering and cooking until tender (10 to 20 minutes). Place pan containing tomatoes in cold water to cool. Pack in freezable containers, allowing head space. Tomato juice can be prepared the same way, simmered five to ten minutes, then pressed through a sieve, poured into freezable containers, again leaving head space.

Green peppers, as far as I know, are the only vegetable that need not be blanched for freezing. Just wash, cut out stems, remove seeds, cut into strips or pieces, then pack in containers.

Dear Dorothy: Is it true one shouldn't sleep in a room that has several house plants? — Mrs. J. R. Ruder

The homeline

by Dorothy Ritz

It's wild rumor with no basis in fact. It started with the idea that plants give off carbon dioxide. Actually, it's the other way around. Plants absorb carbon dioxide and give off oxygen.

Dear Dorothy: Did you know baking soda is also good for cat spray? Simply pour it on thickly and leave until it is dry; then vacuum. I know it works. Sometimes I use a second application just to make sure. — Mildred Steiger

I'm surprised. This odor is supposed to be not only one of the worst — but fairly permanent.

Is New York ready for Tom Snyder?

NEW YORK — Tom Snyder, NBC's answer to Howard Cosell, is coming to New York, and his arrival may signal some interesting developments in broadcastland, industry sources believe.

Snyder, host of "Tomorrow" and the afternoon anchorman of KNBC-TV in Los Angeles, is highly regarded by some elements of the NBC brass while others find his personality and style too abrasive.

During the tryouts for the co-host of the "Today" show, Snyder annoyed some members of the morning show by his "Mr. Big" attitude.

"He's a showboat," said one industry source. "A holdup."

ANOTHER SOURCE called the decision to bring Snyder to New York a "victory for the Burbank Mafia." Burbank is where the NBC entertainment section is headquartered. NBC News is in New York. The anti-Snyder men "think he is an entertainer, not a newsmen," the source said.

A source at WNBC-TV, where Snyder will replace Jim Hartz as anchorman of the early-edition NewsCenter 4, said the 38-year-old Snyder "was stuffed down our throats." Hartz is now co-host of "Today."

Snyder's style also apparently is disliked by other members of the electronic press. For instance, CBS News president Richard Salant has objected to his corspondents appearing on "Tomorrow," the NBC network's late-night night offering for insomniacs who stay up after Johnny Carson goes off.

Salant told one interviewer: "I just don't think that the 'Tomorrow' show is the type of program I want my journalists to go on. Everytime I look at that show, they got looks . . . It's tabloid sensationalism and that's not the kind of framework in which I like to see my people."

NEVERTHELESS, Snyder is bringing "Tomorrow" to New York Dec. 3. In addition to anchoring at WNBC-TV, he will jump into the Sunday evening network news show, replacing Channel 5's Floyd Kalber.

These moves are intriguing. In Los Angeles, KNBC's two-hour news show with Snyder is No. 1. But how will he do in New York, where WNBC has been No. 3 for years? How will KNBC do without Snyder?

However, the move shows that NBC is dedicated to trying to make WNBC's new two-hour show a winner and this could give NBC's John Chancellor the edge over CBS's Walter Cronkite. CBS is in the lead, but NBC has been challenging. A stronger showing at WNBC could help Chancellor. The thinking is that viewers don't like to switch channels.

THEN TOO, Snyder's Sunday post on the network puts him on a par with White House correspondent Tom Brokaw, who does the NBC Saturday evening news.

Brokaw is highly regarded by newsmen and was in the lead for the "Today" show co-host slot, but when he reportedly refused to do commercials, he was dropped.

Some industry sources have speculated that Brokaw might eventually join Chancellor as a coanchorman of the network news show. But now Snyder is in town and the situation might have changed. (United Press International)

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

It's tough to top 7-notrump

Oswald: "The hands for the nationwide Olympiad fund game were quite interesting this year. We can use them to illustrate a lot of points in bidding and play."

Jim: "Hand seven was an East-West hand but we will shift all hands to North-South for the column. Seven notrump makes easily unless East has four diamonds to the jack and hence seven notrump is the proper contract. How to bid it is another matter, and those pairs who reached six notrump undoubtedly had better than average scores."

Oswald: "The bidding in the box shows how we would get there. The first key bid is South's response of three clubs. The game is match points and he wants to make sure that when he does bid spades North will know it is just a four-card suit."

Jim: "North's three-diamond, four-club and four-spade bids are also important. They make it possible for South to go into Blackwood and to bid seven notrump after North shows an ace and two kings. The earlier bids by North have shown the two kings he holds are the right kings."

Want Ads are as old as America!

As the nation approaches its 200th birthday, much is being said and written about the make-up of our heritage. Reliable historians tell us that the want ad was born of public demand. We thought you'd be interested in some of the most famous want ads in the history of classified:

"WANTED. A Steward for the Household of the PRESIDENT of the UNITED STATES. Any person well qualified for, and willing to act in this capacity, may learn particulars by inquiring at the President's house: Philad: Feb. 25."

Placed by George Washington

"WATCHMAKER with references who can furnish tools. State age, experience and salary required. T39 Daily News."

Placed by Richard Sears and answered by Alvah Roebuck.

"To mothers of retarded children, ages 4 to 8. Are you interested in helping to start a day nursery for your children? Box XX."

From the ten parents who first met in response to this ad, The National Association for Retarded Children came into being.

"ARTIST. Cartoon and wash drawings. First-class man. Steady. Kansas City Slide Co. 1015 Central."

Answered by Walt Disney in obtaining his first cartooning job.

This unique democratic institution - the Want Ad — serves more people than any other advertising medium, helping to sell, find jobs, find employees, find lost dogs - or lost relatives - and performs a host of other people to people services.

Lions awesome in 48-7 rout of Notre Dame

Walsh passing show hits Dons with six touchdowns

by MIKE KLEIN

Here come the Lions! Here come the Lions!

Step aside for the life you save will be your own.

They're ruined their own secret. St. Viator's football Lions are one bunch of mean dudes. As for quarterback Bobby Walsh, new kid with the ball, are six TD passes enough for your money?

That's how many Walsh tossed . . . half a dozen TD passes . . . Friday evening as the Lions feasted upon Notre Dame, 48-7, in monstrous fashion, breaking a one touchdown tie that existed two minutes before halftime.

At that juncture, Walsh lay decked out at midfield, thanks to Brian Burke's blitz. It seemed a good moment for Notre Dame, an apparent 7-7 intermission tie ensued.

Head coach Jim Lynne, who smokes too many cigarettes, rushed off as Viator defensive coordinator Wayne Fiedler screamed at his men: "You should be ashamed! They get our quarterback and you can't get theirs. You should be ashamed!"

Walsh had his air knocked out and missed one play as Pat Rooney handed to Joe Littwin for two yards. Then with Burke again in pursuit, Walsh unloaded a 28-yard scoring strike to halfback John Breen. It was 14-7 at 1:04. Here come the Lions!

Joe Sheets fumbled Mark Selvig's kick-off and Matt Hower recovered for Viator on Notre Dame's 31. Bingo, in one play Walsh threw to halfback Jack Gracheck for the entire distance.

Twice within 24 seconds Walsh penetrated the Dons' flimsy pass defense. St. Viator powered ahead, 21-7. Notre Dame was dead. Here come the Lions!

The barrage never ceased. Walsh drilled third quarter TD passes to Breen, 20 and two yards, plus Pat Bucaro for 33 yards. It was Walsh-to-Bucaro, a nifty 61-yard effort, that gave the Lions a 7-0 first period lead.

A seventh touchdown pass, Walsh-to-Littwin for two yards, was nullified late in the game when Viator was caught with an ineligible receiver downfield.

Walsh completed 13-of-18 for 284 yards. He had tremendous success splitting the seams to halfback Breen and Bucaro who got extensive time at wide receiver.

"They were playing a deep zone which gives our guys all kinds of space," said Lynne. "Then they're playing two linebackers up to contain Walsh on the run. So all you've got to do is bring a back out and he's open every time."

Viator's original game plan called for off-tackle running. But it didn't work as the Dons pinched hard and shut off the gains. "We spun our wheels that first quarter until we found their weakness," Lynne said. "Sometimes we insist too long on things that aren't there."

Bucaro and Breen evenly divided 10 Walsh pass completions, Bucaro leading in total yardage, 118-82. Bucaro scored 12 points, and Breen 18. Rooney had two

Forest View survives South Division showdown, 17-7

THE OL' SOUTHPAW. Jim Petran, dazzled the Elk Grove Grizzlies with his passing artistry Friday night while leading his Forest View Falcons to their fourth straight victory of the season, 17-7. Petran completed nine passes for 106 yards and ran for another 25. Here he gets some protection from Bill Jones (65).

Falcons push record to 4-0 with conquest of Elk Grove

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

"Yeah, I'll say it," Fred Lussow stated over the howl of the Forest View dressing room, "we're a better team. Let's let the score speak for itself."

And what the score had to say was Forest View 17, Elk Grove 7 in a game that left the Falcons as clear and present heavies of the MSL South Division Friday night.

"We made the big play when we had to, we got the important first downs, we scored first. We contained their offense and moved the ball against them. But," Lussow continued, "they're a good team. They're quite a bit bigger than they're listed on the their program. Schnake's been kind of hiding in the bushes about that."

Don Schnake, the Elk Grove head coach who seemed to have his tales of woe borne out Friday night, was reluctant to comment on the outcome.

"We got beat by a good team," he said. "But the less said by us the better. They won the ballgame so they should be doing all the talking."

Much of the credit for the Falcons' victory, and blame for the Grizzlies' defeat, can go to the fact that Forest View had a passing offense and Elk Grove did not until they tried one out of sheer desperation.

"I wouldn't say Elk Grove is predictable," Lussow said. "They run most of the time but they can throw, too. They might pass three times in a game and score twice. Just knowing that they can throw is enough to keep you loose."

"I know from seeing (Tom) Allen throw there in the fourth quarter that he's a fine passer. Much better than we expected."

Yet Elk Grove didn't attempt a pass until the final period when they were in a hole. They were able to move the ball on the ground against the Falcons, chewing out 179 yards on the ground. Allen completed three passes for 40 yards.

Forest View exhibited a varied offense throughout the evening, opening their first offensive series with a down and out pass from Jim Petran to Bob Strasser that went for 14 yards. Following five running plays Petran went back to the air to keep the drive alive and hit Neil Schmidt on a curl pattern for 11 yards.

Schmidt, who hung onto five passes in heavy defensive traffic for 56 yards, was reluctant to admit Elk Grove had put the clamps on the Falcon passing game in the second half.

"We were trying to go deep on them," Schmidt said, "and as soon as I'd take two steps they'd drop back very quickly and cut that off. So we went to the hooks and under routes. We didn't even try to throw in the fourth quarter and that was when they were double teaming me."

"Jim was really laying that ball in there, though."

Petran moved the Falcons steadily on that first drive, mixing the plays well and testing the Elk Grove line with running backs Dave Matzi, Joe Di Fatta and Dave Ennes. Petran pushed over the touchdown himself from the one yard line but the drive was sustained by the passing.

"We felt they were vulnerable to the pass," Lussow said. "We probably should've kept passing all night until they showed us they could stop it. They were very tough on the line of scrimmage though and put the most pressure on us we've had all season. Petran got sacked tonight and that's the first time that's happened this year."

Allen scored himself dropping back to pass, seeing an opening and scampering in from the four yard line.

In the second half Forest View's defense started to get rough with the Grizzlies, led by linebacker George Bregar. In the third quarter Elk Grove's running game suddenly came to a halt and when a 40-yard field goal by Greg Jacobs put the Falcons ahead late in the third quarter the Grizzlies had to decide whether to

Hersey still perfect in North's scramble

by PAUL LOGAN

"Take away the first and last plays. . . Would you do that for me in the paper?" said Fremd head football coach Joe Samojedny, still showing that he had a sense of humor.

His comment while en route to the team bus Friday night referred to hosting Hersey's pass plays. Had they not been successful, Samojedny might have had a smile on his face.

Scott Topczewski, Hersey's fine junior quarterback, was the author of both plays. His touchdown tosses at the beginning and end of the game helped contribute 14 of the Huskies' points. The final score was 28-8.

Coming into the North Division contest of the Mid-Suburban League, Fremd was 0-3 and Hersey 2-1. The Huskies were heavily favored, especially coming off their 27-0 victory over Prospect. Fremd had lost to Prospect earlier, 14-8.

"We played football . . . not with any great emotion," admitted Joe Gliwa, Hersey's head coach. "We needed a game like this to shake 'em up a bit."

Gliwa said that Hersey's first play sort of dictated the tempo. The Huskies kicked off and recovered a fumble. On the play action pass that followed, Topczewski found Jeff Forster in the left side of the end zone for a 23-yard score.

"When you score that quick (only 33 seconds had elapsed), you've got to be relaxed," said Gliwa.

However, if Hersey was hoping that the sudden score would psyche out the winless Vikings, it didn't.

"It hurt," said Samojedny, but only in the sense that it put Fremd behind. "I was looking around to see if anybody was dying, but they picked me up!"

Fremd's defense stopped two Hersey drives after that. Then a bad snap and a razzle-dazzle play allowed the Huskies to score twice just before the half.

A Viking snap sailed over punter Tim Gross, who recovered it in the end zone and wisely didn't run it out. Eric Strutz and Bryan Holbrook were credited with the two-point safety.

Forster helped set up the second touchdown with a 40-yard return. Hersey moved to the 22 before using the flea flicker Topczewski pass to Dave Carey. After taking the 16-yard loss, Carey pitched back to Forster who went the remaining 12 yards.

Fremd threatened twice in the second half with the passing game playing a big part in its offense. Dave Wickum, throwing more than he had in the previous three games, completed six of 14 for 93 of its 123 total yards.

In the third quarter, the Vikings went as far as the Hersey 21 before the Huskie defense stopped them. Wickum's toss to Dan Robinson — the only receiver used by Fremd — came up just short of the first down.

Early in the fourth quarter, they got as far as the 19. This time it was Roger Urban who stopped a fourth down pass play by knocking down an aerial.

Between these aborted drives, the Fremd defense ruined Hersey's shutout. In the middle of the third quarter, a host of Fremd linemen smothered Carey as he attempted a punt from about the Hersey eight. Byron Finger scooped up the ball on about the five and scored. Rich Sharpe ran for the two pointer, leaving the Vikings within scoring distance of tying the game, 16-8.

A fine 53-yard drive by Hersey stalled on the 10. Then Barnard connected on a 28-yard field goal to put the game out of

Punting game helps Meadows handle Conant

Scott Green

Tom Casper

by DON FRISKE

Punting is supposed to be a helpful device for a football team, a way to get out of trouble and hopefully give the other team bad field position.

This worked just fine for the Rolling Meadows Mustangs in their 29-0 win over the Conant Cougars Friday night.

Scott Green, the Mustang punter and place-kicker, was called on for three punts which were good for a consistent average of 43 yards a kick.

It was a different story for the Cougar punting game. Seven times the Cougars were forced to punt, netting only 19.3 yards a kick.

But that was only a minor part of the problem. Two of the Cougar punts in the first half led to Mustang touchdowns.

When the Cougars were unsuccessful in their first set of downs, they punted from their own 21-yard line.

Bob Borczak's kick was good for 34 yards, but unfortunately for the Cougars, Ken Barro's return was good for 55.

Barro picked up the ball on his own 45 and quickly shot to the right sideline where he went in for the touchdown. The Mustangs led 7-0 only a minute into the game without ever having the ball.

Early in the second quarter, the Cougars lost the football due to a fumble on their own 10, but regained it back again quickly with an interception.

On third down, they attempted a quick-kick that was blocked and recovered for a Mustang touchdown by Tom Casper.

The Mustang defense provided all of their scoring in the first half.

"It was a good total defensive effort," said Bob Rio, Mustang defensive coach, slugging out Jim Waswo, Bill Bremer, Gregg Kuthe, Ted Tyk, and Tom Stutzman for doing a fine job. "The defense is finally starting to come alive."

So far this year the Mustangs have been predominantly an offensive ball team.

Head coach Angelo Barro felt that his offense was flat in the first half.

"They laid back on their heels after that punt return," said Barro. "The defense saved us in the first half."

The Cougars got their score late in the second quarter. A 17-yard pass from Borczak to Jim Stump put the Cougars on the Mustang one-yard line.

After one quarterback sneak was unsuccessful, Borczak decided not to grind it out again.

Instead he went to the air to Mark Loece for a one yard touchdown. Borczak completed the extra-point pass, and with only 30 seconds in the first half the Cougars were only down by six.

Conant couldn't score again, as they only had the ball for 23 plays in the second half. In the first half they had the ball for 37 plays.

"We just made too many mistakes against a good ball club," said Ralph Loece, Cougar coach.

The Mustangs scored twice again in the second half, as their offense balanced in with their defense.

Mustang quarterback Steve Breitbeil scored on a 17-yard run in the third quarter. Breitbeil was the game's leading rusher with 104 yards in 20 carries.

Joe McChesney completed the scoring with a nine-yard run in the final quarter.

Both teams played a good defensive game. The Mustangs ended the game with 220 total yards, 179 of these coming in the second half.

Conant finished with 164 total yards, only 53 of these coming in the closing half.

Penalties also hurt the Cougars as they were penalized seven times for 95 yards. The Mustangs were penalized three more times than the Cougars for the same amount of yardage.

Conant will be at home this Friday night against Elk Grove, while Rolling Meadows travels to Schaumburg on Saturday afternoon.

Prospect falls to saxons, 33-8

by GEORGE HALAS

Perhaps if someone had told Schaumburg football coach Bob Ferguson to "get with the program" Friday night before the Saxons took on Prospect's Knights, and had he followed that advice, things might not have turned out as favorably as they did. As it was, Ferguson's visiting gridders handed their blue-clad hosts a 33-8 loss, proving more or less that you can tell the players without a scorecard.

The evening's program listed Saxon No. 32 Tom Martino as a linebacker. He did in fact play that position, performing admirably. But Martino plays a little fullback on the side. And much to Ferguson's delight, Martino scored three times from the one yard line en route to 56 yards rushing. While those figures may not impress yards-per-carry sophisticates, in addition to those six points-per yard jaunts, the Saxon "linebacker" picked up some key first downs in short yardage situations.

Saxon No. 10 might have remained totally anonymous to everyone (Prospect game announcer John McGee never knew) because he wasn't even listed on the varsity roster. But Bob Nathey, the force inside the jersey, introduced himself to the Prospect defense. Seemingly making amends for the oversight, Nathey had a game high 63 yards in nine sorties, scoring once on a 28-yard fourth quarter scamper.

Schaumburg's Russ Zonca and Scott Mielke did make the program, and along with the two aforementioned notables they combined for 249 yards total offense, 196 of that coming on the ground. For Zonca, it was a triumphant return to action. He directed the Saxons' ball control offense for 60 plays in contrast to Prospect's 37, passed for 53 yards in four completions and contributed 42 yards to the team's ground offense, including one TD.

Actually, the game really wasn't decided until the third quarter. The Knights had scored late in the second period on a one yard run by Jack Devero with Keith Mason scoring the two-point, to make the score 14-8.

Fumbles and penalties had stalled a couple of promising drives early in the game, but the Knights seemed to have the momentum in the second half. Another fumble stopped the Knights' initial third-quarter drive after the aroused Prospect defense had forced Zonca and company to punt. The Saxons took immediate advantage as Zonca set up his own touchdown run with a masterful scamper from the 21 to the one. The Knight defense held twice but Zonca optioned his way in around right end. From that point it was Schaumburg's ball game.

Prospect was kept in the game almost singlehandedly by senior Jay Loos, who was in on 24 tackles, many unassisted. Unfortunately for Prospect, Knight cracker Loos had to make them from his safety spot as Saxon ballcarriers continually roamed through the host's secondary.

The Schaumburg shutout the Knights in the second half, and Ferguson pointed out why afterwards. "We told the defense after the last game (a loss to Buffalo Grove) that they were just standing still and reading. We can't play like that. Our style should be more attack, and we worked on needed penetration all week."

The Saxon headman was not surprised at his team's ground success. "We knew we could run well. Prospect is a good club and they hit hard, but we figured if we could sustain our running game and out-finesse them we could win."

Ferguson did spotlight one significant change. "Our quarterback (Zonca) was ready to play this week. He's the key to our offense. He's a threat both running and passing."

Cardinals flash new look, land 14-7 league win

by ART MUGALIAN

Some people remember when John Yeazel was Arlington's starting quarterback, "way back in the season opener when Mike Schell was the second-string signalcaller for the Cardinals and Matt Shaughnessy was number three.

That's all in the past now, especially after Arlington's 14-7 victory over visiting Palatine Friday night. Arv Herstedt's losing Pirates, now 0-4 on the season, won't soon forget the clutch passing of Matt Shaughnessy and the glue-gloved hands of a brand new split end named John Yeazel.

And neither the Pirates nor Arlington coach Chuck Haines will forget the winning touchdown, scored by tailback Mike Schell, who bulled his way over from the two-yard line with just a minute left in the third quarter.

Haines had entrusted his Arlington attack to the inexperienced command of Shaughnessy, and the coach was rewarded.

"Matt did exceptionally well for his first start," said Haines after the win put his team's record at 1-2 in the Mid-Suburban League North. "He made one bad pass all night — that was the interception — and he knows about it."

That pickoff proved to be a harmless first-quarter error. It came moments after the junior QB hit Yeazel over the middle on a 15-yard touchdown strike on Arlington's first drive. The TD pass was Shaughnessy's first of the year.

But most of the game's excitement was saved for a brief stretch of the third quarter, thanks to the strange vagaries of fate.

With Arlington leading 6-0, halfway through the third period, Yeazel got set to punt from his own end zone. Schell was positioned as a blocker directly in front of Yeazel, a spot normally taken by Phil Dinelli, who happened to be ill. Yeazel was pressured by the Pirates and his punt glanced off Schell's back. Palatine's Dean Meyer recovered the ball at the Card eight.

On the third play from scrimmage, halfback Kevin McWard punched over for the score and Bill Finlay's extra-point kick gave the Pirates the lead, 7-6.

"That blocked punt was just another of the errors we've been making," Haines said. "This time we managed to win in spite of it. I guess our ultimate goal is to play a game with just a normal amount of mistakes."

The very next time the Cardinals had possession, Yeazel and Schell got the opportunity to make up for the punting fiasco. After Craig Bernhardt returned the Palatine kick to the Arlington 45, Shaughnessy arched a nifty sideline pass to Yeazel good for 32 yards to the enemy

18. The lookup came on a crucial third-down call.

"We let that pass completion go on a third-and-long situation," said Herstedt, the Palatine coach. "That really hurt. But, all in all, we settled down on defense tonight. We were tackling out there."

The Pirate defenders almost stopped the Cards' goalward drive shortly after Yeazel's long gain. With a fourth-down-and-three dilemma facing them, the Cardinals called on Bernhardt, the big, hard-running senior, who took an option pitch from Shaughnessy and cut to the outside for this first down. Two plays later, Schell busted over the middle for the TD that put the home team ahead to stay.

Arlington then successfully recovered an onside kick and, although they failed to take advantage of the good fortune immediately, it did open the way to the Cards' final score.

Yeazel directed a pinpoint, 25-yard punt that went out of bounds at the Palatine two. On the Pirates' first play, quarterback McCostlin rolled right and was trapped in the end zone by hard-hitting tackle Dave Rahtz for a two-point safety.

"The safety was one of the key plays," said Haines later. "It gave us a seven-point lead and we got the ball back again. And that punt by Yeazel was a real beauty."

Palatine put together one more scoring threat in the fourth quarter, helped along by a well-executed screen pass from McCostlin to John Bais good for 20 yards. But the drive was thwarted when Steve Hadley intercepted a McCostlin pass at the goal line.

For the three Arlington "quarterbacks" it was a satisfying night. They contributed mightily to the Cards' first league success. Schell was the game's leading ground-gainer with 83 yards in 18 carries. Shaughnessy completed just three passes, but they were all to Yeazel, who racked up 55 yards through the air. It was a good night for quarterbacks.

Littwin, whose 21 rushes netted 83 yards, lost two TDs. Aside from the nullified pass catch, he had a 41-yard scoring run erased by Bucaro's clip during the third period. And Littwin was denied a 12-yard gain when Mark Michuda was detected holding.

Viator's last touchdown, with 5:32 remaining, resulted when John Romano and Mike Blurry blocked Dave Cancellieri's punt. Larry Bruck scampered 20 yards.

Mark Campagna was perfect on six-of-seven conversion kicks, missing his last. It went wide left.

Notre Dame's only points registered on John Cashman's 18-yard aerial to Tom Convey at 6:16 before intermission. The drive was keyed by Tim Walsh's recovery of a bad option pitch by Bob Walsh.

After stopping Notre Dame at the goal line, Selvig making a key tackle, the Lions marched nearly 40 yards before Walsh made the bad pitch. Notre Dame's Walsh reached Viator's 11 before Littwin dragged him down. A two-yard loss and illegal procedure penalty preceded Cashman's TD pass. Cancellieri added the kick.

Notre Dame was crushed by Fiedler's defense which gave Walsh and Co. excellent field position except for the one series at Viator's goal line. Fran Willert's club gained possession on Viator's 23 after a high punt snap from Tim Halas to Brian Scopolino.

The Dons accumulated 73 yards total offense and just 24 against Viator's first defensive unit which left after three periods. Notre Dame's third quarter offense read minus eight yards.

Three of their five first downs came on a 43-yard march against Viator's second unit. Even then, Notre Dame couldn't convert a fourth and one on the Lions' 20.

Viator has yielded just two touchdowns during its last 10 quarters, one each to Notre Dame and Hersey. That includes a 21-0 shutout over Marist. The Lions own a huge 106-31 scoring margin over opponents.

But Friday's victory belongs to Bobby Walsh. He's the main reason the Lions are 4-0 and 2-0 in East Suburban Catholic games. They host defending champ Holy Cross on Friday night.

Four weeks ago, Walsh started his first game at quarterback. Lyne wondered: Would Walsh fold under pressure? The answer: Nope, at least not yet.

Forest View, Arlington in archery duel

Two of the best archery teams in the Mid-Suburban Conference will meet on Tuesday at Forest View. Testing View will be defending conference champion Arlington. They finished 1-2 last year, but they didn't meet in a duel.

Arlington continued its winning ways Thursday, beating Hersey 20-1. In the process, Arlington went over the century mark with a season total of 183 points.

Kathy Boyd captured the 30-yard event with 280 points, including a perfect end. Kim Griffith took the 20-yard event with 320 points and three perfect ends. Diane Swanson and Pam Brown had a perfect end each.

Rose Kruckmeyer paced Hersey with 200 points at 30 yards and 294 from 20.

Prospect moved into sole possession of second place with its 17-4 victory over Conant. Prospect now has 57 points through four meets, just two ahead of Forest View.

Dorothy Nee was tops for Prospect with 242 from 30 and 288 from 20.

Maria Olson was Conant's best from 30 with 218. Bonnie Reichelt had 270 from 20 yards.

Forest View is in third place with 55 points. Karen Diekhoff paced the View with 238 from 20 and 198 from 30 yards which helped her team to a 14-7 victory over Elk Grove.

Tops for the Grove was Cheryl Rebmman with 282 from 20 and 222 from 30.

Fremd evened its dual meet record to 2-2 with a 15-6 victory over Palatine. Kathy Uhrich led Fremd in both events, taking the 30 in 244 and the 20 in 282.

Chris Petko paced Palatine with 236 from 30 and 268 from 20.

Tuesday afternoon, starting at 4:30, will have Arlington at Forest View, Fremd at Hersey, Palatine at Prospect and Schaumburg at Conant. Elk Grove has a bye.

Virgil Carter showed up Friday for the Paddock Sports Club luncheon at Arlington Park Towers despite a broken finger on his passing hand.

Just in case Virg couldn't handle the speaking assignment, he brought along his backup signalcaller, wife Judy, who tantalized the capacity audience with a few audibles of her own.

The overflow crowd in the Jimmy Durante room came to see Carter, the quarterback for the Chicago Fire of the World Football League, and before that, an antihero of sorts with the Bears. But they received a pleasant surprise in Mrs. Carter, who took the ball from emcee Bob Frisk, the Herald sports editor, and ran for a sizable gain.

"You can't imagine what it's like to be the wife of a computer quarterback," said wife Judy whose husband has an advanced degree in mathematics.

"The computer quarterback fades back to pass and he throws the ball right into the hands of a defensive player who returns the ball eighty yards for a touch-down," she continued. "But wait, there's a penalty — it's roughing the passer. The quarterback is carried off the field on a stretcher — with a broken finger."

Judy poked innocent fun at her spouse's size and intelligence.

"One time in a hotel lobby, Virg was walking down the stairs with Dick Butkus and George Seals. I noticed a couple young ladies ogling the players and one of them said: 'Aren't those the Chicago Bears?' 'Yes,' replied the other, 'and isn't it nice, one of them brought his little brother.'"

"When we were in Chicago the first time," said Judy, "Virg got a letter addressed to 'Idolt Carter, Chicago, Illinois.' He was pretty upset by it, but I thought it was nice that the fan took the time and trouble to write Virg a letter. But the thing that bothered Virg was that the postman knew where to deliver it."

Judy Carter charms audience with introduction.

Judy then made way for her husband, who said he didn't enjoy the fact that Judy was getting all the laughs. Carter went on to describe his professional initiation.

"We were playing Minnesota and their Fearsome Foursome and we had a third-and-one situation," said Virg. "I was the quarterback, and — just out of college — I felt that the quarterback sneak was the appropriate call."

"Well, Minnesota had two guys — Alan Page and Carl Eller — and you probably know about them. Page isn't too big — he's 6-foot-4 and only about 310 pounds, and Eller is just 6-7 and 280. Well, I was new in the league so I figured a sneak was a good call. And I got the first down."

"But I knew I was in trouble when Eller grabbed one of my legs and Page grabbed the other and I heard Alan whisper, 'Make a wish, Carl.'"

The Fire quarterback turned serious for a moment.

"There has been a lot of ballyhoo about the athlete's role," said Virg. "This life is not always as rewarding as you might think. Most of the players on our team don't make a lot of money, they don't make commercials, and they don't get speaking engagements."

"What they do get is weekly analysis of their jobs in the papers. All their faults and mistakes are public information. It puts a lot of pressure on you."

"You know, the average playing career in the NFL is 3.7 years," Carter went on. "That means that for every guy who plays 10 years, there's a guy who gets wiped out after one season or one play or one opportunity."

Carter then thanked the public for the support it has given the Fire, and the fledgling WFL, in its first year of operation.

"The World Football League is having its problems," Carter conceded, "but I really don't think it will fold. We'll be around for years. Sure, we'll have some problems, but not the catastrophic kinds."

Carter then fielded questions from the luncheon guests, including one regarding WFL parity with the NFL.

"The crucial factor will be getting the college grads," replied Virg. "If we can get our share of the good college grads, in three or four years we'll be on a par with the NFL."

Carter went on to indicate that he didn't anticipate a merger with the NFL at any time in the future. He also said the WFL plans to eventually expand so that 50 per cent of its operations are outside the continental United States.

"Right now, the NFL is dependent solely on the U. S. so if that is saturated, it affects the NFL totally," said Carter.

The Fire quarterback called the WFL's action point conversion a "marketing gimmick," saying that it "perplexed" him. But, he added, "It's been a crucial point — it has decided maybe one-fifth of the games."

Carter joked about his role as player representative in the new Players' Association, saying that he might earn himself a free ticket out of Chicago, like Bears' ex-player rep Mac Percival.

But he took the time to explain the WFL players' needs, saying that mostly the requests were for "nonmoney" items.

"We don't want to destroy the league before it starts," said Virg. "We know some of the owners are in trouble."

Toward the end of the program, Virg glanced at the clock and made a graceful concession to his audience.

"It's getting close to time," he noted, "and if you have to leave, it won't offend me — I've played in Soldier Field."

Bears fiddle while clock kills upset effort

Wasn't it Nero who fiddled away while Rome burned?

Sunday it was the Bears who plucked the strings of defeat from the jaws of victory by effectively running out the clock to preserve an 11-7 Minnesota triumph.

With 4:55 remaining in the game and the Bears in possession at their own 29, I pulled my mask over my eyes, bit on a silver bullet and prayed that Heldt would interrupt before the Bears could figure out how to blow the opportunity.

It took Chicago until the two-minute warning to move the ball to the Viking 49. Quarterback Gary Huff conferred with head coach Abe Giron, but probably just to reaffirm the fact that the Bears were somehow still in the ball game against the undefeated Vikings.

It couldn't have been to discuss strategy.

By the time the clock had started again, by virtue of two no-gain plays, the Bears had mastered the art of returning nonchalantly to the huddle.

Almost 40 precious seconds had ticked off by the time the Bears were set on the line. Or were they? Timeout Chicago with 1:08 remaining and not a snap from center!

The Bears squandered their remaining timeout to insure Huff's meaningless first-down run to the Viking 21 would kill the final seconds.

Giron, in his usual post-game tirade, nearly tackled the time-keeping official who neatly spun out of his angry grasp.

Could more time have made a difference?

The Vikings were pitifully lethargic. The Bears were worse.

Minnesota head coach Bud Grant's game plan of waiting until the Bears made mistakes paid off when Chicago center Rich Coady bowled a perfect strike through punter Bob Parsons' legs and into the endzone for a Viking safety.

Fran Tarkenton's 250th career touchdown pass to Stu Volgt and a missed conversion made it 8-0 at the half and a 32-yard Fred Cox field goal capped the Vikings' scoring.

The Bear facts

by the Masked Bear

In the introduction to this column three weeks ago, I promised to give credit where credit was due.

Bear wide receiver Charlie Wade continues to sparkle as the total offense. His 70-yard grab of a perfectly-thrown Huff pass set up Chicago's only touchdown on the first play of the fourth quarter.

Another bright spot in what must have been a "moral victory" against the Purple People Eaters was the running of Ken Grandberry who did a miraculous job subbing for injured, missing or hook-ey-playing (pick one) Carl Garrett at one of the halfback spots.

The Bears should have, could have, would have, but didn't get on the scoreboard late in the first half when Grandberry's punishing rushing presented a first and goal at the Viking five yard line.

A remedial snap from center to quarterback found Huff fading into the pocket . . . but without the ball. The misdirection play was read beautifully by Minnesota middle linebacker Jeff Simon who recovered the fumble at the four.

The Bear mistakes continued — a roughing the punter call that kept the Vikings' only touchdown drive alive, dropped passes by wide-open receivers, interceptions, etc. — but Minnesota was equally guilty of some stupid turnovers, including an apparent touchdown bomb to John Gilliam that was nullified by penalty.

The Vikings, who often rely on their defense for wins, did it again Sunday. Although yielding 229 total yards to the Bears, the front four of Carl Eller, Gary Larsen, Alan Page and Jim Marshall were intimidating.

Gary Huff is probably moonlighting as a palm-reader after the Minnesota pass rush presented so many hands in his face. Encouraging, though, is the fact that he completed 16 of 27 passes for 162 yards.

Now if only the Bears can learn a two-minute drill that utilizes the clock instead of killing it, maybe I'll have a victory over New Orleans to report here next week.

Fire has more problems than just injuries

A big dude I know recently tried to hustle my salary. He offered me 10 points and the Memphis Southmen against Notre Dame.

Thanks, but not really. Couldn't hack losing a bundle in pay raises nobody's seen yet.

We never considered Notre Dame against the Fire. Does anybody wonder why? (Wow, Purdue, you're too cool!)

The Fire log

by Sparky O'Leary

It's more apparent each passing minute that the Fire offense without injury victims Mark Kellar (leg), James Scott (knee) and Virg Carter (finger) accelerates in one gear . . . Reverse.

And the weekly question for Fire line-backers to their secondary: "Hi, guy. I'm Rudy, Ron or Tom. Who are you?"

Our Hottest Game in Town couldn't roast marshmallows.

You're plummeting for sure when this week's goal is beating a football team named Charlotte . . . on national television, no less. Who's next, Susie-Q?

Seriously, the Fire has crumbled to four straight losses and five-of-six. How did they ever win at Southern California?

I'd hate to rip into those kids in uniform. They're losing, but it's not entirely their fault. Anyway, most aren't pulling down big money and need their jobs.

So let's probe some other areas.

I'm concerned that our beloved Chicago Fire leadership has come unscrewed just above the neck. A logical question, which I'll illustrate: Who runs this football team?

Retreat to January and the first World Football League collegiate draft. Chicago's opening selections were Montana State defensive end Bill Kollar and Arizona State quarterback Danny White, the Whizzer's kid all grown up.

I think Kollar signed with the NFL. Bengals. And White draws his pay in Memphis where he backs up John Huarte and does the punting.

The Fire owner Tom Origer selected tight ends Dave Casper of Notre Dame plus Northwestern All-American Steve Craig. Neither signed. Can't tell you where Casper went, but Craig linked up with the Minnesota Vikings.

Other biggies who got away . . . Penn State offensive tackle Charles Getty and Colorado running back Charlie Davis.

Hmm . . . how easily we'd forgotten those guys. How much would they have helped? My guess: A playoff berth, now unreachable unless the WFL changes its qualifications, as has been rumored.

Why couldn't Origer sign these guys? He's got the money, well into double figures when you're talking millions. It was no big chore signing Carter. He felt like coming home.

And other clubs were getting their kids. Southern Cal helped itself to running backs James McAllister and Kermit Johnson of UCLA plus USC tackle Booker Brown. They could last 10 years.

Of course, there was that Csonka-Klick-Warfield package put together for next year's Memphis club.

We haven't seen anything similar in Chicago. Or else nobody's telling. Can you imagine the Fire without Kellar? Was Origer too tight-lipped?

And another point: WFL television mouths Merle Harmon and Alex Hawkus, who've finally learned their own names, keep blabbering about the great franchise Origer has assembled in Chicago.

I'm not convinced.

Some Fire questions: Does personnel director Bill Byrne retain authority equivalent to Jim Finks, his counterpart on the crosstown Bears?

My guess: Absolutely not. It's been printed elsewhere that many recent player transactions were made without Byrne's knowledge or approval.

Does that mean head coach Jim Spavital and staff have lost confidence in Byrne? Or should we question the coaching staff's ability to judge talent?

Heck, everybody makes mistakes. But how could season long defensive secondary starters Joe Womack and Hal Phillips drop from first unit to off-the-club with no middle ground?

Another question: How can anyone expect the Fire's horrible pass defense to

Timely touche

Joe Namath, when asked by Howard Cosell how many great sports announcers there are, replied: "One less than you think, Howard."

Lily broke streak

Bob Lily of the Dallas Cowboys played in every regular season and playoff game in the Cowboys' history until the NFL championship game versus Minnesota in December of 1973.

improve when the secondary is overhauled on almost a weekly basis?

Question Six: the Fire has no defensive secondary coach; why not? Isn't Jim Crossland busy enough just handling linebackers and serving as overall coordinator? Can't Origer afford one? Doesn't Spavital know of any?

Some weeks ago, former Green Bay Packer great Bob Jeter called Byrne's office looking for employment. Maybe the Fire should have hired Jeter . . . as a coach.

Other thoughts: Somebody must have known Steve Wright would jump the club since he's such a free thinker. They might have been better off without him.

A prediction: Leo Hart, Carter's QB replacement at Florida, threw 32 passes. I'll bet he doesn't toss another 32 all season. If Carter can't start Thursday in Soldier Field, my guess is Bill Cappelman, formerly of the Detroit Lions.

And a final thought: Thank you, Great Maker, for Leroy Kelly. But please, we want our Virgil back.

Total points for both teams

JUST IN TIME. Wheeling quarterback Glenn Barry (15) launches a pass to Oscar Quesada a split second before being nailed by Buffalo Grove's Don Cornell. The screen

Buffalo Grove marches along with win over Wheeling

by KEITH REINHARD

"Our defense did some bending tonight... but it didn't break."

Buffalo Grove pilot Grant Blaney issued that summary Friday after leading his charges back to Wheeling for a reunion... and haunting the Wildcats 34-7 en route to a fourth successive win this season.

All together, there was a lot of bending by both defenses in this brand new rivalry. The chainmen were kept busy chalking up a total of 33 first downs while the two teams together rushed and passed their way up and down the gridiron to the tune of over 750 yards.

But bending and breaking are two different things. Bison quarterback Dave Smitherne fashioned an aerial blitz that totally chopped up Wheeling's secondary in a matter of minutes during the second quarter. And the breakdowns drastically turned around an even contest and sent the 'Cats reeling down to their fourth defeat of the campaign.

"It looks like we're lacking quickness in our defensive backfield. I think that's where they beat us," shrugged Wheeling coach Jack Liljeberg. "A couple of our kids are just returning to action back there but it's no excuse... Buffalo Grove found a weakness and took good advantage of it."

Smitherne zeroed in for four touchdown passes, had another called back and romped 72 yards on his own to register the final Bison score. Three TD huris, including one wiped out by a penalty, came within a span of little more than a minute early in the second stanza after both clubs had battled to a standstill in the opening period.

"I was sure glad to see Dave get a nice effort like this under his belt," Blaney offered. "We coaches know he's always capable but a game like this is bound to boost his own confidence."

On the receiving end of a couple of Smitherne's paydirt pitches was George Bastable, ironically the younger brother of perhaps the greatest former Wildcat of them all. Jack Bastable still has a string of school records standing in the Wheeling log.

George started the Buffalo Grove haunting by pulling in a 15-yard bullet from Smitherne and traveling the rest of the way afoot for a 29-yard score. Later he hauled in an 11-yarder and still later he snatched a Wheeling toss in his own end zone when the hosts threatened to hit the scoreboard before intermission.

It was only a matter of time before the hosts did push one across though and Liljeberg could take some consolation in the fact that his squad's offense finally did come alive. In three previous outings Wheeling had scraped together a total of 234 yards of running and throwing.

They had 377 yards Friday, just six less than the Grove, and they managed three more first downs than the guests.

"What impressed me the most about Wheeling's offense," Blaney pointed out, "is that they didn't try anything fancy. They kept it basic and effective... they are going to be back on the winning track before this season is over."

And the 'Cats had their own "O" for offense. He was Oscar Quesada, a hard-nosed 170 pounder who dove, twisted, squirmed and scratched his way over 160 yards of turf and rang up the only home score of the night. The hosts also got a solid quarterbacking effort from Glenn Barry... and nearly 200 more yards of total offense.

Scoring was initiated in the contest when Smitherne clicked twice in a row on passes to Rich Brinsmade. The first was a 44-yard scoring screen play that wound up as a four yard loss because of a clipping call.

The next was a 19 yarder down to the 29 and Smitherne teamed up with Bastable on the next down. The subsequent kickoff was fumbled and Buffalo Grove set up shop at the enemy 28, with Smitherne going directly to Ben Orcutt for another TD pass.

Later in the second quarter 13-and-35-yard completions to Bastable and Brinsmade respectively primed an 80-yard drive that George capped with his 11-yard reception up the middle. Smitherne kicked over all three extra points and the halftime bulge was 21-0.

In period three Wheeling went on a 78-yard march. Quesada ate away all of it on the ground to the Grove 39 and Barry connected with Curt Rathje on a 34-yard flip down to the five before Oscar took it in.

Before the period ended, however, Dandy Dave had zeroed in again, this time on a 17-yard TD toss to John Arendall immediately following another Wheeling fumble.

And finally Smitherne dashed around the right side on a keeper in the fourth quarter and raced 72 yards down field for another score. He was probably too winded then to make good on the EP try and the verdict remained at 34-7.

Three tennis teams own unbeaten marks

Only three Mid-Suburban Conference teams remain undefeated after three weeks of play in girls' tennis.

Defending champion Arlington's 8-0 victory over Hersey marked the third time in four tries that the leaders have posted a perfect score. Sharing the same dual meet record of 4-0 are Prospect and Fremd. Prospect handled Conant, 7-1, and Fremd stopped Palatine, 5-3, on Thursday.

Other team winners were Hoffman Estates over Buffalo Grove, 5-3, Rolling Meadows over Wheeling, 6-2, and Elk Grove over Forest View, 5-3.

Arlington boosted its point total to 31 with its eight-point victory. Pooling the individual wins for Arlington were Mary Baltes, Jean Condon, Patty Pinski, Leslie Grabitz and JoAnn Skovarik. Mary Flynn and Janet Haherkorn, Maureen Coleman and Doty Massey, and Lori Schroeder and Marianne Ohmstrom.

Earlier in the week (Tuesday), the first singles match between Baltes and Palatine's Colleen Clery wasn't completed. Clery defeated Baltes in three sets Wednesday to become the first girl to win a point against Arlington this season.

Prospect, which trails Arlington 31-23 in meet points, nearly posted a sweep against Conant. Mary Chamberlin prevented it by winning first singles for Conant. Taking the other matches for Prospect were Lorel Alseits, Colleen Lynch, Mara Rautenberg and Ann Wieroc, Carol DiPrima and Cindy Loliar, Sue Sanders and Sue Tolzien, and Sandy Wineinger and Holly Hutchison.

Trailing Arlington by nine points in third place is Fremd. Winning for Fremd were Renee Koontz, Janet Piesender, Colleen Cannon and Kim Whiting and Linda Koet and Mary Harring. Taking points for Palatine were Clery, Leslie Winter and March Mazzetta, and Maureen Gerdies and Mary Lundin.

Elk Grove evened its record at 2-2 with its 5-3 win over Forest View. Grove winners were Cindy Antonik, Lesley Massey, Caroline Mitsch, and Regina Neri and Nancy Chernick. View victors were Janet Gust and Sue Jansen, Trina Bowyer, and Jill Jamison and Bobbi McKeown.

Rolling Meadows recorded its first MSC meet win against Wheeling, 6-2. Meadows match winners were Barb Gallo, Karen O'Brien, Cathy Glass and Rayanne Hintzman, Julie Carson and Denise Richards, and Sue Simon and Pam Klein.

Taking matches for Wheeling were Carol Magnus and Ann Kerns and Gail Milloch.

Hoffman Estates won its first meet, too, stopping Buffalo Grove, 5-3. Hoffman points were registered by Clare Dowling, Sandy Norton, Mary Beth Leonard and Laura Buddenbaum and Sue Hill.

Grove winners were Michelle Brusseau and Lindsay Tollefson, Sue O'Heir and Pat Volkman, and Diane Sola and Deb Vesely.

Conant will have a bye in Tuesday afternoon's six-meet slate, scheduled to get underway at 4:30. It will have Elk Grove at Buffalo Grove, Rolling Meadows at Hoffman Estates, Arlington at Forest View, Schaumburg at Wheeling, Fremd at Hersey and Palatine at Prospect.

Harper buries Kennedy-King with 45-14 blitz

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The reverse hadn't worked and running back Ray Hartsfield, perched aloft on the helmet of Dugan McLaughlin like a gored matador on the horns of a bull, and about to be slammed unceremoniously to the ground, symbolized all the frustration Kennedy-King College experienced in the course of their 45-14 loss to Harper Saturday night.

The Statesmen had some pretty good size, excellent speed in the backfield and the benefit in the first half of a lackadaisical Hawk defense. Yet the game was Harper's from the outset and head coach John Ellasik described it afterwards as, "The first game we've played this year where man for man we were better than the other team."

The Hawks, perhaps responding to an urge to boost their national ranking from its current 16th spot or else to put on a show for the scouts from Rock Valley, scored in every quarter in nearly every possible way and totaled 530 yards gained and 23 first downs.

The game also marked the return of one player who hadn't played this season, Bob Andreas, and another, Ervin Kimbrough, who had been playing regularly but lately was so draped with pass defenders that he'd caught only one pass in two games.

"In the beginning tonight," Ellasik said, "they gave us Kimbrough. Then later on they tried to take him away. Some of the passes he caught near the end he had two and three men covering him."

"He has the most sensitive pair of hands I've seen this year," said Kennedy-King coach Prentis Rhodes. "And after he catches the ball in the open field he always seemed to be able to get away from the man covering him. I don't think he was ever tackled by his primary defender."

Most of Kimbrough's eight catches, for 124 yards, were received in the company of several baffled defenders. Kimbrough and the other Hawk receivers benefited repeatedly from a quick angle pattern over the middle that quarterback Gary Mueller worked often.

After Jim Hoevel sifted through for a 31-yard touchdown the first time the Hawks had the ball, Kimbrough caught a nine yard touchdown pass and later in the third quarter another seven yard scoring pass.

Hoevel was providing the bulk of the running attack until he left the game in the third quarter with an injury that was at first feared to be a separated shoulder but later reclassified as a charley horse.

Since inheriting Marty Williams' job in the second game of the season, Hoevel has gained 268 yards in 52 carries. In a little more than half a game against Kennedy-King he picked up 108 yards on 15 tries.

Hoevel's replacement, Mike Amundsen, picked up an additional 67 yards to add to Harper's rushing total of 281 yards.

Kennedy-King's offense, which ground out 313 yards, made the game interesting in the second quarter when Mike Lowe scored from 11 yards out to cut into the Hawks' 14 point lead.

"We were very respectful of their speed," Ellasik said, "but our defense played in a daze the whole first half. They played just like that last week. This is the second week in a row I've had to chew them out at halftime and I don't like that."

Charles Walton, the Kennedy-King quarterback, had fast receivers as his targets such as Rich Lehnert, Eric Nickerson, Mike Berry and Glen Brandl forced him to throw the ball up for grabs several times. In the first half the secondary picked off two of these throws and in the second half intercepted two more.

"I thought our pass rush was excellent," Ellasik said. "There were times when their quarterback was throwing up these watermelons out of sheer desperation. We shouldn't have intercepted twice as many as we did."

The defensive secondary was spruced up by the return of second year man Andreas, a slightly built quarterback-safety from Hersey. Andreas picked off the first Walton pass late in the second quarter when he leaped above the receiver to snatch it away. He repeated the levitation act later in the game, going over Hartsfield to casually knock a pass away.

Andreas replaced Mueller, who completed 14 of 27 passes for 212 yards, at quarterback in the fourth quarter, rushed for 39 yards and two touchdowns and passed for 37 more.

"We wanted to show as much diversity as possible for the Rock Valley scouts," Ellasik said. "We haven't had Andreas with us for the first three games and he'll really help us out. We started out tonight like we did last week, killing ourselves with fumbles and other mistakes."

The return of Andreas shunted Dave Patterson to the number three quarterback spot. His post as the team's kicker remained secure through with six extra points and a 34 yard field goal. For the season Patterson has clicked on 14 to 15 extra points and three field goals.

Kansas plan

hits Warriors with 22-20 loss

by CRAIG ROWELLS

The Maine West Warriors went down to defeat Kansas style Saturday.

No, they didn't play any team from Kansas. It's just that the apparent tie ball game with the Oak Park Huskies, tied to the very last second of regulation play, was played off in the form of a Kansas Tie-Breaker with Oak Park winning, 22-20.

The Tie-Breaker is a type of sudden death which will be used in the up and coming IHSA football championships.

The Tie-Breaker is set up as follows:

At the completion of a regulation game which is tied, each team receives a five minute rest period. Then there is a flip of the coin. The winner of the flip can decide to go on offense or defense. The team on defense also decides which goal to defend.

When these factors have been decided, the offense gets the ball at the opponents 10 yard line and is given four plays to score plus the option of going for a one or two point conversion following a touchdown — scoring values staying the same.

Once the offense has done all they can do in those four plays, they then go on defense and give the other teams' offense the same opportunity to score — four plays from the 10. (Note: within this entire tie breaking process, regular game rules are in effect). If the score is tied again the same thing starts all over again.

The Tie-Breaker between the Maine West Warriors and the Oak Park Huskies came about because these two teams fought to a 14-14 tie at the end of regulation play.

Oak Park won the toss for the tie-breaker. They decided to go on offense, meaning Maine West would go on defense and defend the goal line of their choice.

Oak Park then decided to place the ball on the left hash mark, an option the offensive team has. It was now Oak Park's ball, first and ten at the Warriors 10 — four plays to go.

Oak Park's first play of the Tie-Breaker was an option sweep to the right side by Jeff Herner, good for a five yard gain.

The next play was a dive over left guard by Bob Monahan, good for the touchdown. This made the score 20-14.

At this time the Huskies had another option — go for a one or two point conversion. They decided to go for two and made it when Bob Monahan hammered over to make the score 22-14.

Maine West's turn!

The Warriors' first play was an incomplete pass by Bob Zuccarini.

Again a pass fell incomplete. It was now third and 10 at the 10 with two more attempts left.

Once more the Warriors went to the air. Zuccarini's target on this play was Sean Dowd, but this time the Huskies did the work. They interfered with Dowd and gave the Warriors new life.

Because of the pass interference call the Warriors now got the ball at the five yard line-half the distance to the goal — and a first down. The Warriors now had four more plays to score from the five.

The next play the Warriors ran was a dive by Scot Unger. The play was good for a three yard gain, making it second and two at the two — three plays to go.

Mike Janonis finally took some of the pressure off by scoring on the next play putting the Warriors within two points of the Huskies.

With no other option but to go for a two point conversion, the Warriors selected a screen pass to Maine's left side.

Oak Park's defense put on a little too much pressure for Zuccarini to handle. Zuccarini's hurried screen pass intended for Bill Makuch was too low to handle and ended up incomplete. This gave Oak Park the Kansas Tie Breaker and a win in the record books.

Following a scoreless first half and the second half kickoff, action picked up with another booming punt by Warrior Norb Plesznj, about a 50 yarder, and by a Huskie fumble a few plays later.

Warrior defensive tackle John Palolan recovered the fumble at Oak Park's 15 and set up the first Warrior touchdown.

The Warriors scored with 7:28 remaining in the third quarter on a keeper by Zuccarini. Scott Katchuck's kick was good.

Oak Park then came back strong, particularly in the air, as quarterback Jeff Pearsall and split end Tom Ratcliff put together a 33 yard pass good for a touchdown. Oak Park then went for a two point conversion and made it good, as Pearsall hit Ratcliff on a look in pass over the middle. Oak Park now led 8-7.

Maine West attempting to get the lead back went to the air. Zuccarini, waiting too long to his receiver, was intercepted by Andy Arkin who returned the ball to the Maine West 32. Huskie Bob Monahan followed up with a 27 yard touchdown run around the left side of the Warrior defense. Oak Park was out in front 14-7.

Trying again for a two point conversion, Oak Park failed, as Warrior Andy Wild broke up a Pearsall pass intended for Ratcliff. The third quarter ended with the Huskies on top and the Warriors threatening.

seven seconds gone in the fourth quarter. Zuccarini rolled left and hit Dowd for a 15-yard touchdown. Katchuck's kick was good and the score was tied 14-14 with seven seconds gone in the fourth quarter.

The remainder of the game was dominated by Maine West. Dowd and Scott Unger stole the show. Dowd caught and Unger ran as the two brought the Warriors to a game ending field goal attempt.

With third and three at Oak Park's 15, 25 seconds left on the clock, coach Morel decided it was time for Katchuck to do his thing. The Warriors' final attempt to beat Oak Park in regulation play went wide of the mark.

Then came the Tie Breaker!

Inflation forecast: cloudy, little change...

Abner Mikva

Mikva: oust Butz, prevent excess profits

by STEVE BROWN

Remember the 62 cents you paid for a dozen eggs in June? A year from now, you may be paying that much for just five eggs.

A graphic demonstration by congressional candidate Abner J. Mikva shows how high food prices are headed.

Mikva Friday reported on the results of first three months of his survey of grocery prices in the 10th Congressional District, where he is seeking to unseat U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

He noted that prices are continuing to soar and laid out a variety of food items to show how much could be purchased in June versus what inflation will mean in 1975. He predicted food prices will increase 33 per cent in the next year.

BESIDES EGGS, comparisons were made for bacon, chuck steak, Jello, pork chops, shortening and crackers. In most cases the amounts decreased

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young

between what could have been purchased in June and what a shopper will be able to buy in June 1975.

Mikva proposed a series of government moves which he believes should at least slow the rise of food costs.

Young: move to cut spending by government

U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, believes reduced government spending could help bring inflation to an acceptable rate, but only after another one or two years.

Young said pressures on the economy brought about by excessive government spending are "a major factor" in inflation and said a balanced federal budget is vital to cooling inflation.

"In the last 10 years, the government has spent $100 billion more than it has taken in," Young said Friday. He estimated that Congress this year will produce a budget of about $300 billion, $5 billion in excess of expected revenues.

The freshman congressman, now engaged in an effort to gain his second term in an election contest with Democrat Abner J. Mikva, whom he narrowly defeated in 1972, also advocated reductions in military spending, realignment (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

U.S. Rep. Philip Crane

Crane: cut spending

If you earn $15,173 this year — the average income in the 12th Congressional District — you will need to earn $30,346 by 1983 just to stay even, said U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

In a position paper on inflation, Crane pointed out that a (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

Referendum takes Dist. 125 from Lake County JC area

Spilled Ballots: 7

Buffalo Grove residents were instrumental Saturday in the defeat of a referendum to keep High School Dist. 125 in the College of Lake County Junior College District.

Defeat of the referendum means the high school district is not in any junior college district.

Of the 536 ballots, 336 were against Dist. 125's inclusion in the Lake County Junior College District, 193 were in favor and seven were spoiled.

The referendum was initiated by residents of the Lake County portion of Buffalo Grove, who wanted Dist. 125 placed in the Harper Junior College District. Precinct 4, which includes Buffalo Grove, decided the referendum by recording 214 of 336 votes against Dist. 125's inclusion in the Lake County district.

DIST. 125 was assigned to the Lake County district last summer by the Illinois Community College Board. According to state law, high school districts assigned to a junior college district may decide to accept or reject the ICCB assignment by referendum. There are, however, no provisions for a high school district to be annexed to a different junior college district.

An ICCB official said that once a high school district votes itself out of a junior college district, it is in a state of limbo.

As long as Dist. 125 remains outside the boundaries of a junior college district, it must subsidize the difference be-

Dundee Rd. savings may be used to landscape medians

An estimated $10,000 to $11,000 that will be saved by the installation of landscaped medians along Dundee Road in Buffalo Grove may be used to help finance the landscaping.

Officials are to decide this week whether the funds may be used for landscaping, said a spokesman for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

The Federal Highway Administration that has committed $1.5 million to the widening of Dundee Road must consent to Buffalo Grove using the funds for planting as well as the state, he said.

Officials say the saving will come mostly from spreading topsoil over the area to be landscaped rather than asphalt.

According to a compromise worked out recently among village officials and community business leaders, 1.4 miles of the median will be suitable for planting. The remaining portion of the two-mile stretch will be blacktopped to allow access to stores and shops in Buffalo Grove's business section.

AGREEMENT ON the median plan closed out months of debate between the two sides. Buffalo Grove businessmen were fearful landscaped dividers would hamper access to their stores while vil-

Hersey band a winner!

HERSEY HIGH School band won grand championship Saturday at the 7th annual Chicagoland Marching Band Festival at Wheeling High School. Pictured are Wheeling band members who performed but did not take part in the contest, which drew 15 bands from Chicago area.

Those falling leaves—a yearly burning issue

Leaf burners beware. Most Northwest suburbs prohibit open burning of leaves.

But, for persons who find delight in the autumn smell, a few local municipalities allow leaf destruction.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board is banned from regulating leaf burning and relies on local communities for prohibition of the anti-environmental burning.

Local regulations include:

• Mount Prospect: Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said that he is "unaware" of an ordinance banning burning.

• Elk Grove Village: Village Mgr. Charles Willis said that open burning is banned, but leaves can burn in containers.

• Buffalo Grove: Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said that leaf burning is prohibited.

• Wheeling: Village Clerk Evelyn Diens said that the ordinance banning burning is "vague." The law prohibits fires on public grounds or near buildings where a fire hazard may result. Fire officials said the department does not stop burning of leaves.

• Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg: Burning is prohibited.

• Rolling Meadows: Burning is prohibited.

• Arlington Heights: Officials said that an ordinance prohibits burning.

Des Plaines: A 1965 ordinance prohibits burning of "standing hay or grass or any leaves gathered on streets, curbside, alleyways, parkways or park property."

• Palatine: Village Pres. Wendell Jones said that burning is banned. "If people in Palatine want to go back to the system (of burning leaves), they can petition the village board to consider it."

Most officials encourage homeowners to use leaf or garbage bags for disposal.

Illinois prohibited leaf burning for three years "when it was the environmental thing to do," Jones said. In October 1973, Gov. Daniel Walker signed a law that prohibits state regulation of leaf burning.

The IPCB can restrict burning in any area if medical and biological evidence shows that "contaminants" could cause injury to "human, plant or animal life."

No alums? It's no reason for no 'homecoming'

From crazy socks to ugly legs, school spirit promises to abound this week at Buffalo Grove High School's "Fall Roundup."

Scheduled to graduate its first class of seniors in 1975, the school has no alumni, but that won't dampen the homecoming spirit during the week of special activities.

"Crazy Sock and Clash Day," will begin Fall Roundup week Tuesday. Students are invited to wear wild socks and clashing outfits. Faculty will judge which class shows the most school spirit through its dress and points will be awarded.

THE CLASS amassing the most points by the end of the week will be deemed to have the most school spirit.

Candidates for Fall Roundup queen will be presented at a special morning assembly Tuesday.

Wednesday will be "Sweat pants and Hat Day," as students will don sweat-suits and wild hats, again competing for points when the faculty votes at the end of the day.

The "Ugly Legs" contest, sponsored by the pom-pom girls will also start Wednesday. Pictures of the legs of two male representatives of each class will be exhibited, with students voting as many times as they wish for a penny per vote.

Thursday will be school color day as students dress with the Bison colors of blue and orange.

Fall roundup queen will be crowned at 1 p.m., and at 2 p.m., a parade of decorated cars will wind its way along a two-mile parade route.

THE PARADE will travel north on Arlington Heights Road from the school to Plum Grove Road, going east on Plum Grove to Country Lane, continuing east on Country Lane to Weidner Road, south on Weidner to Beachwood, west on Beachwood to Arlington Heights Road and back to the school.

Friday will be Western Dress-up Day. An afternoon pep rally will feature wheelbarrow and piggyback races, along with a licorice eating contest. The class spirit trophy also will be awarded.

A carnival will be featured in the school fieldhouse Friday night from 7:30 to 10:30 featuring a variety of games and activities.

The Saturday football game against Arlington High School will start at 2 p.m. at the school, 1101 W. Dundee Rd., preceded at 1:45 by a band pre game show and presentation of the roundup queen.

The week will conclude Saturday night with a semi-formal dance in the school cafeteria from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m.

Youth shot in liquor store robbery

A Mount Prospect youth is in the intensive care unit of Holy Family Hospital after he was shot Saturday by robbers during a holdup of a Des Plaines liquor store where he works as a stockboy.

David Turner, 18, of 819 We-GO Tr., was shot in the right shoulder with a sawed-off shotgun as he lay on the floor of Williams Liquors, 240 Elmhurst Rd. Des Plaines police said the attack was apparently unprovoked.

According to reports, three men and a woman, all in their early 20s, entered the store about 11:30 p.m. Saturday, brandished weapons and announced a holdup. The men, who covered their hair with multi-colored bandanas, carried automatic pistols and the shotgun.

The female accomplice was reportedly wearing blue slacks and a low-cut blouse. All the suspects are black, police said.

Turner, another stockboy and a woman clerk were forced to lie on the floor by the robbers. There were no customers in the store at the time of the robbery, police said.

Before the robbers fled, one shot Turner. The other two employees were not injured, police said.

An undetermined amount of cash was taken by the bandits, according to police.

The suspects escaped on foot. Witnesses said they were last seen running between a doughnut shop and hamburger stand near the liquor store.

An areawide bulletin has been issued for the four.

A spokesman at Holy Family Hospital said Turner was in the intensive care unit. No other details or condition report was available Sunday.

Woman, 34, injured in auto accident

A 34-year-old Buffalo Grove woman was treated for minor injuries Saturday after she was involved in a two-car accident on Dundee Road near Arlington Heights Road in Buffalo Grove.

Mary L. Widmer, 938 Twisted Oaks Ln., was treated at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights for head injuries. Her car collided with an auto driven by Peter M. Lewinsky, 33, of 511 Brockton, Schaumburg, at 2:52 p.m.

Police said a road grader pulled in front of the two vehicles, causing the cars to collide. No charges were filed, although police said they are investigating whether charges against the driver of the grader can be filed, if he is found.

Chicago man robbed of $5 by hitchhikers

Two armed hitchhikers robbed a Chicago man of $5 after the man had picked up the pair on Palatine Road near Wolf Road in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

County Sheriff's Police said the victim, Roosevelt Smith, was traveling west on Palatine Road when he gave the hitchhikers, a man and a woman, a ride around 2:15 p.m. Friday. Less than a block later, the woman apparently withdrew a shotgun from her knapsack and placed it against the rear of Smith's neck.

She demanded and got $5 from Smith and ordered him to make a U-turn. Smith followed Palatine Road east to the Edens Expressway in Northfield, where the two hitchhikers got out and disappeared, police said.

The male hitchhiker, who police said did not speak at any time, was described as white, aged 23 or 24, 180 pounds, 5 feet 11 inches, with a full beard and long blond hair. The female was described as white, aged 19 or 20, 130 pounds, 5 feet 8 inches, also with long blond hair. Both wore platform shoes and bell-bottom pants, and the woman wore a Levi jacket. Each carried a knapsack.

tween in-district and out-of-district tuition for local students in any junior college.

DIST. 125 LEVIED its last tax for junior college rebates in September. The law permitting high school districts to levy for out-of-district reimbursements has expired. Edwin Ellis, Dist. 125 business manager, said the district has enough money from past junior college levies to pay for this year's and probably next year's reimbursements.

After that, he said, the rebate would have to be paid from the education fund.

Voter turnout Saturday was low, according to Ellis. A normal turnout for a district referendum is 80 to 1,200 voters.

lage officials were interested in beautifying the roadway.

The state was set to move ahead with plans to install a conventional median.

If the funds are not channeled into the landscaping, the village would have to plant and maintain the medians at its own expense.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said plans call for trees, shrubs and some type of ground-cover plants. Lawns would probably not be put in right away, he said, because of the high cost of maintenance and grasscutting.

The over-all Dundee Road project includes $3 million work between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53 through Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights. The road is being widened from two to four lanes.

State officials said last week the curb pouring work is just about complete. Installing the medians and blacktopping on the mountable sections should follow in about two to three weeks.

There's Bud, his dog, Boy, and his pack pony, Maybelline, off on a walk to see America, talk to the people, learn something about it and them.

Northwest Highway is the high-speed artery of the Northwest suburbs. Car lots, real estate offices and fast-food franchises draw their nourishment from the people and cars that race past them daily.

Tethered to a fence at the Burger King on the highway in Palatine is something from another time. A pack pony, loaded with 145 pounds of gear, including a fishing spear and a set of snow shoes, draws children and causes cars to slow to a creep. A backpack, guarded by a dog, is leaned against the building.

BUD KENNY, having finished his Whopper, strides out of the Burger King ready to be on his way.

"I'm walking to Oregon, up through Montana. The Northern route. We started in Leola, Pa., and we're going to Oregon and then down to San Francisco and back across to Hot Springs, Ark.," said Bud.

It is planned as a year-long, 6,000-mile learning adventure for Bud Kenny, 26-year-old former Oklahoma City disc jockey. When he's through, hopefully about September, 1975, he plans to look over his notes, revisit some of the people he's met and then write a series of journals about it.

"I was a disk jockey in Oklahoma City, making a buck here and spending it there. I wanted to slow down, relax and get to know the country and the people," he said with a trace of the peculiar twanging drawl of Oklahoma.

BUD DECIDED to take his time about it. Maybelline, his pony, was pure practically to help carry his load as he walked.

the road leading a packpony with flowers in the bridle.

"People will stop me and get to chatting. It gives me the chance to find out about their lives, the history of the area and about the people who live there," Bud said.

Although he travels by country roads (Northwest Highway is the busiest road to date), he makes a point to go through the cities and towns along the route.

"I came into Chicago on 47th Street. They told me it was a ghetto, but after seeing Cleveland, it looked pretty nice. Kids come up to me and want to see who I am and pet the pony. A lot of them in the city never have that chance," he said.

Maybelline (named after the old Chuck Berry record) is well suited for the task. "Kids can pet her, stroke her nose or pull her tail. She doesn't mind a bit," he said.

TO PREPARE himself for his journey, Bud worked for a year with horses in Pennsylvania, reading what he could about early explorers and gathering or making his equipment.

"I'm poor financially. People I meet help me out. In the cities they give me a place to sleep. Of course, in the country, we have to sleep outdoors," he said, adding the trip will cost about $2,000.

Bud said he tries to eat the best he can as cheaply as he can. That means cattails and dandelions for greens, but so far no wild hickory nuts or the edible parts of the pine tree.

Odd jobs also help finance his way. In Indiana he helped a man split old telephone poles for a rail fence.

BUD EXPECTS the road ahead to be rough. The leaves are turning early this year and there has already been a foot and a half of snow in Denver. But he said he was "looking forward" to wintering on the western range.

"Adventures? I've had all kinds of adventures. Just coming into Ohio in Amish country and young girl was in a buggy and her horse saw Maybelline and bolted," he said. The runaway horse was stopped and the girl was uninjured.

"I found out that people are good — damned good. It's the people that are the greatest adventure" said Bud as he took Boy's leash and Maybelline's line and headed west on the road to meet America.

Body discovered in field near Dwight, Ill.

Man linked to killing found slain

A Hoffman Estates man, believed to have been involved in the unraveling of the 1972 murder of Hillside Patrolman Anthony Raymond, was found shot to death on a farm near Dwight, Ill., Saturday morning.

Livingston County authorities said an Illinois Bureau of Investigation agent identified the victim as Robert Harder, 39, of 581 Caldwell Ln., Hoffman Estates. It was believed that Harder along with other informants supplied information leading to two arrests in connection with the Raymond abduction and murder.

Silas C. Fletcher, Hanover Park, one of the two charged in the policeman's death, is scheduled to appear for trial today in Criminal Court. Robert C. Martinez is the other suspect. It was unknown if Harder was to have been a witness in Fletcher's trial.

A farmer discovered the body about 7:30 a.m. in a soybean field about 2½ miles west of Interstate 55 and one mile south of Dwight, said Livingston County Sheriff William Frye. Harder had been shot once in the face.

FRYE SAID county investigators, Illinois State Police and FBI agents investigating the death, had not come up with a motive for the incident. Authorities said Harder's pockets had been turned inside out, indicating he did not commit suicide.

The sheriff said although laboratory tests have not been completed, authorities estimate the time of death may have been about midnight Friday. Frye reported Harder was shot at close range, probably while at the field, and that there were no signs of rope marks or bruises that might have indicated abduction.

A small caliber bullet was extracted during the autopsy, and it is believed the bullet did not come from the .765 mm. pistol found under the body, authorities said. Harder's body was found near a car registered to his wife, Patricia.

IN CONNECTION with the Raymond case, Jesse Millard, Hoffman Estates, was under investigation until he was killed during a holdup of an Indiana coin shop. Fletcher was arrested after the attempted robbery July 25, 1973. Martinez was later arrested in Las Vegas, Nev.

Raymond's remains were found in August, 1973, in a shallow grave in a wooded area adjacent to a farm owned by Fletcher's sister in Rhinelander, Wis. The patrolman was abducted Oct. 1, 1972, while making a traffic stop on an entrance ramp to the Eisenhower Expressway. Police have theorized that Raymond may have stopped men who had just robbed a Hillside restaurant.

Harder had served time in jail for armed robbery. He had been indicted in connection with operation of an abortion ring, but the charges were dismissed after a state statute on abortion had been ruled illegal.

Police intensify search for attacker

Police have intensified their efforts to find a man who has assaulted teen-age girls in both Buffalo Grove and Deerfield, after a third assault last week.

Deerfield police said a 15-year-old girl was "accosted" about 7:20 p.m. Thursday. Police said the girl was unharmed except for a cut she got when she fought off her attacker.

"The basic description is the same," said a Deerfield policeman, who was asked if police believe the latest attacker to be the same man who attacked a girl in each town the night of Sept. 20.

The Buffalo Grove incident occurred on Chatham Circle near Beechwood Road about 10:30 p.m. Sept. 20.

The suspect is described as white, aged 19 to 21, 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet tall, 200 pounds, with a beard and shoulder-length

"frizzy" hair. Buffalo Grove police have said they believe the man is a Buffalo Grove resident.

Inflation forecast: cloudy, little change...

Abner Mikva

Mikva: oust Butz, prevent excess profits

by STEVE BROWN

Remember the 62 cents you paid for a dozen eggs in June? A year from now, you may be paying that much for just five eggs.

A graphic demonstration by congressional candidate Abner J. Mikva shows how high food prices are headed.

Mikva Friday reported on the results of first three months of his survey of grocery prices in the 10th Congressional District, where he is seeking to unseat U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

He noted that prices are continuing to soar and laid out a variety of food items to show how much could be purchased in June versus what inflation will mean in 1975. He predicted food prices will increase 33 per cent in the next year.

BESIDES EGGS, comparisons were made for bacon, chuck steak, Jello, pork chops, shortening and crackers. In most cases the amounts decreased

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young

between what could have been purchased in June and what a shopper will be able to buy in June 1975.

Mikva proposed a series of government moves which he believes should at least slow the rise of food costs.

Young: move to cut spending by government

U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, believes reduced government spending could help bring inflation to an acceptable rate, but only after another one or two years.

Young said pressures on the economy brought about by excessive government spending are "a major factor" in inflation and said a balanced federal budget is vital to cooling inflation.

"In the last 10 years, the government has spent $100 billion more than it has taken in," Young said Friday. He estimated that Congress this year will produce a budget of about $300 billion, $5 billion in excess of expected revenues.

The freshman congressman, now engaged in an effort to gain his second term in an election contest with Democrat Abner J. Mikva, whom he narrowly defeated in 1972, also advocated reductions in military spending, realignment (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

U.S. Rep. Philip Crane

Crane: cut spending

If you earn $15,173 this year — the average income in the 12th Congressional District — you will need to earn $30,346 by 1983 just to stay even, said U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

In a position paper on inflation, Crane pointed out that a (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

City loses again in court battle over sewage plant

The City of Des Plaines has lost again before the Illinois Supreme Court in its battle to keep a sewage treatment plant out of the city's west side.

The court ruled Friday the city does not have the authority to make the Metropolitan Sanitary District conform to local zoning regulations, despite the city's new home-rule powers.

Now, the city's recently passed environmental ordinance setting strict standards for sewage plant construction will be the "next line of defense" in the fight with the sanitary district, Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, said Sunday.

The plant, to be constructed at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street, has been the subject of an eight-year court battle between the city and the sanitary district. Elk Grove Village joined the fray early last year when village officials hinted they might sue Des Plaines in an effort to end the city's delaying tactics.

THE LAWSUIT WENT before the Supreme Court after the MSD appealed an Illinois Appellate Court decision allowing the city a hearing on its contention that the MSD must follow city zoning and building codes because of the city's home-rule powers.

Ward declined to give his reaction to the court decision, but said, "We're looking to the ordinance we adopted last June for protection." Mayor Herbert Behret and Corporation Counsel Robert DiLeonardi could not be reached for comment Sunday.

The ordinance entitled "Health and Welfare Standards for Waste and Sewage Treatment Plants and Works" imposes strict standards aimed at local control over the plant.

City officials have been fighting construction of the 100-million-gallon-per-day plant since 1966.

Ward said he has talked to federal authorities who have told him that because the plant is involved in a "grant-funding condition" the MSD must meet standards put forth in the ordinance.

THE ORDINANCE prohibits discharge of odors or bacteria into the atmosphere and installation of any equipment or facilities that cause or contribute to emission of odors or bacteria. The new standards were drawn up with the belief that the city can enforce local controls under regulations set by the U.S. and Illinois environmental protection agencies.

Des Plaines lost its first fight with the MSD after appealing the case all the way to the supreme court. City officials filed a new lawsuit in 1972, contending that home — rule powers granted to the city in the 1970 Illinois Constitution gave Des Plaines the power to enforce local codes and ordinances against the district.

A Circuit Court judge dismissed the second suit ruling that a decision already had been made in the case and that home-rule powers did not change the situation. The Illinois Appellate Court ruled last year that Des Plaines was entitled to a new hearing because it raised the home-rule provisions.

A CARNIVAL atmosphere surrounded the Maine East High School homecoming celebration, "The Greatest Show on Earth." In addition to a pep rally, street dance and king-and-queen contests, students took part in games carnival ranging from three-legged races to the baseball toss. Blue Demons beat Highland Park 14-6.

Youth shot in liquor store robbery

A Mount Prospect youth is in the intensive care unit of Holy Family Hospital after he was shot Saturday by robbers during a holdup of a Des Plaines liquor store where he works as a stockboy.

David Turner, 16, of 819 We-Go Tr., was shot in the right shoulder with a sawed-off shotgun as he lay on the floor of Williams Liquors, 840 Elmhurst Rd. Des Plaines police said the attack was apparently unprovoked.

According to reports, three men and a woman, all in their early 20s, entered the store about 11:30 p.m. Saturday, brandished weapons and announced a holdup. The men, who covered their hair with multi-colored bandanas, carried automatic pistols and the shotgun.

The female accomplice was reportedly wearing blue slacks and a low-cut blouse. All the suspects are black, police said.

Turner, another stockboy and a woman clerk were forced to lie on the floor by the robbers. There were no customers in the store at the time of the robbery, police said.

Before the robbers fled, one shot Turner. The other two employees were not injured, police said.

An undetermined amount of cash was taken by the bandits, according to police.

The suspects escaped on foot. Witnesses said they were last seen running between a doughnut shop and hamburger stand near the liquor store.

An areawide bulletin has been issued for the four.

A spokesman at Holy Family Hospital said Turner was in the intensive care unit. No other details or condition report was available Sunday.

Those falling leaves—a yearly burning issue

Leaf burners beware. Most Northwest suburbs prohibit open burning of leaves.

But, for persons who find delight in the autumn smell, a few local municipalities allow leaf destruction.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board is banned from regulating leaf burning and relies on local communities for prohibition of the anti-environmental burning.

Local regulations include:

- Mount Prospect: Village Mgr. Robert Eppeley said that he is "unaware" of an ordinance banning burning.

- Elk Grove Village: Village Mgr. Charles Willis said that open burning is banned, but leaves can burn in containers.

- Buffalo Grove: Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said that leaf burning is prohibited.

- Wheeling: Village Clerk Evelyn Diens said that the ordinance banning burning is "vague." The law prohibits fires on public grounds or near buildings where a fire hazard may result. Fire officials said the department does not stop burning of leaves.

- Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg: Burning is prohibited.

- Rolling Meadows: Burning is prohibited.

- Arlington Heights: Officials said that an ordinance prohibits burning.

Des Plaines: A 1965 ordinance prohibits burning of "standing hay or grass or any leaves gathered on streets, curbside, alleyways, parkways or park property."

- Palatine: Village Pres. Wendell Jones said that burning is banned. "If people in Palatine want to go back to the system (of burning leaves), they can petition the village board to consider it."

Most officials encourage homeowners to use leaf or garbage bags for disposal.

Illinois prohibited leaf burning for three years "when it was the environmental thing to do," Jones said. In October 1973, Gov. Daniel Walker signed a law that prohibits state regulation of leaf burning.

The IPCB can restrict burning in any area if medical and biological evidence shows that "contaminants" could cause injury to "human, plant or animal life."

City buildings cost soars 33% in 18 months

by STEVE BROWN

The budget for the new Des Plaines municipal complex, city hall, police building and parking garage, has apparently soared by one third, or nearly $1 million, in 18 months.

Preliminary cost figures for the parking garage, third phase of the overall municipal center building program, indicate that the facility will cost nearly $700,000.

Financial consultants who have been working with city officials on the project said that about $2.1 million in general obligation bonds will be needed to build the police building and the parking garage. The city sold about $2 million in bonds last year to pay for the six-story city hall building.

After cost estimates for the garage were released Thursday, several aldermen called for a reevaluation of the city parking plans.

It now appears the overall project will cost about $4 million rather than $3 million that had been estimated about 18 months ago.

ALD. CHARLES BOLEK, 3rd, suggested the city study the possibility of obtaining land along the north side of Jefferson Street for parking space instead of building a three-story parking garage.

He argued that ground-level parking space could be more economical than selling bonds to finance the above-ground structure.

Other aldermen, including Joseph Szabo, 1st, and Thomas Koplos, 1st, contended that taking the land on the north side of Jefferson would represent inefficient use of land and remove property from the tax rolls.

City officials noted the 25 per cent price increase in the overall project is due to inflation.

BIDS FOR THE new police structure totaled $1,064,063, but with incidentals and various fees, landscaping and furnishing costs, the total price will be about $1.3 million.

City officials hope to award contracts for the police building within the next month. A new study of the parking situation will also be made to determine what is the most feasible means of providing parking for the new facilities.

While the garage will include about 155 parking spaces, 27 of the spaces will be used as an enclosed, heated parking area for police vehicles. That portion of the structure will cost about $136,000.

Four local men charged with pharmacy burglary

Four Des Plaines men, three of them brothers, have been charged with a pharmacy burglary through the quick action of a recently promoted Arlington Heights police lieutenant.

Area police are trying to determine whether the four were involved in any other recent similar pharmacy break-ins in the Northwest suburbs.

Lt. LeRoy Weith, who was promoted Sept. 20, was checking businesses along Northwest Highway on foot about 1 a.m. Friday when he noticed a mound of rubble on the floor of Sidor's Pharmacy, 520 W. Northwest Hwy. Using his flashlight, Weith sighted a hole in the ceiling and discovered ransacked drawers.

AFTER CALLING two backup patrol cars, Weith captured one suspect as he attempted to jump off the roof of the building. He then saw and captured a second man who was hiding on the roof.

Taken into custody were William L. Porm, 20, and James Miller, 19. Both suspects gave their address as 9813 La Casa, Des Plaines.

25 years with Centel

Helen Katchmar, a service assistant for Centel Telephone Co. is celebrating her 25th year with the company.

Mrs. Katchmar started with the company as an operator in 1949. When dial telephones were introduced to the area a great deal of her time was spent helping customers learn how to use the new equipment. She is now serving in directory assistance a job she feels offers new challenges every day.

The Katchmars live at 2437 Rusty Dr., in Des Plaines. They have a son, a daughter, and four grandchildren.

A short time later, Sgt. Ralph Martinson found James Porm, 21, of 8812 Dee Rd., Des Plaines, asleep in a car parked across the street from the pharmacy. Martinson said the car was parked in a row of cars belonging to an auto agency.

A third brother, Steve Porm, 18, also of the Dee Road address, was arrested by Arlington Heights police five hours after the first two suspects were captured. Steve Porm was identified through photographs after he first reportedly gave a stolen driver's license as identification.

POLICE SAID a laundry bag containing 21 bottles of narcotics, amphetamines and barbiturates, watches, a radio and a tape player was found on the roof. Also recovered were several rolls of coins, a walkie-talkie radio, gloves, tools believed to have been used to cut a hole in the roof, four taffy apples and four bags of strawberry twist candy, police said.

Steve Porm was charged with possession of stolen property and burglary and released on $1,500 bond. William Porm was charged with burglary and released on $1,000 bond.

James Porm and James Miller were charged with burglary and were released on $1,500 bond each.

The four men are scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Oct. 25.

Recent area pharmacy break-ins include the Sept. 15 entry at Doretti's Pharmacy, 210 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights; Victor's Pharmacy 1060 N. Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect, on Aug. 2 and Sept. 14; and a Walgreen Co. pharmacy Aug. 24, 1610 Mount Prospect Plaza, Mount Prospect, Aug. 24. Money and drugs were taken in all the burglaries, police said.

Two suspects have been arrested in the Aug. 2 break-in at Victor's Pharmacy.

Preschool class for parents

Two separate courses to help parents with preschool children will be offered this fall by the Maine-Niles Township Adult and Continuing Education Program (MONACEP).

The courses are adopted from "Making the Most of the Preschool Years," a MONACEP class offered for the past two years by Patricia Handzel and Phyllis Koehnline.

Class A, scheduled for Mondays at 7:30 p.m. at Niles North High School, will begin today. It will focus on early learning, toys and creative play, nursery schools, art and first aid.

Class B will meet Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. at Maine East High School. The first class was held last week. The class will deal with stages a preschooler goes through, methods of discipline, music, crafts and books for the young child.

Each course will run for eight weeks. Tuition for residents of Maine and Niles townships is $10. More information is available from the MONACEP office, 696-3600.

Weekend at Lake Delton

Thirty handicapped children spent a three-day weekend at Camp Chi in Lake Delton, Wis. This was the first overnighter that the Maine-Niles Assn. of Recreation for Handicapped had planned and it was so successful that a week-long residential camping experience is being planned and will be offered next summer.

The Maine-Niles Assn. of Recreation for the Handicapped full programs are now in progress with programs set up to meet the needs of all handicapped children and adults in the area. For further information call 674-1500, ext. 35.

Nimrod at Oakton College

State Sen. John Nimrod, Republican candidate for reelection in the 4th Legislative District, will appear at the Oakton Community College "Election '74" class Wednesday.

Nimrod will speak to the class, which meets between 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. in Building 6 on the Oakton interim campus, Oakton and Nagle streets in Morton Grove. The public is invited.

Inflation forecast: cloudy, little change...

Abner Mikva

Mikva: oust Butz, prevent excess profits

by STEVE BROWN

Remember the 62 cents you paid for a dozen eggs in June? A year from now, you may be paying that much for just five eggs.

A graphic demonstration by congressional candidate Abner J. Mikva shows how high food prices are headed.

Mikva Friday reported on the results of first three months of his survey of grocery prices in the 10th Congressional District, where he is seeking to unseat U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

He noted that prices are continuing to soar and laid out a variety of food items to show how much could be purchased in June versus what inflation will mean in 1975. He predicted food prices will increase 33 per cent in the next year.

BESIDES EGGS, comparisons were made for bacon, chuck steak, Jello, pork chops, shortening and crackers. In most cases the amounts decreased between what could have been purchased in June and what a shopper will be able to buy in June 1975.

Mikva proposed a series of government moves which he believes should at least slow the rise of food costs.

Young: move to cut spending by government

U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, believes reduced government spending could help bring inflation to an acceptable rate, but only after another one or two years.

Young said pressures on the economy brought about by excessive government spending are "a major factor" in inflation and said a balanced federal budget is vital to cooling inflation.

"In the last 10 years, the government has spent $100 billion more than it has taken in," Young said Friday. He estimated that Congress this year will produce a budget of about $300 billion, $5 billion in excess of expected revenues.

The freshman congressman, now engaged in an effort to gain his second term in an election contest with Democrat Abner J. Mikva, whom he narrowly defeated in 1972, also advocated reductions in military spending, realignment (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

Environment law next line of defense?

Des Plaines loses again in fight over sewage plant

The City of Des Plaines has lost again before the Illinois Supreme Court in its battle to keep a sewage treatment plant out of the city's west side.

The court ruled Friday the city does not have the authority to make the Metropolitan Sanitary District conform to local zoning regulations, despite the city's new home-rule powers.

Now, the city's recently passed environmental ordinance setting strict standards for sewage plant construction will be the "next line of defense" in the fight with the sanitary district, Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, said Sunday.

The plant, to be constructed at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street, has been the subject of an eight-year court battle between the city and the sanitary district. Elk Grove Village joined the fray early last year when village officials hinted they might sue Des Plaines in an effort to end the city's delaying tactics.

THE LAWSUIT WENT before the Supreme Court after the MSD appealed an Illinois Appellate Court decision allowing the city a hearing on its contention that the MSD must follow city zoning and building codes because of the city's home-rule powers.

Ward declined to give his reaction to the court decision, but said, "We're looking to the ordinance we adopted last June for protection." Mayor Herbert Behrel and Corporation Counsel Robert DiLeonardi could not be reached for comment Sunday.

The ordinance entitled "Health and Welfare Standards for Waste and Sewage Treatment Plants and Works" imposes strict standards aimed at local control over the plant.

City officials have been fighting construction of the 100-million-gallon-per-day plant since 1966.

Ward said he has talked to federal authorities who have told him that because the plant is involved in a "grant-funding condition" the MSD must meet standards put forth in the ordinance.

THE ORDINANCE prohibits discharge

Parks to update recreational needs

The Elk Grove Park Board is considering hiring a consultant to update the master plan for development of local recreational facilities.

The original plan was devised by a consultant from the University of Illinois about seven years ago, shortly after the park district was formed.

Since that time, the park district has acquired 1,100 acres west of Ill. Rte. 53 and park commissioners are interested in advice on what the park district should provide in that area.

The park board last week directed Parks Supt. Jack Claes to research the cost of updating the master plan and recommend consultants at the next meeting Oct. 10.

of odors or bacteria into the atmosphere and installation of any equipment or facilities that cause or contribute to emission of odors or bacteria. The new standards were drawn up with the belief that the city can enforce local controls under regulations set by the U.S. and Illinois environmental protection agencies.

Des Plaines lost its first fight with the MSD after appealing the case all the way to the supreme court. City officials filed a new lawsuit in 1972, contending that home — rule powers granted to the city in the 1970 Illinois Constitution gave Des Plaines the power to enforce local codes and ordinances against the district.

A Circuit Court judge dismissed the second suit ruling that a decision already had been made in the case and that home-rule powers did not change the situation. The Illinois Appellate Court ruled last year that Des Plaines was entitled to a new hearing because it raised the home-rule provisions.

The sanitary district took the case to the supreme court, arguing that home-rule authority does not give Des Plaines the right to regulate construction of the plant. The court agreed with the MSD in the 5-to-2 decision announced Friday.

WARD SAID HE did not know if the ruling would just affect Des Plaines or "the home-rule powers of everyone."

Most of the resident objections have come from persons who live near the site of the proposed plant. They contended the proximity of the facility could pose a health hazard to their families.

GEORGE CONEY, left, chairman of the Elk Grove Salvation Army Service Unit, looks over some literature with Jim Fagerson, treasurer of the unit. Coney hopes to find residents needing Salvation Army services.

Need funds? Let George's group do it

by JILL BETTNER

There is a charitable organization in Elk Grove Village with an almost unlimited amount of money available to people in trouble. Need is the only requirement for assistance and nothing is asked in return.

The group is the Elk Grove Salvation Army Service Unit, a relatively unknown, little-used benevolent organization that has been in the community for about 10 years.

Headed by George Coney, village director of finance, the local unit is part of a nationwide network of Salvation Army divisions whose members are usually most visible at Christmas time. During the holiday season, the uniformed volunteers form small bands to play carols on street corners across the country and ask passersby to fill small red kettles with money for the poor.

Although the local unit has been relatively inactive for the past several years and currently has only three members, Coney said efforts will be made this fall to encourage residents to join the organization and to identify persons in the community who could benefit from its help.

"I guess one of the problems with the Salvation Army in general is that it's (Continued on Page 5)

Those falling leaves—a yearly burning issue

Leaf burners beware. Most Northwest suburbs prohibit open burning of leaves.

But, for persons who find delight in the autumn smell, a few local municipalities allow leaf destruction.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board is banned from regulating leaf burning and relies on local communities for prohibition of the anti-environmental burning.

Local regulations include:

• Mount Prospect: Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said that he is "unaware" of an ordinance banning burning.

• Elk Grove Village: Village Mgr. Charles Willis said that open burning is banned, but leaves can burn in containers.

• Buffalo Grove: Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said that leaf burning is prohibited.

• Wheeling: Village Clerk Evelyn Diens said that the ordinance banning burning is "vague." The law prohibits fires on public grounds or near buildings where a fire hazard may result. Fire officials said the department does not stop burning of leaves.

• Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg: Burning is prohibited.

• Rolling Meadows: Burning is prohibited.

• Arlington Heights: Officials said that an ordinance prohibits burning.

Des Plaines: A 1965 ordinance prohibits burning of "standing hay or grass or any leaves gathered on streets, curbside, alleyways, parkways or park property."

• Palatine: Village Pres. Wendell Jones said that burning is banned. "If people in Palatine want to go back to the system (of burning leaves), they can petition the village board to consider it."

Most officials encourage homeowners to use leaf or garbage bags for disposal.

Illinois prohibited leaf burning for three years "when it was the environmental thing to do," Jones said. In October 1973, Gov. Daniel Walker signed a law that prohibits state regulation of leaf burning.

The IPCB can restrict burning in any area if medical and biological evidence shows that "contaminants" could cause injury to "human, plant or animal life."

Dist. 211 wrapup*Signal at Hoffman High rejected

A request for money for a traffic signal at Hoffman Estates High School was denied last week by the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education.

The Village of Hoffman Estates asked the board to contribute between $9,000 and $10,000 for a traffic light at Gannon Drive and Higgins Road. The signal, which village officials estimate would cost about $45,000, would be near the front of the high school, 1100 W. Higgins.

Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek said Thursday he is opposed to sharing the cost. The school district has denied such requests in the past, said Creek, who said the $45,000 figure is probably too low.

Traffic signals are needed at three other schools in the district, said Creek. Traffic for Conant High School is congested at the intersection of Old Plum Grove Road and Higgins Road in Hoffman Estates, and at Illinois Avenue and Quentin Road for Fremd High School in Palatine. A signal could also be used on Schaumburg Road at Schaumburg High School.

"I don't believe we can act on one request," said Creek, since the other schools have traffic problems. He said Dist. 211 asked the state to install the signal for Hoffman Estates High School when Higgins Road was being repaved. The state denied the request.

Late buses begin runs

Late buses began running on an experimental basis Sept. 23 in High School Dist. 211. A total of 168 students took the bus on the first day of operation and 244 students rode on the second day.

The late bus for students in athletic and other extra-curricular activities is the result of a request from two parents who said their children do not have a ride home after school activities. Mr. and Mrs. William Coritelli from Hanover Park made the request earlier this month and the board agreed to run a late bus until Oct. 11.

The Coritellis said some students are forced to drop out of activities because they do not have transportation. The board wants to see how many students will take the bus before continuing it. The bus is now free to students but board members have thought of charging a fee.

Of the 244 students who took the bus Tuesday, 34 students were from Conant High School, 93 from Fremd High School, 38 from Hoffman Estates High School, 37 from Palatine High School, and 44 from Schaumburg High School. The buses leave each of the five schools at about 6:40 p.m. each evening.

Replica of Apollo module planned for school park site

A replica of the Apollo Command Module that landed on the moon in 1969 is scheduled to touch down in Elk Grove Village this week.

The module will not come soaring through the skies, but will arrive instead on the back of a flatbed truck from Houston, Tex.

The module is a 17,000-pound, 14-foot "boilerplate" that was used in space as an unmanned recovery vehicle in training and drop tests by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

It was obtained by the park district with the cooperation of U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and officials at the Air and Space Museum in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

The park district plans to place the module on a pad at Adolph Link School, 900 Southwest Glenn Trail Rd. Dedication of the park, currently under construction, is set for sometime next month.

Jack Claes, park superintendent, said hatches on the outside of the vehicle will be welded shut to prevent children from climbing inside.

Park district officials wanted to obtain a space vehicle for a park west of Ill. Rte. 53, Claes said, because streets in the area are named after astronauts.

The still-unnamed park at Link School will span about 13 acres. Part of the park will include property across the street, which the park district is leasing from the Lutheran Church. The land is to be used for a football field and open play area.

Youth shot in liquor store robbery in Des Plaines

A Mount Prospect youth is in the intensive care unit of Holy Family Hospital after he was shot Saturday by robbers during a holdup of a Des Plaines liquor store where he works as a stockboy.

David Turner, 18, of 819 We-Go Tr., was shot in the right shoulder with a sawed-off shotgun as he lay on the floor of Williams Liquors, 840 Elmhurst Rd. Des Plaines police said the attack was apparently unprovoked.

According to reports, three men and a woman, all in their early 20s, entered the store about 11:30 p.m. Saturday, brandished weapons and announced a holdup. The men, who covered their hair with multi-colored bandanas, carried automatic pistols and the shotgun.

The female accomplice was reportedly wearing blue slacks and a low-cut blouse. All the suspects are black, police said.

Turner, another stockboy and a woman clerk were forced to lie on the floor by the robbers. There were no customers in the store at the time of the robbery, police said.

Before the robbers fled, one shot Turner. The other two employees were not injured, police said.

An undetermined amount of cash was taken by the bandits, according to police. The suspects escaped on foot. Witnesses said they were last seen running between a doughnut shop and hamburger stand near the liquor store.

An areawide bulletin has been issued for the four.

by JOE SWICKARD

There's Bud, his dog, Boy, and his pack pony, Maybelline, off on a walk to see America, talk to the people, learn something about it and them.

Northwest Highway is the high-speed artery of the Northwest suburbs. Car lots, real estate offices and fast-food franchises draw their nourishment from the people and cars that race past them daily.

Tethered to a fence at the Burger King on the highway in Palatine is something from another time. A pack pony, loaded with 145 pounds of gear, including a fishing spear and a set of snow shoes, draws children and causes cars to slow to a creep. A backpack, guarded by a dog, is leaned against the building.

BUD KENNY, having finished his Whopper, strides out of the Burger King ready to be on his way.

"I'm walking to Oregon, up through Montana. The Northern route. We started in Leola, Pa., and we're going to Oregon and then down to San Francisco and back across to Hot Springs, Ark.," said Bud.

It is planned as a year-long, 6,000-mile learning adventure for Bud Kenny, 26-year-old former Oklahoma City disc jockey. When he's through, hopefully about September, 1975, he plans to look over his notes, revisit some of the people he's met and then write a series of journals about it.

"I was a disk jockey in Oklahoma City, making a buck here and spending it there. I wanted to slow down, relax and get to know the country and the people," he said with a trace of the peculiar twanging drawl of Oklahoma.

BUD DECIDED to take his time about it. Maybelline, his pony, was pure practicality to help carry his load as he walked.

Practical origins or not, Maybelline quickly became a device to meet people. Naturally, folks are going to want to talk to a man walking down destination is Hot Springs, Ark., by way of Oregon. After the 6,000 mile trek, Kenny plans a series of journals.

the road leading a packpony with flowers in the bridle.

"People will stop me and get to chatting. It gives me the chance to find out about their lives, the history of the area and about the people who live there," Bud said.

Although he travels by country roads (Northwest Highway is the busiest road to date), he makes a point to go through the cities and towns along the route.

"I came into Chicago on 47th Street. They told me it was a ghetto, but after seeing Cleveland, it looked pretty nice. Kids come up to me and want to see who I am and pet the pony. A lot of them in the city never have that chance," he said.

Maybelline (named after the old Chuck Berry record) is well suited for the task. "Kids can pet her, stroke her nose or pull her tail. She doesn't mind a bit," he said.

TO PREPARE himself for his journey, Bud worked for a year with horses in Pennsylvania, reading what he could about early explorers and gathering or making his equipment.

"I'm poor financially. People I meet help me out. In the cities they give me a place to sleep. Of course, in the country, we have to sleep outdoors," he said, adding the trip will cost about $2,000.

Bud said he tries to eat the best he can as cheaply as he can. That means cactails and dandelions for greens, but so far no wild hickory nuts or the edible parts of the pine tree.

Odd jobs also help finance his way. In Indiana he helped a man split old telephone poles for a rail fence.

BUD EXPECTS the road ahead to be rough. The leaves are turning early this year and there has already been a foot and a half of snow in Denver. But he said he was "looking forward" to wintering on the western range.

"Adventures? I've had all kinds of adventures. Just coming into Ohio in Amish country and young girl was in a buggy and her horse saw Maybelline and bolted," he said. The runaway horse was stopped and the girl was uninjured.

"I found out that people are good — damned good. It's the people that are the greatest adventure," said Bud as he took Boy's leash and Maybelline's line and headed west on the road to meet America.

never publicized its work — you know, tooted its own horn," Coney said. "People just don't know we're around, but we want to change that."

CONEY BELIEVES that many Elk Grove Village residents could use the kinds of services the Salvation Army provides and he is hoping to contact them through social workers in the police department, school nurses and community groups.

"Many people think these are affluent suburbs, but the fact is there are a lot of people in need out here — people who came from the city looking for jobs that turned out to be unavailable, for example," Coney said.

He added that while there are other similar charitable groups to aid indigent families and provide emergency assistance following disasters, the Salvation Army unit has money — lots of it — readily available to whoever really needs help, no questions asked.

The local unit is one of 21 community units in 10 divisions of The Salvation Army Chicago Metropolitan Area Service Unit Council. The Elk Grove unit receives a portion of donations collected in direct mail appeals made to Chicago residents twice yearly, plus is able to draw funds from the central office at any time.

CONEY STRESSED, however, that the Salvation Army will not give handouts to anyone. Instead of money, the group will provide clothing, shelter, food, medical aid or other needed items.

Despite the impression of many people that the Salvation Army is a church-sponsored organization, Coney said it is not affiliated with any religious sect.

"I know a lot of people feel they'll have to listen to a sermon or something before they get even coffee and doughnuts, but that's just not true," he commented.

Later this fall, a meeting is planned of officers of the 23 community Salvation Army Service Units in the Northern Cook County Division to exchange ideas on what kinds of services the local groups should provide.

Currently, Coney said, most local money is spent on Project Vision Care in which the Salvation Army works with school nurses in providing eyeglasses for children whose families are unable to buy them.

THE UNIT also sometimes provides clothing for school children of indigent families and last year set up a program to send needy kids to summer camp for a week in Wisconsin.

In addition, the group supports the Northwest Cook County Dental Clinic in Des Plaines that provides free dental care for those who cannot pay for professional services, and supplies the Salvation Army canteen truck for area emergencies such as fires and floods.

For the first time last Christmas, the local unit manned red kettles at the two shopping centers and the Bank of Elk Grove. In response to letters to nearly all service groups and organizations in the community, the unit obtained one volunteer worker.

Coney said he is hoping through mailings and personal contacts this fall that more local residents will become aware of the Salvation Army Service Unit and get involved not only in the Christmas fund-raising effort, but in projects year round.

THE LIFE OF the American Indian was the topic of Alford Waters, a Sioux Indian, who spoke to Lively Junior High students Friday. The students collected canned goods for Indian families in the Chicago area.

Night-duty switchboard operator Barbara Ryabik, Elk Grove Village, has been selected as October Employee of the month by her fellow employes at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

She has been an employee of the medical center since 1968. She began working as a unit coordinator on the night shift in the emergency room and in 1969 transferred to the communications department as the switchboard operator on the night tour of duty.

Evelyn Severson, her supervisor, said "Performing an outstanding job as the only operator on duty during that shift, she uses good judgment and acts quickly when necessary."

Program begins Tuesday

Free library cards, service for residents of township

The Palatine Public Library will begin a free library card and service program Tuesday for residents of unincorporated Palatine Township.

The library has received "preliminary approval" from the state for a $92,260 federal "Project Plus" grant that will allow the library "to promote a larger unit of service to more people," said Andrea Balcken, administrative librarian.

Residents in unincorporated Palatine Township will be eligible for a library card and service from the Palatine library beginning Tuesday, when the federal grant becomes effective. The library will begin the program even though formal approval for the grant is not expected from Illinois Sec. of State Michael Howlett for another two weeks, Miss Balcken said.

Residents in areas outside the village have paid $30 a year for a Palatine library card. Residents in unincorporated areas who have purchased cards for 1974 will receive a partial reimbursement for the library services. The project will be conducted with no extra cost to village residents who pay library taxes.

Miss Balcken plans to hire six library staff members, and rent and service a bookmobile in the unincorporated areas with the grant money. Two staff members will work in the library and help accommodate the increase in residents using the library during "Project Plus."

The other four staff members will work on library extension programs for the unincorporated areas during the next year which will include a bookmobile, storytelling, lectures, films, discussions and crafts.

The library will establish a committee of representatives from the unincorporated areas to make recommendations on the type of extension services that could be made.

The library also will receive $13,000 from the North Suburban Library System, of which it is a member, to purchase books because of the increase in library patrons, Miss Balcken said.

THE TWO-YEAR program allows residents outside the library boundaries to use library services free for one year while the federal government subsidizes the library.

Unincorporated area residents will vote in a referendum next spring whether to be included in the Palatine Library District and continue to receive library services on a tax-supported basis.

There are 18,452 residents of unincorporated Palatine Township.

The federal government will fund the library with another $92,260 grant for a second year, from October 1975 to September 1976, if residents in unincorporated Palatine and the Village of Palatine both approve the referendum and agree to the extension of the library boundaries. If either of the referenda fails, the federal funding for "Project Plus" will cease.

The library board is free to extend its boundaries now as a district library with referendum approval from all of the residents involved. The library received approval to become a district in a referendum Sept. 10.

MISS BALCKEN explained that because the library will be establishing its own district, it would like to expand its boundaries to include areas surrounding the Village of Palatine that have no library service of their own. The two-year federal grant is offered by the government "to assure that everyone has library service just like everyone should be insured school service," she said.

"We are just going to try to take the library to the people who have had no library services of their own, with no extra cost to the village residents. Then, if they don't want to be included in the library district, they can vote no on the referendum. But at least we'll try," Miss Balcken said.

The Palatine Public Library is currently at 149 N. Brockway St., but a $1.5 million facility is under construction at the southwest corner of Benton Street and Northwest Highway, scheduled for completion next June.

A GIANT STEEL ant has become an accepted member of the Little City community in Palatine. Brian Garrick, 26, a sculpture student at the Art Institute of Chicago, stands along side his creation which weighs 400 pounds and was made from scrap metal and with an arc-welder and oxygen-acetylene torches. It took Garrick one year to complete the ant which now rests on the community lawn. It will oxidize in the sun, causing the metal to turn red.

Race track hearing to draw crowd

Homeowners, school and park district officials, and representatives of Arlington Park Race Track will converge tonight at a public hearing before the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The hearing at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., has been called because of the race track's request to extend its annexation agreement with Arlington Heights for five more years. The agreement, signed in 1969, is scheduled to expire Oct. 20.

Village Pres. Ralph H. Clabour said he is not planning any special ground rules for tonight's hearing. However, he said he hopes homeowners' associations will have prepared their remarks in advance and designated representatives to address the board.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS' Westgate Civic Assn. is expected to be well represented. Earlier this month the association sent out nearly 1,000 newsletters to its homeowners, urging their attendance at tonight's meeting.

The Westgate Civic Assn. takes in an area from Kirchoff Road on the south, to Euclid Avenue on the north, and from Wilke Road on the west, to Kennicott Drive on the east.

"This is not just an association problem, it is a problem for the entire village," said Richard Goedke, association president. Goedke said he has talked to some other Arlington Heights homeowners' groups and he expects many of them will send at least their officers to tonight's hearing.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS homeowners apparently will be bolstered by residents from Palatine and Rolling Meadows who live near the race track complex.

Those falling leaves—a yearly burning issue

Leaf burners beware. Most Northwest suburbs prohibit open burning of leaves.

But, for persons who find delight in the autumn smell, a few local municipalities allow leaf destruction.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board is banned from regulating leaf burning and relies on local communities for prohibition of the anti-environmental burning.

Local regulations include:

• Mount Prospect: Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said that he is "unaware" of an ordinance banning burning.

• Elk Grove Village: Village Mgr. Charles Willis said that open burning is banned, but leaves can burn in containers.

• Buffalo Grove: Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said that leaf burning is prohibited.

• Wheeling: Village Clerk Evelyn Diens said that the ordinance banning burning is "vague." The law prohibits fires on public grounds or near buildings where a fire hazard may result. Fire officials said the department does not stop burning of leaves.

• Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg: Burning is prohibited.

• Rolling Meadows: Burning is prohibited.

• Arlington Heights: Officials said that an ordinance prohibits burning.

Des Plaines: A 1965 ordinance prohibits burning of "standing hay or grass or any leaves gathered on streets, curbside, alleyways, parkways or park property."

• Palatine: Village Pres. Wendell Jones said that burning is banned. "If people in Palatine want to go back to the system (of burning leaves), they can petition the village board to consider it."

Most officials encourage homeowners to use leaf or garbage bags for disposal.

Illinois prohibited leaf burning for three years "when it was the environmental thing to do," Jones said. In October 1973, Gov. Daniel Walker signed a law that prohibits state regulation of leaf burning.

The IPCB can restrict burning in any area if medical and biological evidence shows that "contaminants" could cause injury to "human, plant or animal life."

Hearing tonight on race track's housing plans

lington Crest Homeowners Assn. of Palatine, said she expected about 10 association members to attend the hearing. Arlington Crest is located directly north of the race track, across Northwest Highway.

"The idea of 32-story buildings looming over us is a little overwhelming," Mrs. Miramonti said, referring to the race track's plan to develop 5,000 dwelling units on a 190-acre site north of the Arlington Park Towers Hotel over the next 20 years. The plan includes townhouses, apartment buildings, and a dozen 32-story apartment high-rise buildings.

The extension of the annexation agreement and the housing plan are being treated separately by Arlington Heights officials. Race track representatives, however, have linked the two by saying that extending the annexation agreement would permit more flexibility in revising the massive building plan.

RESIDENTS OF THE Dawngate subdivision in Rolling Meadows have said they plan to attend tonight's hearing. Dawngate is west of Ill. Rte. 53 at Euclid Ave. Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 will be represented by Assistant Joseph Kiszka and Paul Jung, administrative assistant for planning.

Kiszka said the school district will not take a position on land development, but will be represented in case of questions about future school enrollments or a school site donation.

Salt Creek Park Dist. Director James DeVoss also is expected to attend the hearing. DeVoss previously has criticized the housing plan because it lacked public recreation facilities. He also has said that he is concerned that all swimming pools, tennis courts and other recreation facilities be built to national park district standards.

There's Bud, his dog, Boy, and his pack pony, Maybelline, off on a walk to see America, talk to the people, learn something about it and them.

Northwest Highway is the high-speed artery of the Northwest suburbs. Car lots, real estate offices and fast-food franchises draw their nourishment from the people and cars that race past them daily.

Tethered to a fence at the Burger King on the highway in Palatine is something from another time. A pack pony, loaded with 145 pounds of gear, including a fishing spear and a set of snow shoes, draws children and causes cars to slow to a creep. A backpack, guarded by a dog, is leaned against the building.

BUD KENNY, having finished his Whopper, strides out of the Burger King ready to be on his way.

"I'm walking to Oregon, up through Montana. The Northern route. We started in Leola, Pa., and we're going to Oregon and then down to San Francisco and back across to Hot Springs, Ark.," said Bud.

It is planned as a year-long, 6,000-mile learning adventure for Bud Kenny, 26-year-old former Oklahoma City disc jockey. When he's through, hopefully about September, 1975, he plans to look over his notes, revisit some of the people he's met and then write a series of journals about it.

"I was a disk jockey in Oklahoma City, making a buck here and spending it there. I wanted to slow down, relax and get to know the country and the people," he said with a trace of the peculiar twanging drawl of Oklahoma.

BUD DECIDED to take his time about it. Maybelline, his pony, was pure practically to help carry his load as he walked.

Practical origins or not, Maybelline quickly became a device to meet people. Naturally, folks are going to want to talk to a man walking down the road leading a packpony with flowers in the bridle.

"People will stop me and get to chatting. It gives me the chance to find out about their lives, the history of the area and about the people who live there," Bud said.

Although he travels by country roads (Northwest Highway is the busiest road to date), he makes a point to go through the cities and towns along the route.

"I came into Chicago on 47th Street. They told me it was a ghetto, but after seeing Cleveland, it looked pretty nice. Kids come up to me and want to see who I am and pet the pony. A lot of them in the city never have that chance," he said.

Maybelline (named after the old Chuck Berry record) is well suited for the task. "Kids can pet her, stroke her nose or pull her tail. She doesn't mind a bit," he said.

TO PREPARE himself for his journey, Bud worked for a year with horses in Pennsylvania, reading what he could about early explorers and gathering or making his equipment.

"I'm poor financially. People I meet help me out. In the cities they give me a place to sleep. Of course, in the country, we have to sleep outdoors," he said, adding the trip will cost about $2,000.

Bud said he tries to eat the best he can as cheaply as he can. That means catfish and dandelions for greens, but so far no wild hickory nuts or the edible parts of the pine tree.

Odd jobs also help finance his way. In Indiana he helped a man split old telephone poles for a rail fence.

BUD EXPECTS the road ahead to be rough. The leaves are turning early this year and there has already been a foot and a half of snow in Denver. But he said he was "looking forward" to wintering on the western range.

"Adventures? I've had all kinds of adventures. Just coming into Ohio in Amish country and young girl was in a buggy and her horse saw Maybelline and bolted," he said. The runaway horse was stopped and the girl was uninjured.

"I found out that people are good — damned good. It's the people that are the greatest adventure" said Bud as he took Boy's leash and Maybelline's line and headed west on the road to meet America.

Pequeno murder trial to begin today; further delay likely

The murder trial of Israel Pequeno, 19, Palatine, is scheduled to begin today but probably will face further delay, the prosecutor said.

Pequeno is charged with the March 26, 1973 shooting death of Sharon Soyka, 17, of 3717 Oriole Ln., Rolling Meadows, who had been dating him. Miss Soyka was found by police in the kitchen of her home with four bullet wounds in her chest. She had quarreled with Pequeno, 503 Westwood, after she told him she wished to stop seeing him, police said. They both were students at Rolling Meadows High School.

Assistant State's Atty. William D. Wolter said witnesses are under subpoena for today's court session, but probably will not be called.

Prosecutors have another murder case, which must open by Tuesday or be dropped, said Wolter. Pequeno's case could be taken up next week, said Wolter, but prosecutors are not required by law to bring the case to trial for 120 days from today.

PEQUENO HAS been held without bond in County Jail since his arrest the day of the murder. He was indicted by the county grand jury in May 1973, and later found competent to stand trial after undergoing psychiatric examinations. Since then, a second sanity investigation, a round of pretrial motions and continuances requested by defense attorney

Raymond Smith have delayed Pequeno's trial.

Pequeno already has been sentenced to serve one to three years in a state penitentiary for delivery of marijuana. He was arrested on that charge one month before the murder, and sentenced two months after Miss Soyka's death. But he will not begin serving the marijuana sentence until after the murder case is resolved.

Elderly woman raped in home

A Chicago man soliciting magazine subscriptions in a Palatine neighborhood last week raped an elderly woman who let him in the house to get a drink of water, police said.

James L. Houston, 18, of 9615 S. Woodlawn, was charged with rape by Palatine police and is scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Friday. The attack occurred Wednesday, police said.

He has been released on $20,000 bond. Sgt. Robert Ward and Det. Norman Beacham arrested Houston in the Dixie Governor Motel in Hazelcrest early Thursday, tracing him on a description given to police by the victim.

Chicago police also have a warrant for Houston on charges of contributing to the sexual delinquency of a minor, Palatine police said.

Inflation forecast: cloudy, little change...

Abner Mikva

Mikva: oust Butz, prevent excess profits

by STEVE BROWN

Remember the 62 cents you paid for a dozen eggs in June? A year from now, you may be paying that much for just five eggs.

A graphic demonstration by congressional candidate Abner J. Mikva shows how high food prices are headed.

Mikva Friday reported on the results of first three months of his survey of grocery prices in the 10th Congressional District, where he is seeking to unseat U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

He noted that prices are continuing to soar and laid out a variety of food items to show how much could be purchased in June versus what inflation will mean in 1975. He predicted food prices will increase 33 per cent in the next year.

BESIDES EGGS, comparisons were made for bacon, chuck steak, Jell-O, pork chops, shortening and crackers.

In most cases the amounts decreased

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young

between what could have been purchased in June and what a shopper will be able to buy in June 1975.

Mikva proposed a series of government moves which he believes should at least slow the rise of food costs.

Young: move to cut spending by government

U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, believes reduced government spending could help bring inflation to an acceptable rate, but only after another one or two years.

Young said pressures on the economy brought about by excessive government spending are "a major factor" in inflation and said a balanced federal budget is vital to cooling inflation.

"In the last 10 years, the government has spent $100 billion more than it has taken in," Young said Friday. He estimated that Congress this year will produce a budget of about $300 billion, $5 billion in excess of expected revenues.

The freshman congressman, now engaged in an effort to gain his second term in an election contest with Democrat Abner J. Mikva, whom he narrowly defeated in 1972, also advocated reductions in military spending, realignment (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

U.S. Rep. Philip Crane

Crane: cut spending

If you earn $15,173 this year — the average income in the 12th Congressional District — you will need to earn $30,346 by 1983 just to stay even, said U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

In a position paper on inflation, Crane pointed out that a (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

Hearing tonight on track's plans for housing complex

Homeowners, school and park district officials, and representatives of Arlington Park Race Track will converge tonight at a public hearing before the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The hearing at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., has been called because of the race track's request to extend its annexation agreement with Arlington Heights for five more years. The agreement, signed in 1969, is scheduled to expire Oct. 20.

Village Pres. Ralph H. Clabour said he is not planning any special ground rules for tonight's hearing. However, he said he hopes homeowners' associations will have prepared their remarks in advance and designated representatives to address the board.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS' Westgate Civic Assn. is expected to be well represented. Earlier this month the association sent out nearly 1,000 newsletters to its homeowners, urging their attendance at tonight's meeting.

The Westgate Civic Assn. takes in an area from Kirchhoff Road on the south, to Euclid Avenue on the north, and from Wilke Road on the west, to Kennicott Drive on the east.

"This is not just an association problem, it is a problem for the entire village," said Richard Goedke, association president. Goedke said he has talked to some other Arlington Heights homeowners' groups and he expects many of them will send at least their officers to tonight's hearing.

"We are interested only in the extension of the annexation agreement and not looking at the development plan (for the race track) at all at this point. We are anti-extending the agreement under any circumstances," he said.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS homeowners apparently will be bolstered by residents from Palatine and Rolling Meadows who live near the race track complex.

Race track disannex—a possibility

Remove Arlington Park Race Track property from the Village of Arlington Heights?

Nonsense, you say? But few remember what happened almost 20 years ago when Arlington Park was involved in another disannexation struggle with the City of Rolling Meadows. Arlington Park won.

The possibility of removing the massive complex from the Arlington Heights Village limits surfaced last week when plans for a housing development on race track land were presented to Arlington Heights officials. An attorney for Madison Square Gardens Corp., owners of the property, said if an agreement could not be reached on housing plans the firm would consider the village in "breach of contract" and disannexation is a possibility.

And according to the 1969 annexation agreement that brought the land into the village, race track officials may remove the land if the village does not live up to its part of the agreement. The entire issue would be settled in court.

IN 1953, ARLINGTON Park was forcibly annexed to the City of Rolling Meadows when the city was formed. Less than a year later, the land was disannexed, after a special bill was passed by the Illinois General Assembly allowing such a move.

Rolling Meadows, appealed the legislation to the Illinois Supreme Court but lost and in 1956 the race track was removed from the city.

In 1956, losing the Arlington Park complex meant a loss of only $2,500 a year. But if the land were taken out of Arlington Heights today the village would lose much more. The village's share of real estate taxes alone last year amounted to $145,000, Madison Square Garden officials said.

Bud said he tries to eat the best he can as cheaply as he can. That means cattails and dandelions for greens, but so far no wild hickory nuts or the edible parts of the pine tree.

Odd jobs also help finance his way. In Indiana he helped a man split old telephone poles for a rail fence.

BUD EXPECTS the road ahead to be rough. The leaves are turning early this year and there has already been a foot and a half of snow in Denver. But he said he was "looking forward" to wintering on the western range.

"Adventures? I've had all kinds of adventures. Just coming into Ohio in Amish country and young girl was in a buggy and her horse saw Maybelline and bolted," he said. The runaway horse was stopped and the girl was uninjured.

"I found out that people are good — damned good. It's the people that are the greatest adventure" said Bud as he took Boy's leash and Maybelline's line and headed west on the road to meet America.

Pequeno murder trial to begin today; further delay likely

Pequeno is charged with the March 28, 1973 shooting death of Sharon Soyka, 17, of 3717 Oriole Ln., Rolling Meadows, who had been dating him. Miss Soyka was found by police in the kitchen of her home with four bullet wounds in her chest. She had quarreled with Pequeno, 503 Westwood, after she told him she wished to stop seeing him, police said. They both were students at Rolling Meadows High School.

Assistant State's Atty. William D. Wolter said witnesses are under subpoena for today's court session, but probably will not be called.

Prosecutors have another murder case, which must open by Tuesday or be dropped, said Wolter. Pequeno's case could be taken up next week, said Wolter, but prosecutors are not required by law to bring the case to trial for 120 days from today.

PEQUENO HAS been held without bond in County Jail since his arrest the day of the murder. He was indicted by the county grand jury in May 1973, and later found competent to stand trial after undergoing psychiatric examinations. Since then, a second sanity investigation, a round of pretrial motions and continuances requested by defense attorney

Raymond Smith have delayed Pequeno's trial.

Pequeno already has been sentenced to serve one to three years in a state penitentiary for delivery of marijuana. He was arrested on that charge one month before the murder, and sentenced two months after Miss Soyka's death. But he will not begin serving the marijuana sentence until after the murder case is resolved.

Inflation forecast: cloudy, little change...

Abner Mikva

Mikva: oust Butz, prevent excess profits

by STEVE BROWN

Remember the 62 cents you paid for a dozen eggs in June? A year from now, you may be paying that much for just five eggs.

A graphic demonstration by congressional candidate Abner J. Mikva shows how high food prices are headed.

Mikva Friday reported on the results of first three months of his survey of grocery prices in the 10th Congressional District, where he is seeking to unseat U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

He noted that prices are continuing to soar and laid out a variety of food items to show how much could be purchased in June versus what inflation will mean in 1975. He predicted food prices will increase 33 per cent in the next year.

BESIDES EGGS, comparisons were made for bacon, chuck steak, Jell-O, pork chops, shortening and crackers.

In most cases the amounts decreased

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young

between what could have been purchased in June and what a shopper will be able to buy in June 1975.

Mikva proposed a series of government moves which he believes should at least slow the rise of food costs.

Young: move to cut spending by government

U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, believes reduced government spending could help bring inflation to an acceptable rate, but only after another one or two years.

Young said pressures on the economy brought about by excessive government spending are "a major factor" in inflation and said a balanced federal budget is vital to cooling inflation.

"In the last 10 years, the government has spent $100 billion more than it has taken in," Young said Friday. He estimated that Congress this year will produce a budget of about $300 billion, $5 billion in excess of expected revenues.

The freshman congressman, now engaged in an effort to gain his second term in an election contest with Democrat Abner J. Mikva, whom he narrowly defeated in 1972, also advocated reductions in military spending, realignment (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

U.S. Rep. Philip Crane

Crane: cut spending

If you earn $15,173 this year — the average income in the 12th Congressional District — you will need to earn $30,346 by 1983 just to stay even, said U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

In a position paper on inflation, Crane pointed out that a (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

Hoffman Estates man killed; figure in cop's slaying

A Hoffman Estates man, believed to have been involved in the unravelling of the 1972 murder of Hillside Patrolman Anthony Raymond, was found shot to death on a farm near Dwight, Ill., Saturday morning.

Livingston County authorities said an Illinois Bureau of Investigation agent identified the victim as Robert Harder, 38, of 581 Caldwell Ln., Hoffman Estates. It was believed that Harder along with other informants supplied information leading to two arrests in connection with the Raymond abduction and murder.

Silas C. Fletcher, Hanover Park, one of the two charged in the policeman's death, is scheduled to appear for trial today in Criminal Court. Robert C. Martinez is the other suspect. It was unknown if Harder was to have been a witness in Fletcher's trial.

A farmer discovered the body about 7:30 a.m. in a soybean field about 2½ miles west of Interstate 55 and one mile south of Dwight, said Livingston County Sheriff William Frye. Harder had been shot once in the face.

FRYE SAID county investigators, Illinois State Police and FBI agents investigating the death, had not come up with a motive for the incident. Authorities said Harder's pockets had been turned inside out, indicating he did not commit suicide.

The sheriff said although laboratory tests have not been completed, authorities estimate the time of death may have been about midnight Friday. Frye reported Harder was shot at close range, probably while at the field, and that there were no signs of rope marks or bruises that might have indicated abduction.

A small caliber bullet was extracted during the autopsy, and it is believed the bullet did not come from the .765 mm. pistol found under the body, authorities said. Harder's body was found near a car registered to his wife, Patricia.

IN CONNECTION with the Raymond case, Jesse Millard, Hoffman Estates, was under investigation until he was killed during a holdup of an Indiana coin shop. Fletcher was arrested after the attempted robbery July 25, 1973. Martinez was later arrested in Las Vegas, Nev.

Raymond's remains were found in August, 1973, in a shallow grave in a wooded area adjacent to a farm owned by Fletcher's sister in Rhinelander, Wis. The patrolman was abducted Oct. 1, 1972, while making a traffic stop on an entrance ramp to the Eisenhower Expressway. Police have theorized that Raymond may have stopped men who had just robbed a Hillside restaurant.

Harder had served time in jail for armed robbery. He had been indicted in connection with operation of an abortion ring, but the charges were dismissed after a state statute on abortion had been ruled illegal.

THE FARMHOUSE in the Moon Lake Village subdivision may become the site of a historical museum for Hoffman Estates. The house, believed to be refurbished for use as a historical and agricultural museum. Story on Page 5.

Those falling leaves—a yearly burning issue

Leaf burners beware. Most Northwest suburbs prohibit open burning of leaves.

But, for persons who find delight in the autumn smell, a few local municipalities allow leaf destruction.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board is banned from regulating leaf burning and relies on local communities for prohibition of the anti-environmental burning.

Local regulations include:

- Mount Prospect: Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said that he is "unaware" of an ordinance banning burning.

- Elk Grove Village: Village Mgr. Charles Willis said that open burning is banned, but leaves can burn in containers.

- Buffalo Grove: Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said that leaf burning is prohibited.

- Wheeling: Village Clerk Evelyn Diens said that the ordinance banning burning is "vague." The law prohibits fires on public grounds or near buildings where a fire hazard may result. Fire officials said the department does not stop burning of leaves.

- Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg: Burning is prohibited.

- Rolling Meadows: Burning is prohibited.

- Arlington Heights: Officials said that an ordinance prohibits burning.

Des Plaines: A 1965 ordinance prohibits burning of "standing hay or grass or any leaves gathered on streets, curbside, alleys, parkways or park property."

- Palatine: Village Pres. Wendell Jones said that burning is banned. "If people in Palatine want to go back to the system (of burning leaves), they can petition the village board to consider it."

Most officials encourage homeowners to use leaf or garbage bags for disposal.

Illinois prohibited leaf burning for three years "when it was the environmental thing to do," Jones said. In October 1973, Gov. Daniel Walker signed a law that prohibits state regulation of leaf burning.

The IPCB can restrict burning in any area if medical and biological evidence shows that "contaminants" could cause injury to "human, plant or animal life."

Dist. 211 wrapup*Signal at Hoffman High rejected

A request for money for a traffic signal at Hoffman Estates High School was denied last week by the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education.

The Village of Hoffman Estates asked the board to contribute between $9,000 and $10,000 for a traffic light at Gannon Drive and Higgins Road. The signal, which village officials estimate would cost about $45,000, would be near the front of the high school, 1100 W. Higgins.

Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek said Thursday he is opposed to sharing the cost. The school district has denied such requests in the past, said Creek, who said the $45,000 figure is probably too low.

Traffic signals are needed at three other schools in the district, said Creek. Traffic for Conant High School is congested at the intersection of Old Plum Grove Road and Higgins Road in Hoffman Estates, and at Illinois Avenue and Quentin Road for Fremd High School in Palatine. A signal could also be used on Schaumburg Road at Schaumburg High School.

"I don't believe we can act on one request," said Creek, since the other schools have traffic problems. He said Dist. 211 asked the state to install the signal for Hoffman Estates High School when Higgins Road was being repaved. The state denied the request.

Late buses begin runs

Late buses began running on an experimental basis Sept. 23 in High School Dist. 211. A total of 168 students took the bus on the first day of operation and 244 students rode on the second day.

The late bus for students in athletic and other extra-curricular activities is the result of a request from two parents who said their children do not have a ride home after school activities. Mr. and Mrs. William Ceritelli from Hanover Park made the request earlier this month and the board agreed to run a late bus until Oct. 11.

The Ceritellis said some students are forced to drop out of activities because they do not have transportation. The board wants to see how many students will take the bus before continuing it. The bus is now free to students but board members have thought of charging a fee.

Of the 244 students who took the bus Tuesday, 34 students were from Conant High School, 89 from Fremd High School, 36 from Hoffman Estates High School, 37 from Palatine High School, and 44 from Schaumburg High School. The buses leave each of the five schools at about 6:40 p.m. each evening.

5 arrested, state trooper hurt in Hippo's hassle

Five men were arrested on various charges and a State Police trooper was injured late Friday in a series of disturbances at Hippo's Hot Dogs, Higgins and Plum Grove roads, Schaumburg.

Alex Caraballo, 18, of 155 Jamison Ln., Hoffman Estates, was charged by Schaumburg police with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. State police charged Caraballo with aggravated assault and resisting arrest.

Police said Trooper Gary Leming injured an ankle in a scuffle with Caraballo. Leming was released after being transported to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, by a Schaumburg Fire Dept. ambulance.

A SERIES OF disturbances brought police to the restaurant from about 9:45 to 11 p.m. Police later requested the restaurant be closed for the remainder of the night. Authorities estimated several hundred youngsters were in the area at one time. Hoffman Estates police and state troopers assisted Schaumburg police.

Charged with criminal trespass to property were William Widenback, 21, of 349 West View St., and Thomas Rasmussen, 24, of 265 West View St., both of Hoffman Estates. They were arrested after they returned to the restaurant after being asked to leave the premises, by the owner police said.

Charged with disorderly conduct were Steven Bird, 20, of 334 Cedarcrest Dr., and Gregory Tatarsky, 18, of 437 Spruce Ct., both of Schaumburg.

About $300 damage was caused to a washroom by vandals, police were told. The youths were released after posting bonds ranging from $25 to $1,000. Court appearances in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court were set for Nov. 13.

Firefighters surprise buddy with a bike on his birthday

by STIRLING MORITA

For about two years, 10-year-old Joey Klasky has been like a human mascot and a true friend to Schaumburg firefighters at Station No. 1, 1435 W. Schaumburg Rd.

And like good friends, the firemen have responded by giving him a real treat for his birthday — a new racer-style bicycle. Firemen chipped in for half the cost, and the Schaumburg Jaycees footed the other half.

Firefighter John Dixon said the men surprised the youngster with the bicycle because Joey is one of 11 children in his family and he had been riding his sister's beat-up two-wheeler to the station. "It's probably the first thing he has gotten that hasn't been a hand-me-down," Dixon said.

"He's a really good kid," added Dixon. "He's always stopping by to see us and smiling."

THE FIREFIGHTER said after the bicycle was presented to Joey, he clambered atop the bicycle and then got off to hug Dixon. "At first he didn't believe it." Joey said he liked the bike "fine" and that the gift was a complete surprise.

The youngster, who said he wanted someday to be a "half policeman and half fireman," said that he started visiting the station about two years ago to see the fire engines and "talk to the guys."

He added that he stops by the station almost every day to keep the firemen company and that last week he got to help them polish one of the ambulances. "He's always eager to do something," said Dixon, adding that the firefighters occasionally send him on errands to the nearby shopping center.

Pinger will be paroled Wednesday

by TONI GINNETTI

Edward Pinger, former Hoffman Estates village president, will be paroled Wednesday from federal prison on McNeil Island, Wash., after serving more than eight months for bribery and income tax evasion.

Pinger, who served as the village's first president from 1959 to 1965 and as a zoning board member from 1965 to 1969, will be the fourth of six former village officials to be released from federal prisons. Two others, Roy L. Jenkins, another former village president, and Herbert C. Gibson, a former trustee, remain in custody.

A seventh convicted official, former State Rep. Bernard Peskin, has not been sentenced, pending the outcome of appeals.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Anton Vahukas said the government has until Oct. 24 to respond to briefs filed by Peskin's attorneys. A decision on the appeal is not expected for some time.

PINGER'S RELEASE was confirmed by federal parole authorities in California. The 47-year-old former village president had been sent to the federal jail.

Camp Fire Girls 'Wing Ding'

The Schaumburg Camp Fire Girls will hold a "Wing Ding" at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Robert Frost Junior High School to introduce girls and their mothers to the organization. Girls from first to sixth grades and their mothers interested in the organization are invited.

Jan. 14 after pleading guilty to one count of tax evasion and one count of conspiracy in connection with the bribery scandal surrounding the 1968 zoning for Kaufman and Broad Inc.'s Barrington Square development.

Pinger is expected to remain in Washington, where he has a residence, following his release.

Federal authorities at the U.S. Board of Parole in California said a release for Jenkins, who served as village president from 1965 to 1969, has been denied. Jenkins will be considered again for parole in January, authorities said.

GIBSON, WHO WAS sentenced to one year in prison and three years of probation for his role in the bribery scheme, has been in custody at the federal prison farm in Terre Haute, Ind., since April 11. Federal parole officials in Chicago declined to discuss his parole status.

Already freed from jail are former trustees James L. Sloan, Gerald L. Meyer and Howard J. Noble.

All six officials pleaded guilty to parts of a 23-count federal indictment handed down Oct. 26, 1973. K&B, also named in the indictment, pleaded no contest to its role in the $100,000 bribery.

A farmhouse in the Moon Lake Village subdivision may become the site of an historical and agricultural museum for Hoffman Estates.

The farmhouse, which owners of the subdivision have tentatively agreed to donate to the village, could house historical relics of the area, the village and midwestern agriculture, said Marilyn Lind, chairman of the committee planning the museum.

"There would be two aspects to it," Mrs. Lind said. She said photographs, oral histories and information from the village's first residents could be included in the building. Because the site is a farmhouse, she said it also could be maintained as a farm museum with information on area agriculture.

Mrs. Lind said plans for the museum began about two years ago when Diane Jensen, then a village trustee, suggested establishing a children's petting zoo in the village at a farmhouse. Several months ago Mrs. Lind said she also suggested maintaining a site where information on farming in the area could be kept.

A LETTER TO plan commission chairman Richard Regan on the possibility of obtaining the Moon Lake Village farm site followed, she said. The subdivision's developers responded favorably to the plan, but Mrs. Lind said legal transfer of the building probably will not take place until the end of the year.

She said the opening of the museum is hoped to coincide with the nation's Bicentennial celebration in 1976. Fund-raising efforts will be held next year to secure money for the project, she added.

The farmhouse has not been examined by Mrs. Lind's museum committee, which met last week for the first time.

"WE WOULD LIKE to restore three rooms and possibly four," she said. Other rooms in the two-story building also may be refurbished, she said.

Information about the house also will be sought from individuals who lived in the house and their relatives.

MEMBERS OF THE museum committee include Mrs. Lind, architect Andrew MacPherson, Judy Hanlon, Joan Maudlin, John Rousch, Diane Jensen and Robert Lyons, head of the social science department at Hoffman Estates High School.

The committee is scheduled to meet briefly Tuesday but will hold a general meeting Oct. 8.

Palatine's rally comes up short

On the third play from scrimmage, halfback Kevin McWard punched over for the score and Bill Finlay's extra-point kick gave the Pirates the lead, 7-6. "That blocked punt was just another of the errors we've been making," Haines said. "This time we managed to win in spite of it. I guess our ultimate goal is to play a game with just a normal amount of mistakes."

The very next time the Cardinals had possession, Yeazel and Schell got the opportunity to make up for the punting fiasco. After Craig Bernhardt returned the Palatine kick to the Arlington 45, Shaughnessy arched a nifty sideline pass to Yeazel good for 32 yards to the enemy

18. The hookup came on a crucial third-down call.

"We let that pass completion go on a third-and-long situation," said Herstedt, the Palatine coach. "That really hurt. But, all in all, we settled down on defense tonight. We were tackling out there."

The Pirates' defense almost stopped the Cardinals' goalward drive shortly after Yeazel's long gain. With a fourth-down-and-three dilemma facing them, the Cardinals called on Bernhardt, the big, hard-running senior, who took an option pitch from Shaughnessy and cut to the outside for this first down. Two plays later, Schell busted over the middle for the TD that put the home team ahead to stay.

Arlington then successfully recovered an onside kick and, although they failed to take advantage of the good fortune immediately, it did open the way to the Cardinals' final score.

Yeazel directed a pinpoint, 25-yard punt that went out of bounds at the Palatine two. On the Pirates' first play, quarterback McCostlin rolled right and was trapped in the end zone by hard-hitting tackle Dave Ruhiz for a two-point safety.

"The safety was one of the key plays," said Haines later. "It gave us a seven-point lead and we got the ball back again. And that punt by Yeazel was a real beauty."

Palatine put together one more scoring threat in the fourth quarter, helped along by a well-executed screen pass from McCostlin to John Bals good for 20 yards. But the drive was thwarted when Steve Hadley intercepted a McCostlin pass at the goal line.

For the three Arlington "quarterbacks" it was a satisfying night. They contributed mightily to the Cardinals' first league success. Schell was the game's leading ground-gainer with 63 yards in 18 carries. Shaughnessy completed just three passes, but they were all to Yeazel, who racked up 55 yards through the air. It was a good night for quarterbacks.

St. Viator stomps Notre Dame, 48-7

by MIKE KLEIN

Here come the Lions! Here come the Lions! Step aside for the life you save will be your own.

They're ruined their own secret. St. Viator's football Lions are one bunch of mean dudes. As for quarterback Bobby Walsh, new kid with the ball, are six TD passes enough for your money?

That's how many Walsh tossed . . . half a dozen TD passes . . . Friday evening as the Lions feasted upon Notre Dame, 48-7, in monstrous fashion, breaking a one touchdown tie that existed two minutes before halftime.

At that juncture, Walsh lay decked out at midfield, thanks to Brian Burke's blitz. It seemed a good moment for Notre Dame, an apparent 7-7 intermission tie ensured.

Head coach Jim Lyne, who smokes too many cigarettes, rushed onto the field for defensive coordinator Wayne Fiedler screamed at his men: "You should be ashamed! They got our quarterback and you can't get theirs. You should be ashamed!"

Walsh had his air knocked out and missed one play as Pat Rooney handed to Joe Littwin for two yards. Then with Burke again in pursuit, Walsh unloaded a 28-yard scoring strike to halfback John Breen. It was 14-7 at 1:04. Here come the Lions!

Joe Sheetz fumbled Mark Selvig's kickoff and Matt Hower recovered for Viator on Notre Dame's 31. Bingo, in one play

Walsh threw to halfback Jack Gracheck for the entire distance.

Twice within 24 seconds Walsh penetrated the Dons' flimsy pass defense. St. Viator powered ahead, 21-7, Notre Dame was dead. Here come the Lions!

The barrage never ceased. Walsh drilled third quarter TD passes to Breen, 20 and two yards, plus Pat Bucaro for 33 yards. It was Walsh-to-Bucaro, a nifty 61-yard effort, that gave the Lions a 7-0 first period lead.

A seventh touchdown pass, Walsh-to-Littwin for two yards, was nullified late in the game when Viator was caught with an ineligible receiver downfield.

Walsh completed 13-of-18 for 264 yards. He had tremendous success splitting the seams to halfback Breen and Bucaro who got extensive time at wide receiver.

"They were playing a deep zone which gives our guys all kinds of space," said Lyne. "Then they're playing two line-backers up to contain Walsh on the run. So all you've got to do is bring a back out and he's open every time."

Viator's original game plan called for off-tackle running. But it didn't work as the Dons pinched hard and shut off the gains. "We spun our wheels that first quarter until we found their weakness," Lyne said. "Sometimes we insist too long on things that aren't there."

Bucaro and Breen evenly divided 10 Walsh pass completions, Bucaro leading in total yardage, 118-92. Bucaro scored 12 points and Breen 18. Rooney had two catches and Gracheck his one for Viator's third touchdown.

Littwin, whose 21 rushes netted 83 yards, lost two TDs. Aside from the nullified pass catch, he had a 41-yard scoring run erased by Bucaro's clip during the third period. And Littwin was denied a 13-yard gain when Mark Michuda was detected holding.

Viator's last touchdown, with 5:32 remaining, resulted when John Romano and Mike Murray blocked Dave Cancellieri's punt. Larry Bruck scampered 20 yards.

Mark Campana was perfect on six-of-seven conversion kicks, missing his last. It went wide left.

Notre Dame's only points registered on John Cashman's 18-yard aerial to Tom Convey at 6:16 before intermission. The drive was keyed by Tim Walsh's recovery of a bad option pitch by Bob Walsh.

After stopping Notre Dame at the goal line, Selvig making a key tackle, the Lions marched nearly 40 yards before Walsh made the bad pitch. Notre Dame's Walsh reached Viator's 11 before Littwin dragged him down. A two-yard loss and illegal procedure penalty preceded Cashman's TD pass. Cancellieri added the kick.

Notre Dame was crushed by Fiedler's defense which gave Walsh and Co. excellent field position except for the one series at Viator's goal line. Fran Willcutt's club gained possession on Viator's 23 after a high punt snap from Tim Halas to Brian Scopolino.

The Dons accumulated 73 yards total offense and just 24 against Viator's first defensive unit which left after three periods. Notre Dame's third quarter offense read minus eight yards.

Three of their five first downs came on a 43-yard march against Viator's second unit. Even then, Notre Dame couldn't convert a fourth and one on the Lions' 20.

Viator has yielded just two touchdowns during its first 10 quarters, one each to Notre Dame and Hersey. That includes a 21-0 shutout over Marist. The Lions own a huge 106-31 scoring margin over opponents.

But Friday's victory belongs to Bobby Walsh. He's the main reason the Lions are 4-0 and 2-0 in East Suburban Catholic games. They host defending champ Holy Cross on Friday night.

Four weeks ago, Walsh started his first game at quarterback. Lyne wondered: Would Walsh fold under pressure? The answer: Nope, at least not yet.

He's accounted for 11 of Viator's 16 touchdowns. Walsh threw for one and scored one rushing against Evanston, then ran for one against Hersey. He scored twice in the Marist shutout before tossing six TD passes Friday at Notre Dame.

"He had a nice touch on the ball which is something we've been waiting for," Lyne said. "Bobby has played way beyond what we expected. He's in the same boat with Stan Bobowski and Jim Bucaro."

Pass plays hurt Fremd

down with a 40-yard return. Hersey moved to the 22 before using the flea flicker Topczewski pass to Dave Carey. After taking the 10-yard loss, Carey pitched back to Forster who went the remaining 12 yards.

Fremd threatened twice in the second half with the passing game playing a big part in its offense. Dave Wickum, throwing more than he had in the previous three games, completed six of 14 for 93 of its 123 total yards.

In the third quarter, the Vikings went as far as the Hersey 21 before the Huskie defense stopped them. Wickum's toss to Dan Robinson — the only receiver used by Fremd — came up just short of the first down.

Early in the fourth quarter, they got as far as the 19. This time it was Roger Urban who stopped a fourth down pass play by knocking down an aerial.

Between these aborted drives, the Fremd defense ruined Hersey's shutout. In the middle of the third quarter, a host of Fremd linemen smothered Carey as he attempted a punt from about the Hersey eight. Byron Finger scooped up the ball on about the five and scored. Rich Sharpe ran for the two pointer, leaving the Vikings within scoring distance of tying the game, 16-6.

A fine 53-yard drive by Hersey stalled on the 10. Then Barnard connected on a 28-yard field goal to put the game out of reach at 19-6 early in the fourth quarter.

Hersey ended an 81-yard drive with no time remaining as Topczewski hit Carey for a 12-yard touchdown. Barnard kicked his third extra point.

Both coaches had praise for their players. Gilwa was especially pleased with Forster, who carried 23 times for 131 yards. "Forster gave 180 per cent," he said. The Huskies' coach also credited the defense, Topczewski and his receivers, who "held on to the ball in a crowd."

"If you're 0-3 and a team scores the first time it gets the ball like they did, you can let down pretty easily," said Samojedny. "They never gave up. I'm proud of 'em."

Samojedny also praised the Fremd defense as well as Robinson who "did a heck of a job. He played hurt."

Forest View leads in South after rolling over Elk Grove

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

"Yeah, I'll say it," Fred Lussow stated over the howl of the Forest View dressing room, "we're a better team. Let's let the score speak for itself."

And what the score had to say was Forest View 17, Elk Grove 7 in a game that left the Falcons as clear and present heavies of the MSL South Division Friday night.

"We made the big play when we had to, we got the important first downs, we scored first. We contained their offense and moved the ball against them. But," Lussow continued, "they're a good team. They're quite a bit bigger than they're listed on the their program. Schanze's been kind of hiding in the bushes about that."

Don Schanze, the Elk Grove head coach who seemed to have his tales of woe borne out Friday night, was reluctant to comment on the outcome.

"We got beat by a good team," he said. "But the less said by us the better. They won the ballgame so they should be doing all the talking."

Much of the credit for the Falcons' victory, and blame for the Greens' defeat, can go to the fact that Forest View had a passing offense and Elk Grove did not until they tried one out of sheer desperation.

"I wouldn't say Elk Grove is predictable," Lussow said. "They run most of the time but they can throw, too. They might pass three times in a game and score twice. Just knowing that they can throw is enough to keep you loose."

"I know from seeing (Tom) Allen throw there in the fourth quarter that he's a fine passer. Much better than we expected."

Yet Elk Grove didn't attempt a pass until the final period when they were in a hole. They were able to move the ball on the ground against the Falcons, chewing out 179 yards on the ground. Allen completed three passes for 40 yards.

Forest View exhibited a varied offense throughout the evening, opening their first offensive series with a down and out pass from Jim Petran to Bob Strasser that went for 14 yards. Following five running plays Petran went back to the air to keep the drive alive and hit Neil Schmidt on a curl pattern for 11 yards.

Schmidt, who hung onto five passes in heavy defensive traffic for 56 yards, was reluctant to admit Elk Grove had put the clamps on the Falcon passing game in the second half.

"We were trying to go deep on them," Schmidt said, "and as soon as I'd take two steps they'd drop back very quickly and cut that off. So we went to the hooks and under routes. We didn't even try to throw in the fourth quarter and that was when they were double teaming me."

"Jim was really laying that ball in there, though."

Petran moved the Falcons steadily on that first drive, mixing the plays well and testing the Elk Grove line with running backs Dave Matz, Joe Di Fatta and Dave Ennes. Petran pushed over the touchdown himself from the one yard line but the drive was sustained by the passing.

"We felt they were vulnerable to the pass," Lussow said. "We probably should've kept passing all night until they showed us they could stop it. They were very tough on the line of scrimmage though and put the most pressure on us we've had all season. Petran got sacked tonight and that's the first time that's happened this year."

Elk Grove came up with an impressive drive of their own immediately following the Falcon touchdown. With John Willard, Dan Streich and Tom Roberts doing the legwork, Allen took his team 57 yards in 13 plays for the Greens' only touchdown.

Allen scored himself dropping back to pass, seeing an opening and scampering in from the four yard line.

In the second half Forest View's defense started to get rough with the Greens, led by linebacker George Bregar. In the third quarter Elk Grove's running game suddenly came to a halt and when a 46-yard field goal by Greg Jacobs put the Falcons ahead late in the third quarter the Greens had to decide whether to start passing or exit gracefully.

Allen attempted his first pass of the night early in the fourth quarter on a third down and eight situation. It was intercepted by linebacker John O'Brien.

That turnover should have taken the stuffing out of Elk Grove but the Falcons gave them the ball right back again when they fumbled moments later.

Allen cranked up the passing game with a 20 yard strike to Willard then gave to Streich for a half dozen more.

That brief flicker of hope was squelched when the Greens lost the handle in the backfield, dove around trying to regain control of the ball and succeeded only in batting it into the open where Jim Forssander picked it up on the run and went 73 yards for Forest View's last touchdown.

"We made some costly turnovers there in the final quarter," Lussow said. "But then so did they. We were able to capitalize on ours."

"I'm pleased with our effort. Elk Grove is a fine team. They can beat anybody."

Which is a winning coach's way of shedding a lot of flattery on the way they had trouble beating in the past.

Inflation forecast: cloudy, little change...

Abner Mikva

Mikva: oust Butz, prevent excess profits

by STEVE BROWN

Remember the 62 cents you paid for a dozen eggs in June? A year from now, you may be paying that much for just five eggs.

A graphic demonstration by congressional candidate Abner J. Mikva shows how high food prices are headed.

Mikva Friday reported on the results of first three months of his survey of grocery prices in the 10th Congressional District, where he is seeking to unseat U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

He noted that prices are continuing to soar and laid out a variety of food items to show how much could be purchased in June versus what inflation will mean in 1975. He predicted food prices will increase 33 per cent in the next year.

BESIDES EGGS, comparisons were made for bacon, chuck steak, Jello, pork chops, shortening and crackers. In most cases the amounts decreased

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young

between what could have been purchased in June and what a shopper will be able to buy in June 1975.

Mikva proposed a series of government moves which he believes should at least slow the rise of food costs.

Young: move to cut spending by government

U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, believes reduced government spending could help bring inflation to an acceptable rate, but only after another one or two years.

Young said pressures on the economy brought about by excessive government spending are "a major factor" in inflation and said a balanced federal budget is vital to cooling inflation.

"In the last 10 years, the government has spent $100 billion more than it has taken in," Young said Friday. He estimated that Congress this year will produce a budget of about $300 billion, $5 billion in excess of expected revenues.

The freshman congressman, now engaged in an effort to gain his second term in an election contest with Democrat Abner J. Mikva, whom he narrowly defeated in 1972, also advocated reductions in military spending, realignment (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

U.S. Rep. Philip Crane

Crane: cut spending

If you earn $15,173 this year — the average income in the 12th Congressional District — you will need to earn $30,346 by 1983 just to stay even, said U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

In a position paper on inflation, Crane pointed out that a (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

Due to lack of citizen interest

Community Action Plan to consider disbanding

by LYNN ASINOF

Mount Prospect's Community Action Plan (CAP) may disband because of lack of citizen interest and poor attendance at meetings.

CAP Pres. Richard Bachhuber said that although no decision has been reached on disbanding the organization, the matter will be considered at October's executive committee meeting.

"We're looking at that possibility very seriously right now," Bachhuber said. "We can't get people to come to meetings."

For example, Bachhuber said CAP's semiannual board of directors meeting last Thursday night attracted only five of 30 members. Elections were scheduled for that night, but there was no quorum and the nominating committee was not even represented.

BACHHUBER SAID THE poor attendance, which represents a growing lack of interest, may be caused by the village's being "over organized."

"There's too many organizations trying to do too many things," he said.

Currently CAP is involved with a community attitude survey designed to find out what Mount Prospect residents like and dislike about their community. Bachhuber said the survey project will be completed, but noted it is the only project CAP has been involved with in the past eight months.

"We had hoped the survey would lead to other projects," Bachhuber said. "But I think we've pretty much lost the interest of our membership."

CAP originally formed about five years ago in response to drug abuse problems. The organization was instrumental in creating the Pump House Hotline and the ICE House counseling center, both of which have been joined under the village-operated Perspectives program.

The citizens group was reorganized about two years ago after the village

Youth shot in Des Plaines robbery

A Mount Prospect youth is in the intensive care unit of Holy Family Hospital after he was shot Saturday by robbers during a holdup of a Des Plaines liquor store where he works as a stockboy.

David Turner, 16, of 819 We-Go Tr., was shot in the right shoulder with a sawed-off shotgun as he lay on the floor of Williams Liquors, 840 Elmhurst Rd. Des Plaines police said the attack was apparently unprovoked.

According to reports, three men and a woman, all in their early 20s, entered the store about 11:30 p.m. Saturday, brandished weapons and announced a holdup. The men, who covered their hair with multi-colored bandanas, carried automatic pistols and the shotgun.

The female accomplice was reportedly wearing blue slacks and a low-cut blouse.

All the suspects are black, police said.

Turner, another stockboy and a woman clerk were forced to lie on the floor by the robbers. There were no customers in the store at the time of the robbery, police said.

Before the robbers fled, one shot Turner. The other two employees were not injured, police said.

An undetermined amount of cash was taken by the bandits, according to police.

The suspects escaped on foot. Witnesses said they were last seen running between a doughnut shop and hamburger stand near the liquor store.

An arcwile bulletin has been issued for the four.

A spokesman at Holy Family Hospital said Turner was in the intensive care unit. No other details or condition report was available Sunday.

ST. VIATOR HALFBACK Joe Littwin gets the ball from Bobby Walsh as Matt Hower (63) throws a block during Friday's 48-7 victory over Notre Dame. Littwin rushed 83 yards in 21 carries. He lost two touchdowns due to penalties against the Lions. For details see Sports.

Those falling leaves—a yearly burning issue

Leaf burners beware. Most Northwest suburbs prohibit open burning of leaves.

But, for persons who find delight in the autumn smell, a few local municipalities allow leaf destruction.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board is banned from regulating leaf burning and relies on local communities for prohibition of the anti-environmental burning.

Local regulations include:

• Mount Prospect: Village Mgr. Robert Eppeley said that he is "unaware" of an ordinance banning burning.

• Elk Grove Village: Village Mgr. Charles Willis said that open burning is banned, but leaves can burn in containers.

• Buffalo Grove: Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said that leaf burning is prohibited.

• Wheeling: Village Clerk Evelyn Diens said that the ordinance banning burning is "vague." The law prohibits fires on public grounds or near buildings where a fire hazard may result. Fire officials said the department does not stop burning of leaves.

• Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg: Burning is prohibited.

• Rolling Meadows: Burning is prohibited.

• Arlington Heights: Officials said that an ordinance prohibits burning.

Des Plaines: A 1963 ordinance prohibits burning of "standing hay or grass or any leaves gathered on streets, curbside, alleyways, parkways or park property."

• Palatine: Village Pres. Wendell Jones said that burning is banned. "If people in Palatine want to go back to the system (of burning leaves), they can petition the village board to consider it."

Most officials encourage homeowners to use leaf or garbage bags for disposal.

Illinois prohibited leaf burning for three years "when it was the environmental thing to do," Jones said. In October 1973, Gov. Daniel Walker signed a law that prohibits state regulation of leaf burning.

The IPCB can restrict burning in any area if medical and biological evidence shows that "contaminants" could cause injury to "human, plant or animal life."

Kids enjoy trip to Luther Village

Thirteen young people from Grace Lutheran Church on Euclid Avenue recently returned from a week at Luther Village, Kenora, Ont., Canada. They were on a cooperative retreat involving kids from three churches — Reformation Lutheran and Austin Messiah, of Chicago, and Grace.

Grace youth director Don Rothweiler reports that the young people really got the spirit of the untouched beauty of the area. They all came back, he said, with a personal promise to "take care of and save" something like water, food, property, etc.

Said Dave, "These commitments, in turn, trickled over into their religious obligations. It was a wonderful, worthwhile trip."

PETER LAUBENHEIMER, a former lifelong local resident who now lives in San Jose, Calif., was at the Mount Prospect train station early one morning last week. He was in the area for a business meeting in Chicago and was in Mount Prospect visiting his parents, George and Mabel Laubheimer, 115 N. Emerson St.

Commuters who greeted him were surprised to see him and were even more surprised to see the new Californian wearing a coat on the brisk morning. Pete was quick to explain that he had not brought the garment from his warm weather home. He had borrowed his dad's topcoat!

Pete and Elise and their two children formerly lived on Elm Street, moved to the west coast a year ago. Pete works in a branch office of Consoer Townsend & Associates, consulting engineers.

TERRY FRANKS OF George L. Busse & Co. is the Chamber of Commerce man in charge of Christmas decorations to be put on light poles in town this year. He reports that there are two kinds of decorative pieces to be hung. These will be strung on Northwest Highway from Mount Prospect Road to Central, on Prospect Avenue, Main Street and various other places in downtown Mount Prospect.

Dave Creamer, director of public works, reports that the decorations won't go up until after Thanksgiving, even though the holiday comes very late this year, Nov. 28.

JOHN AND DORIS WEBER, 418 S. Hill, are moving from Mount Prospect next week to their new home in Hope Sound, Fla., about 25 miles north of Palm Beach.

It's Mount Prospect's loss. The Webbers have been super active in the village. In recent years they have been particularly involved in the Mount Prospect Historical Society, both getting it started and keeping it going.

John has recovered fully from recent open heart surgery. He is retired from Commonwealth Edison Co.

SPEAKING OF THE Historical Society, the group's center, to be in old St. John Lutheran School on Linneman Road, is currently being painted on the outside. The pale yellow woodwork is being redone. The red brick of the building has been truckpointed and a new door will be added soon.

The society hopes to hold its next meeting in the new 'old' building.

Keep on hikin'—6,000 miles

by JOE SWICKARD

There's Bud, his dog, Boy, and his pack pony, Maybelline, off on a walk to see America, talk to the people, learn something about it and them.

Northwest Highway is the high-speed artery of the Northwest suburbs. Car lots, real estate offices and fast-food franchises draw their nourishment from the people and cars that race past them daily.

Tethered to a fence at the Burger King on the highway in Palatine is something from another time. A pack pony, loaded with 145 pounds of gear, including a fishing spear and a set of snow shoes, draws children and causes cars to slow to a creep. A backpack, guarded by a dog, is leaned against the building.

BUD KENNY, having finished his Whopper, strides out of the Burger King ready to be on his way.

"I'm walking to Oregon, up through Montana. The Northern route. We started in Leola, Pa., and we're going to Oregon and then down to San Francisco and back across to Hot Springs, Ark.," said Bud.

It is planned as a year-long, 6,000-mile learning adventure for Bud Kenny, 26-year-old former Oklahoma City disc jockey. When he's through, hopefully about September, 1975, he plans to look over his notes, revisit some of the people he's met and then write a series of journals about it.

"I was a disk jockey in Oklahoma City, making a buck here and spending it there. I wanted to slow down, relax and get to know the country and the people," he said with a trace of the peculiar twanging drawl of Oklahoma.

BUD DECIDED to take his time about it. Maybelline, his pony, was pure practically to help carry his load as he walked.

Practical origins or not, Maybelline quickly became a device to meet people. Naturally, folks are going to want to talk to a man walking down

ON HIS WAY to meet America, Bud Kenny, his dog, Boy, and pony, Maybelline, hike along Northwest Highway. His final destination is Hot Springs, Ark., by way of Oregon. After the 6,000 mile trek, Kenny plans a series of journals.

the road leading a packpony with flowers in the bridle.

"People will stop me and get to chatting. It gives me the chance to find out about their lives, the history of the area and about the people who live there," Bud said.

Although he travels by country roads (Northwest Highway is the busiest road to date), he makes a point to go through the cities and towns along the route.

"I came into Chicago on 47th Street. They told me it was a ghetto, but after seeing Cleveland, it looked pretty nice. Kids came up to me and want to see who I am and pet the pony. A lot of them in the city never have that chance," he said.

Maybelline (named after the old Chuck Berry record) is well suited for the task. "Kids can pet her, stroke her nose or pull her tail. She doesn't mind a bit," he said.

TO PREPARE himself for his journey, Bud worked for a year with horses in Pennsylvania, reading what he could about early explorers and gathering or making his equipment.

"I'm poor financially. People I meet help me out. In the cities they give me a place to sleep. Of course, in the country, we have to sleep outdoors," he said, adding the trip will cost about $2,000.

Bud said he tries to eat the best he can as cheaply as he can. That means cabbages and dandelions for greens, but so far no wild hickory nuts or the edible parts of the pine tree.

Odd jobs also help finance his way. In Indiana he helped a man split old telephone poles for a rail fence.

BUD EXPECTS the road ahead to be rough. The leaves are turning early this year and there has already been a foot and a half of snow in Denver. But he said he was "looking forward" to wintering on the western range.

"Adventures. I've had all kinds of adventures. Just coming into Ohio in Amish country and young girl was in a buggy and her horse saw Maybelline and bolted," he said. The runaway horse was stopped and the girl was uninjured.

"I found out that people are good — damned good. It's the people that are the greatest adventure," said Bud as he took Boy's leash and Maybelline's line and headed west on the road to meet America.

Leaf pickup to start this week; earlier than usual

Mount Prospect's fall leaf program will begin this week because the early drop in temperatures is causing leaves to fall earlier than anticipated.

David Creamer, director of public works, said the early frost will accelerate the need for leaf pickup by the village. He said residents should rake their leaves into the gutter for collection by leaf-loading machines.

The leaf-loading machines will be used together with a dump truck for collection. Last year the village tested the leaf-loading machines, and Creamer said they proved more economical than other methods since the leaves were compressed and fewer dump loads were needed.

The truck is being rented by the village on a limited time basis.

Since the village must also clear thousands of manholes and sewer grates to insure snow drainage, Creamer said the leaf program will be ended Nov. 20 to make sure that the other work is finished before freezing weather sets in.

Blood donor day Wednesday

The Mount Prospect village blood drive will begin its new quarter with a blood drawing Wednesday at the Mount Prospect Country Club, 600 S. See-Gwan Ave.

Norma Murauskis, volunteer chairman of the drive, said donors are needed to replenish "an already low supply of blood."

Until the village reaches its quota of 1,000 pints representing four per cent of the village population, the village can use only as much blood as has been donated. After the quota is reached all residents and their immediate families can receive an unlimited supply of blood for the remainder of the year.

THE BLOOD DRIVE failed to reach its quarterly quota of 450 pints during the last quarter. Mrs. Murauskis said about 300 pints were collected during the past three months.

Wednesday's blood drawing will run from 4 to 8:30 p.m., and residents can make appointments by calling 439-9727 or 392-6000.

Donors must be at least 18 years of age and in good health. They should not eat fatty foods or dairy products within four hours of giving blood, or use of alcohol within 12 hours of marijuana within 72 hours.

Mrs. Murauskis said persons unable to donate at the drawing can give blood at local hospitals and earmark it for the Mount Prospect drive.

Avigliano and a companion, Larry Peters, 21, of 1500 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, were arrested within five minutes of the robbery. When they were taken into custody at McDonald's Restaurant, Rand Road near Ill. Rte. 83, police said they found $699.40 and two pistols.

An Oct. 11 appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court has been scheduled for Avigliano. Peters is free on bond.

Among the stolen items were a television set, clock radio, tape player and headphones set. Police said the apartment door was pryed open sometime between 2:30 and 5 p.m. Friday.

2 motorcyclists injured

Two motorcyclists received minor injuries Saturday morning in separate traffic accidents in Mount Prospect. Both were released after treatment at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

Police said Richard P. Cooper, 20, of Denver, was injured when he apparently rode over some pieces of damaged road barricades and was thrown from his cycle. The accident occurred at 3:34 a.m. on River Road near the Euclid Avenue construction.

The second accident occurred at 10:46 a.m. in the parking lot at the Randhurst Shopping Center, Rand and Elmhurst roads. Police said Keith E. Oehlisen, 18, of 1004 Newberry Ln., Mount Prospect, was injured in a collision with a car driven by Nancy M. Farrell, 17, of 1303 Cedar Ln., Mount Prospect.

Oehlisen was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and violation of a restriction on his driver's license. He is to appear Nov. 20 in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

Battery charges filed

A 20-year-old Mount Prospect man was arrested after he grabbed an 18-year-old woman in the parking lot of a neighborhood shopping center Friday night, police said.

Charged with battery is Mark Velasquez, 505 E. Algonquin Rd. Police said he grabbed Linda Barker, 1444 S. Busse Rd., about 8:25 p.m. Friday in the parking lot of the Convenient Food Mart, 1760 W. Algonquin Rd.

According to police, after Miss Barker got away from Velasquez, he followed her into the store. Police said he then started an argument with a store clerk, kicked out a $200 front window and left.

Velasquez was released on $1,000 bond and will appear Oct. 23 in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

took over the hotline and counseling program, and included representatives of numerous civic organizations.

MAYOR ROBERT D. Teichert, who was involved in the CAP reorganization, said "Lack of interest is usually a barometer that things on the whole are being attended to. It just doesn't seem that there are any outstanding or pressing community needs that are being brought forward that aren't being handled by standing committees of the board."

Teichert said, however, that the CAP organization can always be reactivated if the need for other community projects arises. "It's the kind of thing that can always come back into creation," he said.

Inflation forecast: cloudy, little change...

Abner Mikva

Mikva: oust Butz, prevent excess profits

by STEVE BROWN

Remember the 62 cents you paid for a dozen eggs in June? A year from now, you may be paying that much for just five eggs.

A graphic demonstration by congressional candidate Abner J. Mikva shows how high food prices are headed.

Mikva Friday reported on the results of first three months of his survey of grocery prices in the 10th Congressional District, where he is seeking to unseat U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

He noted that prices are continuing to soar and laid out a variety of food items to show how much could be purchased in June versus what inflation will mean in 1975. He predicted food prices will increase 33 per cent in the next year.

BESIDES EGGS, comparisons were made for bacon, chuck steak, Jello, pork chops, shortening and crackers.

In most cases the amounts decreased

between what could have been purchased in June and what a shopper will be able to buy in June 1975.

Mikva proposed a series of government moves which he believes should at least slow the rise of food costs.

Young: move to cut spending by government

U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, believes reduced government spending could help bring inflation to an acceptable rate, but only after another one or two years.

Young said pressures on the economy brought about by excessive government spending are "a major factor" in inflation and said a balanced federal budget is vital to cooling inflation.

"In the last 10 years, the government has spent $100 billion more than it has taken in," Young said Friday. He estimated that Congress this year will produce a budget of about $300 billion, $5 billion in excess of expected revenues.

The freshman congressman, now engaged in an effort to gain his second term in an election contest with Democrat Abner J. Mikva, whom he narrowly defeated in 1972, also advocated reductions in military spending, realignment (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

U.S. Rep. Philip Crane

Crane: cut spending

If you earn $15,173 this year — the average income in the 12th Congressional District — you will need to earn $30,346 by 1983 just to stay even, said U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

In a position paper on inflation, Crane pointed out that a (Continued on Section 3, Page 11)

Hearing tonight on track's plans for housing complex

Homeowners, school and park district officials, and representatives of Arlington Park Race Track will converge tonight at a public hearing before the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The hearing at 8 p.m. in the Municipal

Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., has been called because of the race track's request to extend its annexation agreement with Arlington Heights for five more years. The agreement, signed in 1969, is scheduled to expire Oct. 20.

Village Pres. Ralph H. Clabour said he is not planning any special ground rules for tonight's hearing. However, he said he hopes homeowners' associations will have prepared their remarks in advance and designated representatives to address the board.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS' Westgate Civic Assn. is expected to be well represented. Earlier this month the association sent out nearly 1,000 newsletters to its homeowners, urging their attendance at tonight's meeting.

The Westgate Civic Assn. takes in an area from Kirchhoff Road on the south, to Euclid Avenue on the north, and from Wilke Road on the west, to Kennicott Drive on the east.

"This is not just an association problem, it is a problem for the entire village," said Richard Goedke, association president. Goedke said he has talked to some other Arlington Heights homeowners' groups and he expects many of them will send at least their officers to tonight's hearing.

"We are interested only in the extension of the annexation agreement and not looking at the development plan (for the race track) at all at this point. We are anti-extending the agreement under any circumstances," he said.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS homeowners apparently will be bolstered by residents from Palatine and Rolling Meadows who live near the race track complex.

Race track disannex—a possibility

Remove Arlington Park Race Track property from the Village of Arlington Heights?

Nonsense, you say? But few remember what happened almost 20 years ago when Arlington Park was involved in another disannexation struggle with the City of Rolling Meadows. Arlington Park won.

The possibility of removing the massive complex from the Arlington Heights Village limits surfaced last week when plans for a housing development on race track land were presented to Arlington Heights officials. An attorney for Madison Square Gardens Corp., owners of the property, said if an agreement could not be reached on housing plans the firm would consider the village in "breach of contract" and disannexation is a possibility.

And according to the 1969 annexation agreement that brought the land into the village, race track officials may remove the land if the village does not live up to its part of the agreement. The entire issue would be settled in court.

IN 1955, ARLINGTON Park was forcibly annexed to the City of Rolling Meadows when the city was formed. Less than a year later, the land was disannexed, after a special bill was passed by the Illinois General Assembly allowing such a move.

Rolling Meadows, appealed the legislation to the Illinois Supreme Court but lost and in 1958 the race track was removed from the city.

In 1956, losing the Arlington Park complex meant a loss of only $2,500 a year. But if the land were taken out of Arlington Heights today the village would lose much more. The village's share of real estate taxes alone last year amounted to $145,000, Madison Square Garden officials said.

Those falling leaves—a yearly burning issue

Leaf burners beware. Most Northwest suburbs prohibit open burning of leaves.

But, for persons who find delight in the autumn smell, a few local municipalities allow leaf destruction.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board is banned from regulating leaf burning and relies on local communities for prohibition of the anti-environmental burning.

Local regulations include:

- Mount Prospect: Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said that he is "unaware" of an ordinance banning burning.

- Elk Grove Village: Village Mgr. Charles Willis said that open burning is banned, but leaves can burn in containers.

- Buffalo Grove: Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said that leaf burning is prohibited.

- Wheeling: Village Clerk Evelyn Diens said that the ordinance banning burning is "vague." The law prohibits fires on public grounds or near buildings where a fire hazard may result. Fire officials said the department does not stop burning of leaves.

- Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg: Burning is prohibited.

- Rolling Meadows: Burning is prohibited.

- Arlington Heights: Officials said that an ordinance prohibits burning.

Des Plaines: A 1965 ordinance prohibits burning of "standing hay or grass or any leaves gathered on streets, curbside, alleyways, parkways or park property."

- Palatine: Village Pres. Wendell Jones said that burning is banned. "If people in Palatine want to go back to the system (of burning leaves), they can petition the village board to consider it."

Most officials encourage homeowners to use leaf or garbage bags for disposal.

Illinois prohibited leaf burning for three years "when it was the environmental thing to do," Jones said. In October 1973, Gov. Daniel Walker signed a law that prohibits state regulation of leaf burning.

The IPCB can restrict burning in any area if medical and biological evidence shows that "contaminants" could cause injury to "human, plant or animal" life.

Hearing tonight on race track's housing plans

lington Crest Homeowners Assn. of Palatine, said she expected about 10 association members to attend the hearing. Arlington Crest is located directly north of the race track, across Northwest Highway.

"The idea of 32-story buildings looming over us is a little overwhelming," Mrs. Miramonti said, referring to the race track's plan to develop 5,000 dwelling units on a 100-acre site north of the Arlington Park Towers Hotel over the next 20 years. The plan includes townhouses, apartment buildings, and a dozen 22-story apartment high-rise buildings.

The extension of the annexation agreement and the housing plan are being treated separately by Arlington Heights officials. Race track representatives, however, have linked the two by saying that extending the annexation agreement would permit more flexibility in revising the massive building plan.

RESIDENTS OF THE Dawngate subdivision in Rolling Meadows have said they plan to attend tonight's hearing. Dawngate is west of Ill. Rte. 53 at Euclid Ave. Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 will be represented by Assistant Joseph Kiszka and Paul Jung, administrative assistant for planning.

Kiszka said the school district will not take a position on land development, but will be represented in case of questions about future school enrollments or a school site donation.

Salt Creek Park Dist. Director James DeVoss also is expected to attend the hearing. DeVoss previously has criticized the housing plan because it lacked public recreation facilities. He also has said that he is concerned that all swimming pools, tennis courts and other recreation facilities be built to national park district standards.

BECAUSE OF THE large crowd expected tonight, Clabour said he plans to keep repetition of testimony to a minimum. "I hope the meeting wouldn't run exceedingly long," he said.

Clabour said he does not expect a decision by the village board Monday night on whether the annexation agreement should be extended for five more years as race track officials have asked.

"I think this would more properly come up as an agenda item at a regular board meeting," he said. But because tonight's public hearing is also a specially called meeting of the board, a decision legally could be made, he added.

Apartment burglar steals 35 guns

Arlington Heights police are investigating an apartment burglary reported Friday afternoon in which 35 guns were reported stolen.

Police said the apartment of Jeffery Brook, 2120 S. Goebbert Rd., was entered while Brook was away. A resident of the building called police that the front door had been pried open.

Brook reported that 35 guns of various types and two cameras were taken.

A 5,000-UNIT housing plan for Arlington Park Race Track has led to a request for an extension of the track's annexation agreement with Arlington Heights. If the plan is rejected, track officials say they may disannex from the village.

Cadet praised for 'doing duty'

He said he hoped he wouldn't get chewed out after he hung the parking ticket on the big Buick.

Arlington Heights police cadet Greg Ostermann didn't get chewed out. His superiors said he did the right thing, as did the recipient of the ticket, County Sheriff Richard Elrod.

Elrod recently wrote to the 21-year-old cadet citing him as an example of "professionalism in law enforcement."

"I commend you for carrying out your responsibility regardless of who the offender is," wrote Elrod. "As a citizen, I would expect to be penalized for any violation, and I have paid the fine as any other citizen would be expected to do."

The sheriff continued, "I wish you the best of luck in a future career and hope you will join us in law enforcement. We welcome men of your caliber in this profession."

Ostermann, the son of a recently retired 20-year veteran of the Arlington Heights department, Lt. Joseph Ostermann, and brother of Schaumburg detectives Thomas and William Ostermann, said he'd "take a crack at it."

Keep on hikin'—6,000 miles

by JOE SWICKARD

There's Bud, his dog, Boy, and his pack pony, Maybelline, off on a walk to see America, talk to the people, learn something about it and them.

Northwest Highway is the high-speed artery of the Northwest suburbs. Car lots, real estate offices and fast-food franchises draw their nourishment from the people and cars that race past them daily.

Tethered to a fence at the Burger King on the highway in Palatine is something from another time. A pack pony, loaded with 145 pounds of gear, including a fishing spear and a set of snow shoes, draws children and causes cars to slow to a creep. A backpack, guarded by a dog, is leaned against the building.

BUD KENNY, having finished his Whopper, strides out of the Burger King ready to be on his way.

"I'm walking to Oregon, up through Montana. The Northern route. We started in Leola, Pa., and we're going to Oregon and then down to San Francisco and back across to Hot Springs, Ark.," said Bud.

It is planned as a year-long, 6,000-mile learning adventure for Bud Kenny, 26-year-old former Oklahoma City disc jockey. When he's through, hopefully about September, 1975, he plans to look over his notes, revisit some of the people he's met and then write a series of journals about it.

"I was a disk jockey in Oklahoma City, making a buck here and spending it there. I wanted to slow down, relax and get to know the country and the people," he said with a trace of the peculiar twanging drawl of Oklahoma.

BUD DECIDED to take his time about it. Maybelline, his pony, was pure practically to help carry his load as he walked.

Practical origins or not, Maybelline quickly became a device to meet people. Naturally, folks are going to want to talk to a man walking down

ON HIS WAY to meet America, Bud Kenny, his dog, Boy, and pony, Maybelline, hike along Northwest Highway. His final destination is Hot Springs, Ark., by way of Oregon. After the 6,000 mile trek, Kenny plans a series of journals.

the road leading a packpony with flowers in the bridle.

"People will stop me and get to chatting. It gives me the chance to find out about their lives, the history of the area and about the people who live there," Bud said.

Although he travels by country roads (Northwest Highway is the busiest road to date), he makes a point to go through the cities and towns along the route.

"I came into Chicago on 47th Street. They told me it was a ghetto, but after seeing Cleveland, it looked pretty nice. Kids come up to me and want to see who I am and pet the pony. A lot of them in the city never have that chance," he said.

Maybelline (named after the old Chuck Berry record) is well suited for the task. "Kids can pet her, stroke her nose or pull her tail. She doesn't mind a bit," he said.

TO PREPARE himself for his journey, Bud worked for a year with horses in Pennsylvania, reading what he could about early explorers and gathering or making his equipment.

"I'm poor financially. People I meet help me out. In the cities they give me a place to sleep. Of course, in the country, we have to sleep outdoors," he said, adding the trip will cost about $2,000.

Bud said he tries to eat the best he can as cheaply as he can. That means cattails and dandelions for greens, but so far no wild hickory nuts or the edible parts of the pine tree.

Odd jobs also help finance his way. In Indiana he helped a man split old telephone poles for a rail fence.

BUD EXPECTS the road ahead to be rough. The leaves are turning early this year and there has already been a foot and a half of snow in Denver. But he said he was "looking forward" to wintering on the western range.

"Adventures? I've had all kinds of adventures. Just coming into Ohio in Amish country and young girl was in a buggy and her horse saw Maybelline and bolted," he said. The runaway horse was stopped and the girl was uninjured.

"I found out that people are good — damned good. It's the people that are the greatest adventure," said Bud as he took Boy's leash and Maybelline's line and headed west on the road to meet America.

At Buffalo Grove High School

No alums, homecoming set anyway

From crazy socks to ugly legs, school spirit promises to abound this week at Buffalo Grove High School's "Fall Roundup."

Scheduled to graduate its first class of seniors in 1975, the school has no alumni, but that won't dampened the homecoming spirit during the week of special activities.

"Crazy Sock and Clash Day," will begin Fall Roundup week Tuesday. Students are invited to wear wild socks and clashing outfits. Faculty will judge which class shows the most school spirit through its dress and points will be awarded.

THE CLASS amassing the most points by the end of the week will be deemed to have the most school spirit.

Candidates for Fall Roundup queen will be presented at a special morning assembly Tuesday.

Wednesday will be "Sweat pants and Hat Day," as students will don sweat-suits and wild hats, again competing for points when the faculty votes at the end of the day.

The "Ugly Legs" contest, sponsored by the pom pon girls will also start Wednesday. Pictures of the legs of two male representatives of each class will be exhibited, with students voting as many times as they wish for a penny per vote.

Thursday will be school color day as students dress with the Bison colors of blue and orange.

THE PARADE will travel north on Arlington Heights Road from the school to Plum Grove Road, going east on Plum Grove to Country Lane, continuing east on Country Lane to Weidner Road, south on Weidner to Beachwood, west on Beachwood to Arlington Heights Road and back to the school.

Friday will be Western Dress-Up Day. An afternoon pep rally will feature wheelbarrow and piggyback races, along with a licorice eating contest. The class spirit trophy also will be awarded.

A carnival will be featured in the school fieldhouse Friday night from 7:30 to 10:30 featuring a variety of games and activities.

The Saturday football game against Arlington High School will start at 2 p.m. at the school, 1101 W. Dundee Rd., preceded at 1:45 by a band pre game show and presentation of the roundup queen.

The week will conclude Saturday night with a semi-formal dance in the school cafeteria from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m.

Four local men charged with pharmacy burglary

Four Des Plaines men, three of them brothers, have been charged with a pharmacy burglary through the quick action of a recently promoted Arlington Heights police lieutenant.

Area police are trying to determine whether the four were involved in any other recent similar pharmacy break-ins in the Northwest suburbs.

Lt. LeRoy Welch, who was promoted Sept. 20, was checking businesses along Northwest Highway on foot about 1 a.m. Friday when he noticed a mound of rubble on the floor of Sidor's Pharmacy, 520 W. Northwest Hwy. Using his flashlight, Welch sighted a hole in the ceiling and discovered ransacked drawers.

AFTER CALLING two backup patrol cars, Welch captured one suspect as he attempted to jump off the roof of the building. He then saw and captured a second man who was hiding on the roof.

Taken into custody were William L. Porm, 20, and James Miller, 19. Both suspects gave their address as 9813 La Casa, Des Plaines.

A short time later, Sgt. Ralph Martinson found James Porm, 21, of 8812 Dee Rd., Des Plaines, asleep in a car parked across the street from the pharmacy. Martinson said the car was parked in a row of cars belonging to an auto agency.

A third brother, Steve Porm, 18, also of the Dee Road address, was arrested by Arlington Heights police five hours after the first two suspects were captured. Steve Porm was identified through photographs after he first reportedly gave a stolen driver's license as identification.

POLICE SAID a laundry bag containing 21 bottles of narcotics, amphetamines and barbiturates, watches, a radio and a tape player was found on the roof. Also recovered were several rolls of coins, a walkie-talkie radio, gloves, tools believed to have been used to cut a hole in the roof, four taffy apples and four bags of strawberry twist candy, police said.

Steve Porm was charged with possession of stolen property and burglary and released on $1,500 bond. William Porm was charged with burglary and released on $1,000 bond.
